23 PERSONS INJURED

Tornadic Winds Level Homes In Wisconsin Area

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Savage winds, packing two reported tornadoes, slashed at southeast Wisconsin Saturday injuring 23 persons and damaging or destroying 200 homes in another.

The violent winds hammered four cities — Port Washington, Fond du Lac, Beaver Dam and the Milwaukee suburb of Oak Creek.

Witnesses said funnel clouds had been sighted at Port Washington and Fond du Lac, where the apparent tornadoes knifed into residential sections.

At Port Washington, a Lake Michigan shore city of 4,755 persons, Ozaukee County Sheriff Viol Eidenberger said, "I've never seen anything like it." He said several homes in a new section had been flattened and about 240 more damaged. He said there was no estimate of the loss.

'BEYOND REPAIR'

"Many of the homes are wrecked beyond repair," the sheriff said.

St. Alphonsus Hospital in Port Washington said it had received 23 injured, including 11 members of one family. All were treated and released except Mr. and Mrs. Francis Winnemueller and their nine children, ranging in ages from 9 months to 16 years. All of the Winnemuellers were reported in fair condition.

The Red Cross said that seven Port Washington homes had been demolished, between 20 and 30 left uninhabitable, 28 severely damaged and 165 others with lesser damage.

The sheriff said many residents had fled to their basements when it suddenly grew dark during heavy thunder and lightning. He said the injuries Saturday probably would have been higher had it not been for the warning.

Eidenberger said one man had told him the storm sounded "like four trains cracking up."

Fond du Lac Police Capt. Gustave Schmitz said there had been "tremendous damage" on the southeast side of the city of about 30,000 persons about 60 miles northwest of Milwaukee.

The storm smashed into a section of modest homes, centering in an area eight blocks long and five blocks wide.

"It's a mass of destruction," according to Schmitz, who said at least 200 homes had been damaged or destroyed. He said he could not estimate the loss.

Rising winds and thick gloom also gave a warning in Fond du Lac where no injuries were reported.

However, two persons were injured when a house trailer was flipped by the wind at Taycheedah, about eight miles northeast of Fond du Lac. The winds smashed all of the buildings except a house on the Carl Krug farm in the same area. Krug said all members of his family escaped injury.

Cleo Slams Guadeloupe; Razes Town

Aims Lethal Wind At Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico Area

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Cleo battered the rum and banana islands of Guadeloupe Saturday with at 115 miles an hour winds and left the main city of Basse Terre looking like a battlefield.

Then Cleo revved up to 120 m.p.h. and aimed her lethal winds at the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

FOUR INJURED

At least four persons were injured in Guadeloupe, but no one was reported killed, possibly because of the ample warning.

However, property damage was severe. The streets of Basse Terre and other cities in the seven-island group were strewn with uprooted trees, telephone poles and wires. A report said it looked like a battlefield after a bombardment.

Communications with the sugar and banana plantations in the interior were cut off. But first reports said these crops had been damaged heavily.

Highest winds recorded in Basse Terre were 93 m.p.h., but the Weather Bureau said peak winds were 115 m.p.h. on the southern tip of Guadeloupe.

After hammering at the French islands for about three hours, Cleo churned into the eastern Caribbean on a steady 20 m.p.h., her course to the north-northwest.

St. Croix, resort island just east of Puerto Rico, was lashed with gales in the early evening. Unless Cleo veered, St. Croix was due to be hit with sustained winds of hurricane force.

About 1,400 U.S. National Guardsmen were evacuated from summer training bases in Puerto Rico as Cleo, the season's first hurricane, whirled toward it. The Guardsmen were airlifted in 23 planes to MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa, Fla.

Gov. Luis Munoz Marin of Puerto Rico called an emergency Cabinet meeting to arrange for precautions, including evacuation of low-lying coastal areas.

Puerto Rican National Guard planes flew away to safer fields, many to the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Naval ships left confining ports for calmer seas.

Epidemic Hits Houston Area

HOUSTON (UPI) — At least 71 persons showed symptoms Saturday of having encephalitis, the dread sleeping sickness that is suspected of causing 14 deaths in Houston. Authorities warned the epidemic is getting worse.

City, state and federal medical men and officials worked to rid Houston and its suburbs of the culex mosquito. The female culex mosquito spreads encephalitis.

The 71 persons with symptoms that affect spine and brain included 11 children and about 60 adults. Children and elderly persons are most seriously affected.

Monroe Man GOP Elector

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —The 10 Republican presidential electors for the Nov. 3 ballot were chosen Saturday at a meeting of the GOP state central committee in New Orleans.

One elector was named from each congressional district, two at large. The nominees will be submitted to the state attorney general's office for certification.

Charlton Lyons of Shreveport, chairman of the committee, was named to one of the at large posts. Tom Hall of Lake Charles was named to the other.

Electors from the eight districts:

1st, Norman W. Pendergast, New Orleans; 2nd, Richard Hag New Orleans; 3rd, Charles de Gravelle, Lafayette; 4th, Charles T. Beaird Jr., Shreveport; 5th, John B. Woodburn, Monroe; 6th, James H. Boyce, Baton Rouge; 7th, Dr. Hubert C. Owen, Jennings; 8th, George Hall, Alexandria.

CIA Officer Voices Doubt Of Viet Win

Suggests Parley To Discuss Peace; U.S. Denies View

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Central Intelligence Agency officer has voiced "serious doubt that victory can be won" in South Viet Nam and has suggested the eventual outcome might be a negotiated settlement. Administration sources said Saturday this is not the U.S. government view.

The conclusion that no military end to the war against Red guerrillas is in sight was expressed by Willard Matthias, a member of the CIA's Board of National Estimates, in a June 8 paper on "Trends in the World Situation."

Matthias wrote that the Communist Viet Cong have stepped up their offensive and the counterguerrilla effort "continues to flounder" under poor prosecution by the Saigon government.

CIA OFFICER

Continued large scale U.S. campaign and an end to "further political deterioration within South Viet Nam" could at least achieve "a prolonged stalemate," the CIA officer said.

Matthias said there is also a chance that future developments "could lead to some kind of negotiated settlement based upon neutralization." French President Charles de Gaulle has suggested neutralization of the area, an idea coolly received by the U.S. government.

Administration sources made the 50-page document available after learning it would be published in the Chicago Tribune.

A cover sheet to Matthias' paper, signed by Sherman Kent, chairman of the National Estimates Board, stated that the document was circulated "for information." The paper "has general board approval, though no attempt has been made to reach general agreement on every point of it," Kent said.

Matthias wrote that "the guerrilla war in South Viet Nam is in its fifth year and no end appears in sight."

Mississippi Demo Delegates Hurl Murder, Red Charges

STATE SEN. E. K. Collins of Laurel, Miss., representing the regular all-white delegation to the Democratic national convention from Mississippi, addresses the credentials committee in Atlantic City Saturday. Collins' delegation is being opposed by a predominantly Negro group from the recently-organized Freedom Democratic party. The committee will decide upon which group to seat. (AP Wirephoto)

LBJ Leaves Party Dangling On Pick Of Vice President

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — Mississippians traded charges of tolerating murder and receiving Communist support in preliminaries Saturday to a Democratic National Convention dangling in doubt about its vice presidential candidate.

One of the possibilities for a place on the party ticket with President Johnson, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, flew into town with word that he had had no word from the White House.

And Johnson was quoted in Washington as having said he still had several persons under consideration and would disclose his choice early this week.

The convention opens Monday.

Democrats here groped around for some way of avoiding at the first session a harmony-shattering fight involving Mississippi delegates, civil rights, and the accusations that flew Saturday.

These developed in the Credentials Committee where a predominantly Negro delegation contested the right of the regular Mississippi delegation to seats. A Negro woman in tears testified to being jailed and beaten.

The committee put off until this afternoon a decision on what to recommend that the convention itself do about the Mississippi situation.

Talk of some kind of compromise floated around. But the Mississippi Freedom Democratic delegation of 64 Negroes and four whites insisted it would have no part of one.

'BAMA CHALLENGED

The Credentials Committee also heard a challenge to the Alabama delegation's right to sit in the convention, on grounds the state's presidential electors are not pledged to the national Democratic ticket.

This case and three lesser ones involving Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Oregon also were held over for consideration by the committee Sunday.

It was at a session with 30 of the nation's 34 Democratic governors that Johnson left the question of a running mate wide open.

Gov. Carl E. Sanders of Georgia told reporters he had asked Johnson about his choice. He quoted the President as having said "he felt like this was one of the hardest and one of the most important decisions he has had to face in public life."

Humphrey said upon his arrival on the convention scene that he had had no indication at all whom Johnson might select.

Asked whether he would stage a campaign for the nomination, he said he was leaving the choice completely to Johnson — "Whoever he decides on will be okay with Hubert Humphrey."

Did he feel nervous as the hour draws near for the decision?

"No, I'm just feeling very good."

Humphrey said he doubts there will be a floor fight over the seating of Mississippi delegates and that he himself would "continue to push to make the convention as harmonious as we can" without sacrificing principles.

"The Democratic party doesn't need any fight," he said. "The only ones we ought to fight are the Goldwaterites."

Before the Credentials Committee each of the rival Mississippi delegations got an hour to present its arguments and rebuttals.

Joseph L. Rauh Jr., Washington lawyer and member of the District of Columbia delegation, directed the supporters of the Freedom Democratic party (FDP).

"I have only an hour," he said, "to tell you a story of terror and tragedy in Mississippi. I shall show you that the Mississippi Freedom Democratic party is the loyal, legal and long-suffering Democratic party of Mississippi."

FDP Chairman Aaron Henry, a Negro druggist in Clarksburg, told the committee if it polled the Mississippi regulars it would find many members of the White Citizens Council and the Ku Klux Klan. He said the regular party consistently had fought everything the national party stands for. He called on the committee to strike "the greatest blow for freedom since the Boston Tea Party" by seating FDP delegates.

LBJ Signs Import Curb For Meats

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Johnson signed into law Saturday a standby curb on meat imports which sponsors and opponents agreed may never be used.

The legislation grew out of demands by domestic cattle growers for restraint on beef imports which they said were helping drive domestic cattle prices to a disastrously low level.

PRICE HIKE

Opponents of the curbs argued that the problem was overproduction. They said the effect of even a standby curb would be to drive up meat costs to the housewife.

As finally passed after a long House-Senate wrangle, the bill covers beef, veal and mutton. It provides that if imports exceed those during the period 1959-1963, plus a "growth factor" geared to increases in domestic production, plus a margin of 10 per cent, the President shall impose quota restrictions on imports.

However, the President is authorized then either to suspend or increase quota allotments if he finds that the national interest requires it, either for economic or security reasons.

One of the factors he would take into account presumably would be the affect of the curb on friendly nations now relying heavily on meat sales in this country. One of these is Australia.

Western senators tacked a much more stringent curb onto a minor House bill providing for free import of wild birds and animals for zoos and other exhibition purposes.

The House provision stayed in the bill in a House-Senate compromise draft. Backers of the beef curb claimed, however, that most of the teeth were extracted from the Senate's meat rider.

DISSIDENTS DISSATISFIED

Khanh Holds Talk With 10 Students

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — President Nguyen Khanh and 10 oppositionist students sat down over tea and cigarettes Saturday and argued about how South Viet Nam's government should be run. The students came away dissatisfied and apparently left in effect an ultimatum for Khanh to make changes by Tuesday.

The students told Khanh they wanted what amounted to an American-style democracy for South Viet Nam — with election of a civilian government. Khanh replied this was a target to aim for but claimed that in view of the war against Communist guerrillas that kind of government is at present impractical.

ULTIMATUM

In their ultimatum, the students demanded in addition to civilian government, lifting of the present state of emergency and the elimination of what they called "anti-Buddhist revengists" from the government. Unless Khanh meets these demands by the Tuesday deadline, student demonstrations —now limited — will be enlarged, the students said.

Buddhists also have been demonstrating against the government but during the meeting with the students Khanh received a letter he said came from Thich Tam Chau, one of the two top Buddhist leaders. It offered tentative support to Khanh's government, revamped last Sunday to restore a powerful presidential system. Khanh had been premier.

"Vietnamese Buddhists support the revolutionary government under your leadership on the condition that your government respect all democratic liberties, including religion," the letter said.

"Buddhists are determined to fight against every scheme to rebuild the authoritarianism of the (Ngo Dinh) Diem regime, and also to fight all elements of the old regime that have not yet been eliminated."

Earlier Buddhist leaders demanded the release from house arrest of four generals who were ousted from command when Khanh seized control Jan. 30.

U.S. Expecting Little Cutting Of Arms Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next military budget may be little if any smaller than the one finally approved by Congress for the current fiscal year.

The budget for the year beginning next July 1 already is in formative phase.

When Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara returns to his desk this week from a vacation, he will give heavy priority in his work schedule to a stepup in the long and complex business of hearing what the armed forces think they need, accepting or eliminating proposals, and wrapping the over-all Pentagon money request into a package for President Johnson by late fall or early winter.

The four primary items for the present fiscal 1965 military budget total about $46.7 billion in appropriations, compared with $48.2 billion for fiscal 1964. However, other items, including military assistance, construction and civil defense, may add almost $3 billion to the current-year outlay.

The downward trend in military spending, resulting from several factors including reduced outlays for missile procurement, can be offset by cost boosts for other things, including aircraft procurement and a possible additional pay raise for the armed forces.

The latter seemed hinted in President Johnson's announcement Friday that he had directed McNamara to accelerate review of programs for military pay, housing and medical care.

The total for military personnel, which includes pay, is up in the current budget at $14.5 billion, compared with $13.8 for the previous year. Another pay increase, such as may evolve from Johnson's remarks Friday could bring the total in the next budget still higher.

AFTER BAKAVU CAPTURE

Missing Americans Found Alive, Well

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (AP) — A tough U.S. Army colonel, thirsty, hungry and his clothes in rags, wept Saturday as he slapped the back of his Congolese colleague, Col. Leonard Mulamba, in Bukavu.

He was Col. William A. Dodds, 50, Alexandria, Va., a rugged counter insurgency expert who had been scheduled for retirement a week ago.

With him, and in the same tattered condition when they reached Bukavu in a Congolese paratrooper's jeep, were Lt. Col. Donald V. Rattan, 39, also from Alexandria; Lewis R. Macfarlane, 25, Seattle, Wash., vice counsul in Bukavu; and their Congolese escort, Capt. Tshimanga.

The men had been missing since Wednesday and feared dead after blood-smeared identity papers of one of them had been found on the body of a rebel killed in Bukavu Thursday.

With Macfarlane, who is fluent in Swahili, the men left Bukavu Wednesday morning in a jeep headed toward Burhale, 31 miles to the southwest. They had heard Congolese troops there had been scattered by a strong rebel column.

The four men met retreating Congolese troops who told them rebels were close behind. But wanting to know more, they kept on. A few miles short of Burhale, they came upon the first rebel jeep. It was armed with a machine gun and immediately opened fire. The four jumped from their jeep and ran into the bush.

They hid in a Bashi tribe plantation, sleeping in a small abandoned building, later cautiously resuming their way to the east. Dodds was hoping to reach the Ruzizi River near Kamaniola.

Reaching a Bashi village Friday night, they were arrested and threatened with death, but an injured man said he knew Dodds and pleaded for his life and that of his companions. He was the nephew of Mwami (Queen) Kazi Astrida, the local sovereign, whom Dodds had met at her residence in Walungu last week.

CARNIVAL CONTINUES

Girl's Fate Causes Villagers To Mourn

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — "We'll never get over this."

The little Cincinnati suburb of Fairfax, which waited and watched two days for the fate of little Debbie Dappen, died a little itself Saturday.

It mourned for Debbie, 4, victim of a slaying.

"I'm just sick." "I feel just terrible." These were some of the other comments heard on the village streets about the tragic death.

And while the village mourned, its big annual event — a street carnival with rides and games, went on as planned, but without the usual carefree atmosphere which usually marks the firemen's festival.

A boy, 14, "who gave us no trouble before" has admitted killing Debbie and hiding the body under his parents' front porch, Fairfax Police Chief James Finan said.

Being held in Juvenile Center is George Rickey Jr., who police said gave them their only concrete clue in the two-day mystery Friday afternoon when he reported finding one of Debbie's brown and white shoes, with the laces still tied, in a culvert that previously had been thoroughly searched.

Finan said the crew-cut Rickey enticed Debbie into his home early Wednesday afternoon, on the pretext of playing hide-and-seek, and made sexual advances to her.

Finan quoted the boy:

"I stabbed her with a kitchen knife to stop her screaming, then I choked her because I was afraid she'd tell her mother."

The body was found hidden among debris under the porch by Frank Weikel, police reporter for the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Finan said the case was almost closed when he and other police questioned the boy further about finding the shoe, and he confessed three minutes later.

The coroner's office said Debbie died of suffocation and had been dead about 48 hours. The body was placed under the porch in broad daylight, authorities said, and the girl was already dead at that time.

"We're taking this as well as anyone can under the circumstances," Finan said. "It's a sad community, and the Dappens are taking it real hard."

Clare Luce Available For N.Y. Senate

NEW YORK (AP) — Clare Boothe Luce, saying that Sen. Barry Goldwater needs an advocate in the New York Senate race, declared herself available for the Conservative Party nomination Saturday night, the party announced.

Mrs. Luce would oppose Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, who has so far refused to endorse Goldwater, and the probable Democratic nominee, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

J. Daniel Mahoney, state chairman of the Conservative Party, announced Mrs. Luce's decision in a news release.

Neither Mrs. Luce nor Mahoney could be reached immediately for further comment.

Mrs. Luce, playwright wife of the editorial chairman of Time and Life magazines, is a former Republican congresswoman from Connecticut and former ambassador to Italy during the Eisenhower administration.

She made a nominating speech for Goldwater at the San Francisco convention, and is co-chairman of the National Citizens for Goldwater Committee.

There were reports that Goldwater telephoned Mrs. Luce earlier this week and tried to persuade her not to enter the Senate race, for fear she would hurt Keating.

While Keating is running independently of the national ticket, he is supported by both the state and national GOP organizations.

Goldwater reportedly told Mrs. Luce that he believed that all Republicans would be supporting the national ticket before the campaign was over.

Before the recent GOP unity conference in Hershey, Pa., Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York met with Goldwater and urged him to use his influence to prevent the Conservatives from running a candidate against Keating.

The Conservative Party, which operates only in New York, split off from the Republicans several years ago, protesting what it called the liberalism of Rockefeller and Sens. Keating and Jacob Javits.

The GOP this year refused to allow the Conservative party to join in sponsoring its slate of electors pledged to Goldwater for president. The Democrats and Liberals will have a joint slate for President Johnson.

The Conservatives will not enter a separate Goldwater slate because it would lessen his GOP total.

Mrs. Luce, in the statement released by Mahoney, said:

"I am still hopeful, as is the Conservative Party state leadership, that unity will be achieved behind the Goldwater-Miller ticket in New York, but it is clear that this has not yet occurred.

"As matters now stand, Sen. Goldwater will enter this crucial presidential race without an advocate for his cause at the senatorial level in the New York campaign.

"Under these circumstances, I have determined that I can best serve the interests of Goldwater-Miller victory in New York and the nation by declaring my availability for the Conservative Party nomination for the United States Senate."

The Conservatives will nominate a candidate at a state convention Aug. 31 in Saratoga Springs.

Mahoney in the past has boosted Mrs. Luce's possible candidacy, and said he thought she would pull as many votes from Kennedy as from Keating.

Kennedy, endorsed by Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York Friday, is expected to declare his candidacy within 48 hours and resign as attorney general on Sept.1 — the date of the Democratic state convention.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton of Amsterdam has promised a floor fight for the nomination.

AWARDED SILVER STAR

Johnson Decorates Widow Of Soldier

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Saturday Mrs. Harry A. Walling's bravery "is no less than her husband's."

Mrs. Walling, widow of an Army sergeant killed in South Viet Nam June 19, proved it during a White House ceremony in which the sergeant was awarded posthumously the Silver Star.

Mrs. Walling managed not to cry.

The ceremony over, she kissed the President on the cheek. He took her tenderly by the arm and led her into his office where she met some of her husband's friends, fellow sergeants of the green beret Special Forces.

Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance read the citation after Johnson had said: "No medal, no words, no eulogy of ours can honor him so highly as he honored our country and our cause."

The citation spoke of Walling's gallantry in action, complete disregard for his own safety and courageous leadership as advisor to a South Viet Nam combat patrol which was subjected to intense fire from entrenched guerrillas.

Mrs. Walling, whose name is Barbara Jean, is a petite mother of three children — the oldest aged three. She makes her home in San Jose, Calif.

Johnson read from a letter she wrote two nights after she learned of her husband's death. It went to the other wives of her husband's unit.

Coroner Rules Woman's Death As Suffocation

SHANNON, Miss. (AP) —Lee County authorities identified the unclad body of a woman found slumped in a house trailer here.

Coroner Bill Sides said Saturday she was a 25-year-old Wisconsin resident, Mrs. Shirley Ann Hughes Morgan. He said she apparently died of suffocation during an epileptic seizure.

She was said to have been a recent resident of Memphis. She came to the rural northwest Mississippi community only with a purse.

She was allowed to stay at the trailer by two men who were away at work.

A check with Memphis police revealed she had been arrested there on a loitering charge and had listed her home as Ridgeland Center, Wis.

Bukavu Struggles To Restore Vital Services As Fighting Rages

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Battered Bukavu struggled Saturday to restore vital services knocked out in three days of fighting. On the outskirts of the city, Congolese soldiers fought holdout pockets of leftist rebels.

Six Belgians were believed among the more than 200 persons killed during this week's fierce street battles, but three Americans missing during the rebel occupation were found safe and well after the rebels were driven back.

A radio message to the American Embassy in Leopoldville said the three, a consular official and two Army officers, were picked up "near Bukavu."

They are Lewis R. Macfarlane, 25, Seattle, Wash., vice consul in Bukavu; Col. William A. Dodds, 50, and Lt. Col. Donald V. Rattan, 39, counterinsurgency experts assigned to the U.S. military mission to the Congo.

The officers' families in Alexandria, Va., were notified by the Army Saturday morning the men were all right.

"I hadn't given up hope at all. It has been three long days of waiting," said Mrs. Dodds. They have three children, 14 to 25.

Mrs. Rattan said her four children, 5 to 17, "came bounding out of bed, wanting to know what had happened. There were no tears though. I always thought it would turn out alright."

Recapture of Bukavu, last important toehold of the government of Premier Moise Tshombe in the northeast, was seen here as boosting Tshombe's fight against the Communist-backed rebels.

Routing of the insurgents by Col. Leonard Mulamba's Congolese soldiers was the first key military success in months, during which time the insurgents have taken control of Albertville and Stanleyville, in the eastern Congo region.

Mulamba's men, and the 150 former Katanga gendarmes credited with helping him launch the successful counterattack, were pushing on through hillside African shanty towns surrounding Bukavu, mopping up rebel bands.

U.S. Air Force transport planes had flown the gendarmes from Leopoldville to the Kamambe airport in neighboring Republic of Rwanda, only three miles from Bukavu. The reinforcements enabled Mulamba to fight back out of the city's European quarter, to which he had retreated.

By the time the rebels withdrew, the city was a ruin. Water, electricity and telephone service had been knocked out.

Congolese army headquarters in Leopoldville said that among the rebel dead were a "general," three "colonels" and three "majors."

The Belgian Embassy in Leopoldville denied a report that a number of Belgian army officers were missing in Bukavu. Belgium has around 200 army and air force personnel in the Congo, serving in noncombatant training and administrative roles for the Congolese army.

Bukavu, known as Costermansville during the days of the Belgian Congo, is a city of more than 10,000.

CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY

UGF Soliciting To Start Monday

United Givers Fund "Construction Industry Week" begins tomorrow, when some 150 contractors start soliciting between 2,000 and 3,000 construction workers for their Fair Share gifts to the UGF drive. The solicitation is to be conducted throughout Ouachita Parish.

The week has been set aside by various contracting groups and by unions in the Building and Construction Trades Council for the benefit of United Givers. A number of contractors associations, including the Associated General Contractors (AGC), the Painting Contractors, the Electrical Contractors, and major contractors on the Olin Mathieson job have agreed to a special one-time payroll deduction plan through which on-the-job workers may make their donations to the UGF campaign.

The AGC resolution states, "Whereas, the United Givers Fund, Ouachita Parish, is vital to the progress and well being of Northeast Louisiana, and Whereas, the Associated General Contractors of America, is dedicated in its efforts to better the communities which it serves, and Whereas, the AGC is in a position to carry forward the purposes of the United Givers Fund, with respect to participation of the Construction Industry and its employees in the 1964 fund raising campaign.

"Now therefore, be it resolved that the Associated General Contractors of America does hereby endorse the plans of the United Givers for securing a four-hour pay deduction from construction employees residing or working in Ouachita Parish, and does urge upon its members and associate members the contribution of their own gift to United Givers, the donation of four hours' pay by their employees and the deduction of such amounts from their payroll as their employees may authorize as a contribution to United Givers".

The Building and Construction Trades Council endorsement enumerates the important functions carried on by the UGF agencies and calls on its members to support the United Givers Fund to enable its agencies" to continue these services, as well as to indicate to our fellow citizens in this area, that we union members also realize our civic responsibility and are willing to do our share."

The regular United Givers drive kicks-off the last of September.

Part Of South Third Closed For I-20 Work

The Monroe Police Department has announced the closing of South 3rd Street from Ouachita to Calypso for further construction of streets for the I-20 system.

Traffic going north on highways 15 and 165 and residents normally using South 3rd and Hall Street will detour at Ouachita east to South 5th, then north under the I-20 bridge to Hart Street, then from Hart north to Oak Street and then west from Oak to Hall Street.

All detour routes will be clearly marked, the department announcement said.

All residences and businesses in the area will still be accessible to traffic with only that portion of South 3rd under the I-20 bridge to be closed to traffic.

Bomber Killed In Viet Blast

The theater is across the street from the U.S. Information Service building and a U.S. officers billet. No Americans were reported hurt.

The bomb ripped a two-foot hole in the floor of the Eden Theater just behind the screen and about six feet from the Ocean Bar where the U.S. servicemen were.

U.S. Nudging Satellite To Proper Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — In something akin to a pushball game in space, scientists nudged a man-made star Saturday toward its intended goal — a seemingly stationary orbit some 22,000 miles above the earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported highly successful preliminary efforts to position the satellite Syncom 3 — dubbed the "Olympic Star" —over the Equator.

Using radio signals to activate peroxide gas jets on the satellite, space scientists hope to perfect its alignment in time to relay telecasts of the 1964 Olympic Games in Japan.

"We're in no hurry," said Alton E. Jones, head of communications satellite projects at the space agency's Goddard Space Flight Center at Greenbelt, Md.

"It is such a good orbit that we can take our time," he said.

The Olympic Games in Tokyo don't begin until October.

The satellite's communications relay system was also working well, playing back the Star Spangled Banner beamed at it from Guam by the communications ship Kingsport.

The intended orbit is 22,289 miles above the Equator near a spot over the International Dateline.

Although the satellite will be whirling through space, its orbit will be so synchronized with the earth's movement that the vehicle will appear to hover over the same spot — if the scientists are successful.

Friday night, they corrected a westward drift and started the satellite moving eastward toward the International Dateline.

In addition to the westward drift, the satellite was also slightly off the target of a perfectly circular orbit — 22,289 miles from the earth at all times.

Pathet Lao To Halt Fighting

TOKYO (AP) — The pro-Communist Pathet Lao called Saturday for a halt in the fighting in Laos to create "a good atmosphere" for peace talks in Paris Monday, a New China News Agency broadcast said.

The agency quoted a Pathet Lao spokesman at Khang Khay on the Plaine des Jarres in central Laos as having told a news conference the government forces should halt attacks.

The Pathet Lao leader, Prince Souphanouvong, left Hanoi, in North Viet Nam, en route to Paris. The Red Chinese agency said Souphanouvong stopped off in Peking.

At a banquet in Souphanouvong's honor Saturday night, Red Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi blamed the United States for the civil war in Laos.

"The United States has never ceased a series of incidents in Laos, thus making the Laotian situation worse and worse," Chen Yi said.

The news agency quoted Souphanouvong as having said: "The cause of the grave situation was the armed intervention of the United States in Laos, as well as in Cambodia and Viet Nam.

"The aim of the meeting in Paris is to attain a better understanding among the three Laotian political forces, reach unanimity on measures helpful to the solution of the Laotian question, and promote the reconvening of the 14-nation conference (which guaranteed Laos' neutrality in 1962)."

Prince Souvanna Phouma, the neutralist premier of Laos, said upon his arrival in Paris Friday that he, too, hoped the Paris talks would lead to another Geneva conference on Laos. Souvanna will meet with Souphanouvong and Prince Boun Oum, leader of Laos' rightist faction.

At Khang Khay the Pathet Lao spokesman claimed Souvanna's forces still were bombing and strafing Pathet Lao positions, the Red Chinese news agency said.

Their actions "clearly showed that U.S. imperialism and its lackeys insisted on their plan of extending the Laotian war and were trying to undermine the Paris talks and prevent the convening of the 14-nation international conference on the Laotian question," the spokesman said.

The Pathet Lao also charged that U.S. jet fighters in four batches had made reconnaissance flights over Khang Khay Saturday and that Laotian T28 fighter-bombers had bombed and strafed villages on the plain.

JONESVILLE (Special) — Farmers in Catahoula Parish and other areas are reminded that Sept. 30 is the deadline for filing for the federal tax refund on the farm during the fiscal year July 1, 1963, through June 30, 1964.

The tax which may be refunded amounts to four cents per gallon and may total several thousand dollars to farmers in the area.

Applications blanks may be obtained from any of the major oil companies in the area or from the county agent's office.

"There is no red tap to filing for the refund," a spokesman of the Louisiana Oil Marketers said. "All that is necessary is to know how many gallons of gasoline was purchased during the fiscal year and signing the application form.

Citizens Councils Growing Throughout United States

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

Spurred by spreading racial conflict outside the South, spokesmen for the Southern Citizens Councils say their states rights views are winning widespread acceptance in the North and West.

As proof, council officials cite formation of a Citizens Council for Greater Los Angeles, the hiring of full-time, paid organizers in California and Washington D.C., and "a lot of interest from the Pacific Northwest, Missouri, Wisconsin and Indiana."

"We have been flooded with cries for help," said Louis W. Hollis, exectuie director of the Citizens Councils of America, a coordinating group.

BIG GROWTH

He said there are councils in "about 28 states," adding: "Our greatest growth has been since the beginning of the Kennedy-Johnson administration because of its liberal and racial policies. We have added field directors in some areas and are adding others. We expect to have someone in every state."

Hollis will not name the 28 states, and said there is no way to tell the total council membership, which he estimates at "between 80,000 and 100,000 in Mississippi alone."

"Our limitations are due to the size of our staff," he said. "We're in a second Reconstruction period and this one is spread all over the nation. We are receiving calls from Rochester (N.Y.) and other places where they've had trouble."

The Citizens Council movement, dedicated to what it calls "state rights and racial integrity," began just 10 years ago in Indianola, a Mississippi delta town.

Fourteen men met 62 days after the U.S. Supreme Court issued its 1954 school desegregation decision and formed the Indianola Council. The movement spread rapidly throughout Mississippi.

Officials assert that the local councils are autonomous, supported by local dues, with all policy coming "from the bottom up."

RACIAL TROUBLE

Many deny accusations that they are racist, but those in the South have consistently supported segregationist activities.

State and national council associations were formed in 1954 and 1955 to coordinate activities, and help organize new groups.

Their growth outside the South is attributed by Hollis to spreading racial troubles that have made other parts of the country realize, in his words, that they would have to do something to preserve "local self-government, home rule, and constitutional government."

Clyde Reynolds, a suburban San Marino insurance man elected president of the brand new Los Angeles Citizens Council, agrees.

"There are a lot of people who are liberals," he said, "who are worried about their private property. They may have certain general liberal views, but when it comes down to a man's house, to a man's apartment, to who do I live next door to, these people agree with us."

Reynolds group was formed last June in Pasadena. The Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel canceled their reservation when protests were lodged with the management.

It claimed 300 members at its Aug. 3 meeting, and jumped that estimate to nearly 1,000 ten days later.

"The growth in membership is fantastic, beautiful," said Reynolds. "We've had so many people anxious to join that we just haven't had time to sign them all up. We have a vast cross-section of all America, of all parties — yes, quite a few liberals — we have people who are supporters of Rockefeller, we have supporters of Johnson."

WALLACE

"We are trying to get (Alabama Gov.) George C. Wallace out here for a talk in about a month," he said. "Our field director, Kent Steffgen, is working on plans for opening additional councils. We are considering one in the San Francisco Bay area, and perhaps another in, say Santa Monica or Orange County. We envision a group in each district, in each incorporated city, with members actively taking part in city government."

Although the councils say they are nonpolitical, the Los Angeles group is in the middle of a hot political issue.

It is supporting a constitutional amendment to be voted on in November that would strike down California laws against housing discrimination.

"We are opposed to laws," said Reynolds, "which would force a person to sell or rent to a Negro. We are dedicated to preventing the government's infringement on the property rights of the individuals."

He denied, however, that the group is anti-Negro, saying Negroes have "the same rights we do," adding: "We all feel the Negroes have gone too far too fast; they haven't earned it."

In Washington, D.C., the national council has hired Joseph Mitchell, former city manager of Newburgh, N.Y., to set up groups in Maryland, Virginia, and the nation's capital.

Mitchell was the center of a bitter controversy in 1961 when, in an announced effort to sweep relief rolls clear of chiselers, he announced a welfare program that included cutting unwed mothers off relief if they continued to bear illegitimate children, and required able-bodied men on relief to work for the city 40 hours a week.

His plan stirred up considerable opposition and was later dropped.

TWO MONTHS

Mitchell has had the job about two months, travels 1,500 miles some weeks, and is careful about whom he approaches.

Since each local chapter is autonomous, he says, "my only role is to show them how to get started. I'm careful who I see. We don't talk to the opposition if we can help it. Once we form a chapter anyone can join in, but we're very careful who controls it."

Mitchell said he looks for doctors, lawyers and legislators — "men who are respected in their communities. We are looking for members on our side who carry the most weight."

Arabs Having Trouble With Communicating

CAIRO (AP) — A frustrated scholar studying the Middle East remarked that his most notable discovery was "the inability of Arabs to communicate with Arabs." This said jest was an oversimplified but largely true observation of today's Arabic-speaking world.

The Arab summit conference of last January, which resulted in a greater outward display of solidarity than ever before, did little to patch up the real divisions among the 13 Arab League states.

A second conference in Alexandria Sept. 5 will probably be more of the same. Ambitious political, military and economic measures will be discussed. Rivalries and differences will be glossed over.

What unifies the Arab world is a common religion, common written language — though spoken in many ways — a shared ancient history and a common suspicion of colonialism. To that has been added what the Arabs view as the insult of Israel.

But even as politicians speak of a common front against Israel, any well informed traveler can quickly find countless reasons why Arab unity doesn't really work.

For one thing, there are only poorly developed physical links despite shared borders. One potholed coastal highway links the Atlantic nation of Morocco with distant Cairo. Driving it is an adventure, not a commercial proposition. Road connections on the Arabian Peninsula are often as bad, or worse.

Most travel is by air, impossible to the mass of people.

Getting an exit visa from an Arab country, if you are an Arab, usually is a highly uncertain and always time-consuming affair.

The varying postal systems range from fair to horrible. A letter from Cairo to Beirut — some 300 miles — can take two weeks or more. A cable from Cairo to Amman moves best if routed via London.

Commercial agreements are usually made in American dollars, British pounds or French francs. Trade among the Arab states is relatively small.

Internal censorship — present in all Arab states in varying degrees — limits the flow of ideas.

There are deeply rooted personal antagonisms, which are not the result of borders imposed by colonialism as some Arabs like to claim.

A BUST OF the late President John F. Kennedy, installed across Atlantic City's boardwalk from Convention Hall, stirs memories among vacationing strollers of the President who was assassinated exactly nine months ago Saturday. The Democratic party meets Monday in the Convention Hall to nominate President Johnson as its presidential candidate in the November election. (AP Wirephoto)

LBJ Certain U.S. Questing After Success

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Saturday he is certain the American people in this election year do not want to turn away from what he termed the road to "sure success" — the policies of his administration.

In a nationally broadcast speech to a fathering of Democratic governors in the East Room of the White House, Johnson sounded one of his sharpest appeals yet for a November election victory.

Facing 30 governors — four Southern executives skipped the meeting — Johnson said that "others may believe and others may say that Americans want to pursue some other course" than those which he said have brought peace and unparalleled prosperity during four years of Democratic rule.

Johnson added that he does not believe Americans wish to turn away from sure success, to put their prosperity in peril or their well-being in doubt.

The chief executive began by recalling that nine months ago Saturday — almost to the every hour — he became President upon the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

Democrats List Platform Section

ATLANTIC CITY (UPI) — Highlights of the first section of the Democratic platform, entitled "An Accounting of Stewardship:"

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Since January, 1961, the administration has achieved a 150 per cent increase in the number of nuclear warheads and a 200 per cent increase in total megatonnage available to the Strategic Air Command; 1 60 per cent increase in tactical nuclear strength in Europe; a 45 per cent increase in the number of combat-ready Army divisions; an 80 per cent increase in special forces trained to deal with counter-insurgency threats.

"We have successfully met the challenges of Berlin and Cuba, and attacks upon our naval forces on the high seas, thus decreasing the prospect of further such challenges and brightening the outlook for peace."

PEACE CORPS

"Forty days after taking office President Kennedy established the Peace Corps. The world did not change overnight. Neither will it ever be quite the same again. The foreign minister of one large Asian nation has called the Peace Corps 'the most powerful idea in recent times.'"

ALLIANCE FOR PROGRESS

"The Alliance for Progress has immeasurably strengthened the collective will of the nations of the Western Hemisphere to resist the efforts of Communist subversion that conquered Cuba in 1959 and then headed for the mainland."

ATLANTIC COMMUNITY

"Since 1961, we have progressed in the building of mutual confidence, unity and strength. NATO has frequently been used for consultation on foreign policy issues. Strong Atlantic unity emerged in response to Soviet threats in Berlin and in Cuba. Current trade negotiations reflect the value of the Trade Expansion Act and the utility of arrangements for economic cooperation. NATO military forces are stronger both in nuclear and conventional weapons."

ECONOMIC GROWTH

"There are a million and a half more Americans at work today than there were a year ago. Our present prosperity was brought about by the enterprise of American business, the skills of the American work force, and by wise public policies."

FULL EMPLOYMENT

"There have been more than a million full-time jobs added to the private profit sector of the economy in the past 12 months. This is the largest increase in any one-year period in the past decade."

DISCRIMINATION

"As a consequence of the enforcement of (President Kennedy's) executive order, not only has discrimination been eliminated in the federal government, but strong affirmative measures have been taken to extend meaningful equality of opportunity to compete for federal employment to all citizens."

AGRICULTURE

"Total net farm income in 1961-63 averaged nearly a billion dollars a year higher than in 1960. Total net income per farm was 18 per cent higher than in 1960.

HEALTH

"More health legislation has been enacted during the past 3½ years than during any other period in American history.

NATURAL RESOURCES

"During this administration two historic conservation measures were enacted. These were: The wilderness bill, and the land and water conservation fund bill, which will together do more to help conserve outdoor America than any legislation passed in a generation."

SPACE

The U.S. space program "has enabled the United States to challenge the early Soviet challenges in space booster power and to effectively counter the Soviet bid for recognition as the world's leading nation in science and technology."

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

"Since 1961, we have moved boldly and directly to eliminate waste and duplication wherever it occurs. For example, the Department of Defense has embarked on a far-reaching program to realize savings through improvements in its efficiency and management."

CIVIL RIGHTS

"From the establishment of the President's Committee on Equal Employment opportunity, under the chairmanship of then Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, on March 6, 1961, to this moment, the efforts of the administration to provide full and equal civil rights for all Americans have never relaxed. The high point of achievement in this effort was reached with the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the greatest civil rights measure in the history of the American people."

BERLINER CAPTURED

BERLIN (UPI) — Communist guards captured an East Berliner Friday night as he attempted to flee to the West through a border cemetery, West Berlin police reported Saturday.

The Reds sighted the unknown escapee as he tried to make his way to the cemetery wall, which has been topped with barbed wire and incorporated into the Communist anti - refugee wall across Berlin. The guards fired two flares and ordered the escapee to surrender. Five guards led him away with his hands up.

Collision Fatal To 3 Residents Of New Orleans

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Three persons were killed Saturday when two cars collided about three miles south of here on rain-slick U.S. 71.

State police identified them as:

—Salvador J. LoCicero, 27, of Metairie, a supervisor of probation for the Orleans Parish juvenile court.

—Miss Joan A. Connelly, 25, of New Orleans, a social worker for the state Department of Welfare.

—Lydia Ann Gorman, 15, of New Orleans, a ward of the Youth Study Center.

All three were riding in a small foreign car. Three persons, including another girl in the small car, were injured.

The girl was identified as Bernadette Murallo, 15, also of New Orleans.

Troopers said the two girls were being driven to Louisiana State Industrial School for Girls near Pineville.

LoCicero was driving the small car, owned by Miss Connelly, officers added. They said he apparently skidded and lost control on the curve.

An auto driven by Elliott V. Cleveland, 62, of Opelousas, La., hit the other car in the right side. Cleveland and his wife Lillie, 62, were admitted to a hospital for treatment.

A third car, driven by H. J. Poole Jr. of Lecompte, La., swerved into a ditch to avoid the wreckage. No one was injured in that car.

Ambushed Troops Made Stiff Fight

BEN TRE, South Viet Nam (AP) — The last time anyone remembers seeing him, Capt. Byron C. Stone from Mobile, Ala., was blasting a Browning automatic rifle into the coconut trees.

First Lt. William D. H. Ragin, from Arlington, Va., a tall infantryman, had grabbed a machine gun from a dead Vietnamese crew and was firing point blank at about 60 advancing Viet Cong guerrillas who a few minutes earlier had been mistaken for government reinforcements.

Sgt. 1.c. Tom Ward, from Fayetteville, N.C., was facing destiny somewhere further away with a ranger company he was advising. And 1st Lt. James M. Coyle from Rockville, Md., was pumping bullets at the enemy with a carbine.

Then a bullet spun Coyle to the ground. Stone, who was nearby, appeared to be about to run to his aid.

The Viet Cong also started moving in and Coyle, with a muttered exclamation, picked up his carbine again and started firing.

That was the last anyone could remember of four Americans caught Thursday evening in probably the bloodiest 60 minutes of fighting in South Viet Nam this year.

They apparently stood their ground while death and confusion prevailed around them. But they, too, were to die in the Communist ambush that overwhelmed and routed a government ranger and infantry unit and inflicted 206 casualties.

Sgt. Ward was found Friday morning with bullet and bayonet wounds, attesting to hand-to-hand combat. Vietnamese soldiers carried his body to a pagoda.

Lt. Ragin was lying dead near a stream, with bullet wounds in the face and back. The Vietnamese ranger battalion commander remembered telling Ragin an order had been given to retreat. Apparently Ragin elected to stay.

Lt. Coyle's body was lying near that of Capt. Stone. Both had been riddled with bullets.

"All four of them were professionals," a senoir American adviser commented. "They were made of the stuff that makes men heroes. In a thing like this, with their training, they just had to stand and fight and I guess they had to die."

American advisers in this 7th Division area were shocked with the death of all four advisers, the only Americans with the two Vietnamese units.

"This could happen again tomorrow," said one.

The main reason for worry is vulnerability of many Vietnamese units that go out on operations. The ranger unit of 110 men that Ward and Ragin accompanied, for example, was apparently moving in one long column when it was hit by Viet Cong fire at the end of a long day on the march.

The 250-man infantry unit Stone and Coyle advised was technically going by the book, with one column on either side of a small highway.

Antiambush techniques are becoming a major concern of advisers. Ambushes are being sprung at a rate of about three a week, with remarkable success for the Viet Cong. Americans are known to have advised strongly against moving units in a manner which attracts an ambush, but very often this advice is ignored.

The units accompanied by the four Americans caught Thursday had marched about seven miles over difficult terrain to reach the initial objective, a village burned to the ground that morning by the Viet Cong in Kien Hoa Province, 45 miles from Saigon.

Late in the afternoon two depleted ranger companies and two regular infantry companies were told to survey damage at another village. Moving along an old highway, they were mowed down by the Viet Cong.

Police Probing Furniture Store Burglary Here

Monroe police are investigating a furniture store burglary and three attempted thefts from soft drink machines at service stations.

Officers reported that someone entered Joe and Bill's Furniture Store at 501 DeSiard St., late Friday or early Saturday and took $31.75 from an unlocked safe.

The burglar entered the store from the rear by pulling open a shutter and crawling through an unlocked window, police said. A store employe told officers two offices had been rifled but apparently nothing was missing.

Officers discovered two drink machines had been pried open at service stations at Jasmine and Forsythe and at the Forsythe Shopping Center on the northside and another pried open at a station on Apple and Jackson Streets on the southside. The incidents were reported early Saturday morning.

Only the coin boxes containing no money were missing.

Scott O'Neal of 603 Rochelle St., Monroe, told officers a telescope, fly rod and casting rod were taken from his auto late Friday night while it was parked in the lot at Harrison and Catalpa Streets. The estimated total value of the items was $75.

A Negro man and his wife, Nathan Randolph, 47, and Lorraine Randolph, 35, of 503 Jack McEnery St., Monroe, drew $500 bonds each after they were booked Friday night on charges of aggravated battery.

Officers said the couple got into a fight and Randolph hit his wife with a crutch. The woman then hit him with a pipe. Both were charged at 10:10 p.m.

Willie Edward Davis, 22, Negro, of 3313 Church St., Monroe, was booked at 12:55 a.m. Saturday for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and reckless driving. Officers arrested him in the 2400 block of Grammont Street.

Monroe police booked William Baker, 28, Negro, of 1813 Griffin St., Monroe, about 4:30 p. m. Saturday on five charges including DWI. Other charges were reckless driving, resisting arrest, damage to property and driving after his driver's license had been revoked. Collective bond was set at $810.

Also arrested in Monroe Saturday on DWI and reckless driving was Hiram V. Shaw Sr., 55, of 1105 S. 10th St., Monroe. He was apprehended in the 1400 block of S. 2nd Street and booked at 8:15 p.m.

TOURIST LOOST

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The Irish Tourist Board reported Saturday that 1.5 million tourists, during the year ended in March, brought $159 million into the Irish economy. This was an increase of 8 per cent in money spent and 42,000 in the number of visitors over the previous year.

TO AID NICARAGUANS

Monroe Doctor Flying To Siuna

Dr. Charles Black, president of Holidays for Humanity of Shreveport, Saturday announced Dr. Oliver H. Vreeland, of Monroe, will leave today for Siuna, Nicaragua.

Dr. Vreeland said he and his daughter, Kathy will fly to Siuna, a small town located in the mountains and jungles of Nicaragua.

The population of Siuna is approximately 5,000, with another 10,000 inhabitants in the surrounding area. The majority of the population is unable to pay for medical attention.

The sloe source of medical treatment at the present time is a small out patient clinic operated by a Catholic mission and staffed by a Maryknoll Sister nurse. Holidays for Humanity of Shreveport has been furnishing doctors on a rotating basis for this clinic. The primary medical problems of the area are infections, parasitic diseases and malnutrition.

Dr. Vreeland will spend approximately ten days in Siuna.

Holidays for Humanity of Shreveport is a non-profit corporation recently formed by a group of Shreveporters. Their purpose is to assist in providing medical attention and treatment to the needy in various parts of the world, with specific emphasis on Siuna in the immediate future.

A number of doctors, mostly from Shreveport, have volunteered to spend time and bring their services to those sick and in distress. The travel expenses are paid by the corporation which receives tax - exempt donations from those wishing to participate in this people - to-people assistance program by making a financial contribution.

Dr. Vreeland is a native of Oregon, attended schools and medical colleges there. He completed his residency in radiology at Mayo Clinic. Since 1957 he has been practicing at the St. Francis Hospital in Monroe. His speciality is radiology. He is a member of The American Medical Association, The Ouachita Medical Society, The American College of Radiology, and the Radiological Society of North America. He is President of the Catholic Physicians Guild in Monroe.

Dr. Vreeland is married and the father of six children. He is a member of Our Lady of Fatima in Monroe.

Judge To Give Further Thought On Rights Suit

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A federal judge Saturday continued until further notice a hearing on a sweeping suit brought by a civil rights group against the state of Mississippi.

The Council of Federated Organizations seeks to strike down state laws which place requirements on out-of-state attorneys and deal with visitation of state prisoners.

COFO named the state, the Mississippi Bar Association and the state board of penitentiary commissioners in the suit.

U.S. Dist. Judge Harold Cox of Jackson said he would continue the request for a temporary injunction without setting dates.

COFO attorney Victor Robinowitz filed eight affidavits which he said further demonstrated occasions when out-of-state counsel were blocked in efforts to represent clients in Mississippi.

COFO seeks to overthrow state law which requires out-of-state attorneys to win approval of two members of the Mississippi bar before being able to practice in state courts.

The civil rights group also seeks to knock down a recently passed law setting up restrictions on out-of-state attorneys from visiting certain state prisoners.

COFO has argued in their complaint that out-of-state attorneys were needed to represent civil rights workers as state attorneys were too reluctant to handle racial-related cases.

Jackson Downs Mets To Stop Streak At Five

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Jackson exercised his usual mastery over the New York Mets for eight innings Saturday but needed help from Lindy McDaniel in the ninth to earn the Chicago Cubs a 3-2 victory that ended the Mets' winning streak at five games.

Jackson, never beaten by the Mets, now has a 9-0 record against them with three victories coming this season. He gave only five hits up to the ninth but was relieved after Ron Hunt tripled and Jbe Christopher singled for a New York run with none out in the ninth.

Christopher also accounted for the first Met score in the seventh, getting a triple on a drive that Doug Clemens misjudged and scoring on Ed Kranepool's single.

All the Cubs' runs came in the fifth off rookie right-hander Gary Kroll, who made his first major league start in impressive style.

Honor Guests Fail To Arrive At China Feast

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The people of Nationalist China feasted Saturday with no visible evidence of the guests for whom they had prepared food and wine.

Legend has it that on the 15th day of the 7th moon of the lunar calendar — which corresponded this year with Aug. 22 — the spirits of the dead come from their world to visit living relatives.

Tradition requires that the visitors must be fittingly entertained during their annual visit. Preparing for the visit provide especially for food and wine.

The guests do not touch the food and wine and their practical hosts consume the feast themselves.

Variety Of Books Found At Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books on a variety of subjects were added to the book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week and there should be books to interest every type of reader. "Beyond the ruling class" by Suzanne Keller is a very interesting study of the elite classes in modern society. "The New Cold War" by Edward Crankshaw gives a good picture of the foreign relations between Russia and Red China", Organized Labor in American History is a very fine set of books dealing with the history of American labor. "It's Your Money, Waste and Mismanagement in Government Spending" by Ladislas Fraago is an alarming account of how our tax money is being spent in Washington. "The Birth of the Constitution" by Donald Barr Chidsey is an infornal history of this most important document. Alan E. Nourse is the author of "The Body" which is another interesting volume of the Life Science Library Series.

There are three interesting new cookbooks this week "The Food and Drink of Mexcio" compiled by George C. Booth will interest all of those who enjoy Mexican cookery. "My Favorite Maryland Recipes" by Avalynne Tawes is an interesting book of famous Maryland recipes. "The Casserole Cook Book" published by Better Homes and Gardens contains many excellent suggestions for meals which can be cooked ahead.

There are several interesting books in the religious field. "The Second Session" by Xavier Rynne is an account of the debates and decrees of the Vatican Council. "Men Possessed by God" by Jacques Lacarriere is a most inspiring account of the desert monks of early Christendon. "The Way Home" by James Saxon Childers is an account of the beliefs of the Baptists. "Better Plays For Today's churches compiled by John W. Bachman and E. Martin Browne will be most useful for church groups.

Many people in this community are interested in the hobby of archery and we are happy to have a new book on this subject to offer them. It is "The Complete Book of Archery" by Robert Gannon. A new play is "A Case of Liberal" written by Henry Denker and based on the book "My Life in Court" by Louis Nizer. This book was extremely popular when it came out and many of our patrons will want to read the play. Since this is the anniversary of Shakespeare's birth (the 400th) there have been a great number of books published about Shakespeare. Two new ones were received this week. A. M. Eastman is the author of "Shakespeare's Critics", while Frank E. Halliday is the author of "A Shakespeare Companion, 1564-1964." Both of these books will be useful to the student and to the general reader. Many people are interested in books, which help them understand their ailments. A new one in this field is "Understand Your Symptons; a layman's guide" written by Joseph D. Wassersug.

There are two new biographies. "Soldier and Statesman; General George C. Marshall" is a very complete study written by Harold Faber. "The Union vs. Dr. Mudd" is an account of what happened to the physician who attended John Wilkes Booth. The author of this book is Hal Higdon.

Your Public Library has a growing book collection, with material on many subjects. If you are not using it, we invite you to do so.

Before World War One, the world had never known a killing ground like Verdun, where a million men died, or the fields of Flanders, where whole villages .disappeared .and .the ground still is barren and sterile. Fifty years later the horror of death still lies over the countryside.

By RODNEY ANGOVE

VERDUN, France (AP) — You can still get a fright in the fields of Flanders, where some of World War's bloodiest battles were fought.

Not long ago a tourist was quietly surveying the trenches. Suddenly shouts and gunfire echoed from a neighboring wood. Terrified, the tourist jumped into a trench and splashed through ankle deep water toward a shelter. A rusty British helmet crumbled under his foot.

He found himself in a tunnel about four feet high. Dripping walls reflected his match. He sloshed along in the stream, 20 yards, 50 yards before daylight showed.

TOURIST REASSURED

There the shooting was louder, but the tourist was reassured. What had sounded like a ghostly battle turned out to be a Flemish hunting party near one of the ragged scars of World War I.

TOURISTS NOW WALK where death moved ruthlessly 50 years ago near Ypres, Belgium. Hill 62, a Canadian stronghold of the Ypres salient where half a million men died in World War One, has been preserved with its rusting and gruesome mementos of the bitter fighting. Someone has assembled a helmet and pieces of armor into the suggestion of a soldier. The shells, guns, knives, and other reminders of war were found in Hill 62 trenches at Zillebecke. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

It was in August, 1914, the first month of the war, that a tightly locked mass of more than a million men moved in a giant arc from the Belgian border towards Paris. The huge German army was pushing back the French, Belgians and the first units of the British Expeditionary Force.

The French command believed the only way to make war was to attack, attack, and then attack again. It had no tactics against the terrible new weapon, the machine gun, nicknamed the "reaper" because of the way it could cut down whole fields of riflemen.

The French lacked barbed wire and their own machine guns to throw up a defensive line. Besides, the generals believed Frenchmen didn't fight well in trenches.

NO HELMETS

The infantry had no helmets. They wore bright red trousers, a wonderful target for German marksmen, because the dye industry needed a government subsidy.

The Germans planned to sweep just east of Paris and double back toward Verdun, enveloping the French army in a huge sack. But the French foot soldiers, mostly farm boys, clung stubbornly to their weapons and would not break.

The Germans were 17 miles from Paris when French headquarters noticed that their right wing was beginning to veer away from the capital. The Germans thought they had won the game and could turn to mop up the encircled French. This was a major mistake. The time was ripe for a counter-attack on the exposed German flank.

It was ordered by Gen. Josep-Simon Gallieni, commanding the troops in Paris. This was the battle in which he rushed 6,000 reserves to the front in Paris taxicabs.

The Allies pushed the foe across the soft, grassy Marne valley and might have won a decisive victor except for the prepared German defenses along the Aisne River.

Frustrated, the Germans attacked Ypres, Belgium, trying to cut through Flanders to the channel port where British reinforcements were coming in. The Belgians opened the sea gates and drowned men and mules by the hundreds north of Ypres.

FRUSTRATED BY THE FRENCH at Verdun, the Germans attacked Ypres, Belgium, in an effort to get through to the English Channel. Stopped here, too, they dug in, and this front became one of the bloodiest of the World War One. Here, during the autumn of 1914, Allied soldiers protect themselves as best they can as they shiver around tiny fire in a trench near Ypres. (AP Newsfeature Photo)

SHELLED TO RUBBLE

The Germans dug into the halfmoon of low hills south and east of Ypres and shelled the picturesque town of 17,000 into a pile of rubble.

Monuments and 170 military cemeteries today testify to the horror of the trenches around Ypres. Local historians say nearly half a million men of both sides died in the Ypres salient. The British alone count 42,000 of whom no trace was ever found.

Commanders could think of no way to break the stalemate of the stinking trenches. The only innovations were those designed to kill more soldiers. Artillery was king.

On bitterly disputed Passchendaele ridge in Flanders, the Germans released gas for the first time. The French Zouveg who caught the full blow, suffered 20,000 casualties.

On the long French front, commanders adopted reckless tactics to break the trench deadlock of 1915, 1916 and 1917. The assault weapon remained masses of running men. But they couldn't punch through and tens of thousands fell without changing the outcome of the war.

VERDUN WORST

The worst was Verdun, possibly history's greatest killing ground, where the Germans tried to wear down the French nation by systematically annihilating its men. They suffered equivalent casualties from deeply drawn reserves.

Between 400,000 and 500,000 men died on the principal 12-mile front that for years afterward remained sterile. The flesh and bones of men were churned up with the clay by thousands of cannons, sometimes firing a week's production of shells in a single barrage. Infantrymen were buried in one bombardment, disinterred in the next. Today a concrete shelter preserves a score of rusty rifle muzzles and bayonets protruding from a 20-yard trench that was slammed shut like a book.

A million men died in an area half the size of Rhode Island around the Verdun salient, from Saint Mihiel through the Argonne forest.

BLOTTED OUT

Some sectors were so blotted out by shells that advancing infantrymen met only silence for hundreds of yards. Today, silence is formally requested for the men "whose blood impregnates every square foot of this ground."

The sites of entire villages are overgrown with brush, barely enough stones having been salvaged to construct simple monuments.

Visitors by the thousands still view the area from the 200-foot American monument at Montfaucon or the high Douaumont Ossuaire literally "bone yard" where human fragments were gathered in a central pile.

The British use of tanks in large numbers and the newly arrived American forces helped turn the tide in 1917 and 1918. The townspeople of Chateau-Thierry remember how the 120 American machine gun crews stopped the second German drive on the Marne, where picnickers now lounge on the grass and children feed white swans.

'FOUGHT LIKE DEVILS'

"They fought like devils," said Fernand Beaujean, 75, a local historian whose house still bears the ashes of a World War I shell. He started to relate his own battle experience, but choked up in tears.

All combatant nations were badly hurt, but France was crippled. About 1.4 million men were dead, a 1 to 28 ratio of the entire population. More than 73 per cent of the army had become casualties. In one village, not a single male returned.

"Nobody won the war," went the solemn saying.

Convention Scoreboard

By ARTHUR EDSON

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) —Why, this hardly seems like a Democratic party meeting at all.

Delegates are pouring in for their national convention starting Monday. Huge Convention Hall is ready. Lyndon B. Johnson has promised to drop by for the formalities.

But where is that distinguishing Democratic trademark, the all-out brawl?

Not since the heady days of Franklin D. Roosevelt has a convention promised such harmony.

Look back to 1948, that incredible all-night session in Philadelphia, when the South walked out and Harry S. Truman hung on grimly.

Then 1952 and 1956, those exhilarating affairs that wound up with the less-than-eager warrior, Adlai E. Stevenson.

And 1960, that long, costly march through the primaries that led to John F. Kennedy's relentlessly fought battle in Los Angeles.

CHANGE OF VIEWS

This year. Well, this year men of stature in the party who in 1960 were giving reasons why Lyndon B. Johnson couldn't be nominated, and shouldn't be elected if he could, are telling you that Johnson can't miss and he has that spark of greatness.

So here we are. Johnson a shoo-in for the nomination. His vice presidential choice, whoever he may be, certain to be a shoo-in too.

Only the innate querulousness of Democrats is a reminder that they may squabble over anything, which delegation to seat, what platform plank to accept.

However it is made, history is history. George Washington, without lifting a finger, was handed the presidency. Abraham Lincoln won by craft and courage against overpowering odds.

Historians rate these two as our greatest presidents.

Let's look briefly at those you'll be reading about, or watching or listening to as they make history here during the convention.

John M. Bailey, Democratic national chairman:

A veteran observer believes this week's National Democratic Convention will be minus much of the color and action which have characterized it in other years. Here is a verbal view, past and present, of the elements of which conventions are made.

Looks like a 59-year-old city ward-healer. Bald, cigar on the ready, twinkling eyes, hearty laugh, who's-for-playing-cards air. Don't let this fool you. Behind that bluff exterior lurks a Harvard law graduate and a first rate politician.

Has spent his entire life in Hartford, Conn. State Democratic leader since 1946. Is tremendously proud that he has helped push back political frontiers. His boy, Abraham Ribicoff, who is Jewish, was elected governor of Connecticut. His boy, John F. Kennedy, was our first Catholic presidentt.

Latest rumor: This may be Bailey's last stand, that Johnson will replace him with one wearing a longtime LBJ brand. Maybe, maybe not. Johnson needs to run big in the big cities, and in John Moran Bailey he has a man who speaks city language.

John McCormack, speaker of the House of Representatives, chairman of the convention:

Splendid example of the great American dream that any poor boy can rise to the top. One of 12 children, 9 of whom died in infancy or in their youth. When John was 13, his father died and the boy went to work as a newsboy, an errand runner, a law clerk.

His late brother, Edward McCormack, once said:

POOREST FAMILY

"We're not proud of it, but we don't shun the fact that we were the poorest family in South Boston."

John William McCormack, 72, has been in the House since Nov. 6, 1928, and has been its speaker since 1962.

Sen. John Orlando Pastore of Rhode Island, keynoter:

Volatile: Can shout over minor matter, remain icy calm when the going is really rough. Son of an Italian tailor who died when John was 9. Mother later married his father's brother.

Small, only 5 feet 5, he's ready to cut anyone down to size with one of the sharpest tongues in the Senate.

"Rhode Island may be a small state," the small senator once said, "but its representatives can make plenty of noise."

Mrs. Dorothy McElroy Vredenburg Bush, convention secretary:

OLD HAND

Old hand at roll calling. First got the job in 1944, when she was 27. One senator, dazzled by Mrs. B's dazzling looks, took 35 minutes to introduce her, then apologized for not being able to do his subject justice.

Emery L. Frazier, chief reading clerk:

At 68, the pride of Whitesburg, Ky., has an unusual record. He started as reading clerk at the 1932 convention, when Roosevelt was nominated for the first time.

William N. "Fishbait" Miller of Pascagoula, Miss., official doorkeeper:

Has similar job in the House. If you see a portly man hustling about the platform, making sure everyone is happy, the chances are that you're looking at Miller.

Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, chairman of the platform committee:

WORRIED LOOK

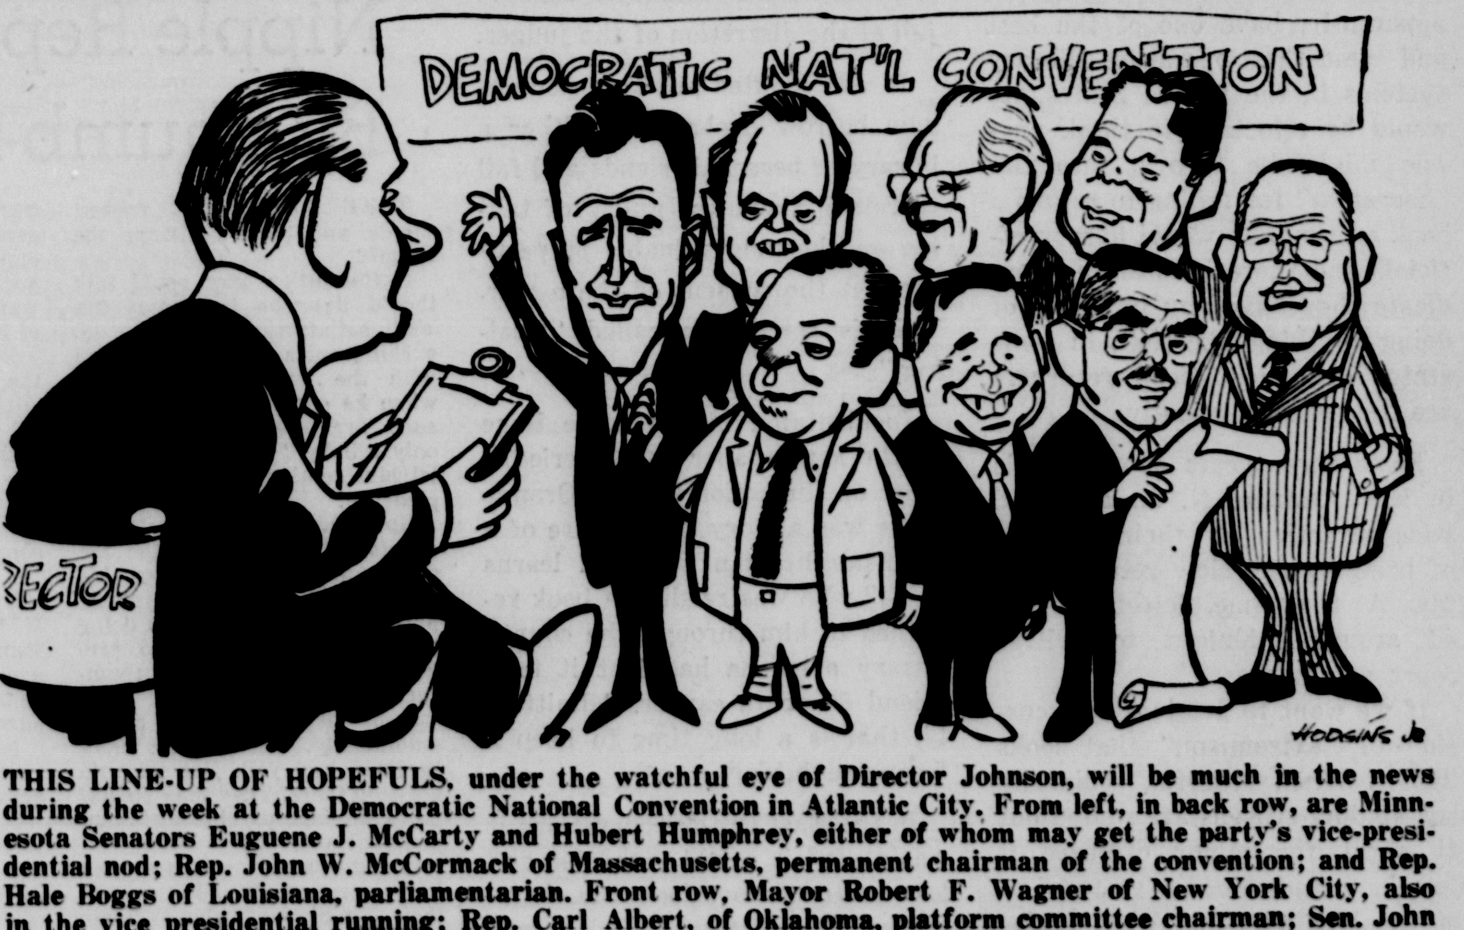
Democratic leader in the House, charged with the job of writing a platform that pleases everybody. Has a perpetually worried look that fits in nicely. A small, 5 feet 4, he's billed as "the little giant from little Dixie." Son of a farmer-coal miner, a fine orator, an excellent scholar. Conceded to be the hottest ball of fire ever to come out of Bug Tussle, Okla.

Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, parliamentarian:

A 200-pound 6-footer who at 50 still has a boyish smile. He's the House whip, rounding up members who might otherwise play hookey.



THIS LINE-UP OF HOPEFULS, under the watchful eye of Director Johnson, will be much in the news during the week at the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City. From left, in back row, are Minnesota Senators Euguene J. McCarty and Hubert Humphrey, either of whom may get the party's vice-presidential nod; Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, permanent chairman of the convention; and Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, parliamentarian. Front row, Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City, also in the vice presidential running; Rep. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, platform committee chairman; Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island, convention keynote speaker, and former Gov. David L. Lawrence of Philadelphia, credentials committee chairman. (AP Newsfeatures Drawing)

No Washington couple is more popular than Corinne and Hale Boggs. Daughter got married recently. More than 1,000 friends showed up for the reception.

"I'm awful glad I was invited," said Lyndon Johnson.

Until those fateful shots in Dallas last November, the rumor in this rumor-saturated town was that Johnson might be dumped from the ticket. Now he's so big it takes the governors of two big states merely to nominate him, John Conally of Texas and Edmund Brown of California.

John Bowden Connally Jr. — 47-year-oll corporation lawyer, handsome, longtime friend of the President. How many other ensigns ever grew up to be Secretary of the Navy?

To Connally, just being here will be a cause of gratitude. On Nov. 22 he was riding in the same car with President John F. Kennedy. Hearing the shots he turned to see if Kennedy was hit. That turn, he thinks now, saved him from certain death, for the shot that hit his arm would have shattered his spine.

He was so badly wounded it was three months before he could sign his name with his right hand.

Edmund Gerald (Pat) Brown — 59 years old, 5 foot 10, inclined to be roly poly. His father operated a cigar store, photo arcade, nickelodeon and shooting galleries.

HANDY WITH QUIP

Maybe this background has helped him to be handy with the quip: "The facts in this case are so simple as to defy explanation by the political experts."

When he first offered his services to the public, for the California Assembly in 1928, he ran as a Republican.

Fate has been kind to Lyndon Johnson.

He'll be here Thursday to accept the nomination. What a way for a politician to celebrate his 56th birthday.

Curiously, the big question — who will get the vice presidential nomination won't be decided here. Johnson will make his choice in Washington and send his decision to party leaders.

In the meantime, Minnesota's two senators, Hubert H. Humphrey and Eugene McCarthy; Gov. Brown of California, Mayor Robert Wagner of New York City, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, Sen. Ribicoff of Conneticut and others can only wait, and pretend they're not waiting.

By nature, conventions are forward-looking, to triumphs they pretend to see ahead.

But this year the Democrats will hold an unusual memorial service:

For Sam Rayburn, that sturdy, nononsensee speaker from Texas.

For Eleanor Roosevelt, whose speeches were for so long fixtures of these conventions.

For John F. Kennedy, who, as even his enemies concede, brought gaiety and charm to bigtime politics.

'Dry-Dock' Hospitals

Who would think, with this country badly in need of additional hospital facilities, the federal government would keep some hundreds of so-called "instant" hospitals, in "dry-dock," "cold storage," "tin cans," or whatever term one may choose for facilities stored away for future use.

Even if not one person in 10,000 in the United States has not known of this situation, it is true. Furthermore, the program is just beginning and when the federal planners have finished they mean to have 10,000 such idle hospitals hidden away in storage at a cost to the people of $400 million. Now sitting around in warehouses are packaged hospitals which have cost the taxpayers $38 million.

One organization that was created for the purpose of making things less terrifying and disastrous for this country if we were to be subjected to a nuclear bombing assault is Civil Defense. Although there has been considerable commendable effort on the part of a good many local citizens throughout the nation to make Civil Defense a really effective organization, it has been difficult to see any constructive planning or action on the part of the federal government. Indeed, the actions it has taken have seemed to be aimed more at spending money than at achieving any real protection in case of attack.

This latest Civil Defense oddity has been brought to the attention of the people by Senator William Proxmire, D., Wis. Said the senator: "Hospital equipment is no safer from nuclear attack in warehouses than it would be distributed to hospitals throughout the country." Such a flash of good sense probably would dazzle the most perceptive of the federal Civil Defense planners.

Once a year some federal employe visits these "dry-docked" hospitals and empties out the expensive drugs adjudged to have passed their usefulness without ever having the chance to save a life or ease pain.

In the past, Civil Defense has spent its money largely with the sign-painters. It has stuck its identification on mail trucks and garbage trucks with impartiality, and has indicated that in atomic fire-storms, safety may be found in "shelters" which might keep out rain but little else. One commentator said:

"It has fabricated city evacuation plans that would work, providing the enemy gave us 30 days' notice and the privilege of postponement, and has squirreled away some special hard biscuits to nibble on, should the horror ever come and should we and the caches survive."

Our government is spending many millions of dollars to finance private hospitals throughout the country. Hospitals in Monroe and West Monroe have received assistance of this sort on several occasions and so have others in North Louisiana. This type of help is among the least repugnant of federal assistance, since it does not offer the opportunity for government control of people's minds, as does assistance to schools.

If the government is to spend many millions for enlarging or building private hospitals and if it is to spend some $400 million for hospital facilities to be used in case of war, it would surely seem wiser to place these "instant" hospital facilities in present hospitals or in new actual hospitals than to put them in warehouses.

There can be no doubt that the facilities would be far more "instant" in hospitals than they would in warehouses. In fact, in case of a sudden nuclear attack by a nation bent on crippling the United States beyond recovery, it is doubtful if the stored hospitals would be of any immediate value. It might be a good many days and perhaps even weeks before they could be put into use. In hospitals, they could be used when needed most — as soon as the first attack occurred.

We would like to believe there is something the government could do that would solve the problem of survival in nuclear war, but until there is, paying out tax money to those who play at it merely adds to the record of great waste the government has compiled.

Overdue Library Books

In Ouachita Parish, where we apparently, have one of the best and smoothest-operating library systems in the United States, we would be reluctant to think anyone might be thrown into the "hoosegow" for failing to return a book on time. So would library officials and there is nothing to indicate they have any intention of doing anything like that. In some states delinquent book returners are treated less leniently.

Some three years ago, officials in East Orange, N. J., attracted wide attention by their methods of bringing the slow returners to taw. At that time, detectives called around midnight to deliver court summonses.

If we want to get into a discussion of "extremism," that looks like it. When peaceful, ordinarily law-abiding citizens are routed out at night for minor offenses it smacks too much of the gestapoism of the late Dictator Adolf Hitler of Germany. Now East Orange has changed its tactics but is cracking down again.

Under the new system, those slow in returning books can be taken into custody on charges of contempt of court if they have ignored library warnings and court subpoenas issued after library officials signed complaints. A little more direct approach to contempt of court charges could be created if the courts simply would issue orders prohibiting anyone from keeping books out longer than they prescribed. Then, anyone who failed to return the books in time would be in contempt of court.

East Orange court warrants, now being served between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m., instead of in the middle of the night, charge criminal contempt of court, which means the defendants could be sent to jail at the discretion of the judges.

It was pointed out that persons who borrow books from either a library or personal friends and fail to return them are guilty of taking and keeping valuable property without the consent of the owner. This is sometimes called "stealing."

Incidentally, in the same issue of the same paper that carried a story on the action in East Orange there was a story and picture of a "self-taught man who still learns at 94" who was reading a book returned to him through the county library after he had lent it to a friend 60 years earlier. Admittedly, that is a long time to keep a borrowed book.

In the East Orange operations it was stated it would be easier and less costly to overlook the delinquents in question than to process them but the effect on other borrowers was taken into consideration. Hundreds of other somewhat less laggard folks will now send the books back in a steady stream, it was predicted.

In Ouachita parish it is customary to charge penny fines for overdue books, depending on the number of extra days they have been kept. Presumably a fine equalling the value of the book ordinarily would be satisfactory recompense for a book lost, destroyed or never returned, although what the attitude would be in regard to out-of-print books no longer obtainable is not known.

The friendly attitude of library officials and workers here should be met with appreciation and proper care in returning books.

Attack Seen

Kelly, La.

To the Editor:

Two Southern Senators, Smathers of Florida and Long of Louisiana, are trying to get in some sneak attacks on Republican Presidential Nominee Barry Goldwater.

Their implication would lead one to believe that the Arizona Senator is not really a friend of the South.

Senator Smathers said the most important issue in the election was the "maintenance of this nation's prestige and respect as the leader of the free world while at the same time keeping us out of a large-scale nuclear war."

He seems to want to make Senator Goldwater a warmonger and to think that if he is elected we would be plunged into destruction. I don't know where one could honestly get this idea from unless it was when Goldwater said he wanted the United States to be strong so that no nation would or could start action that would be disastrous. It seems to me that I remember a great president of the past stating something to the effect that if we are to stay free we shall have to remain strong. Not only are we to stay strong but we can't be appeasement-minded, which is something the Kennedy and Johnson administrations seem to have a passion for.

Russell Long seems to think, or so he would lead us to believe, that Goldwater would try to take away the school lunches from the children if the South didn't integrate. Again, I don't know how one could arrive at this position because Senator Goldwater has been one of the very few of the non-Southerners who has a long voting record in favor of the South running its own affairs.

Even if Goldwater were to support withdrawal of such aid this would not be quite as bad as Senator's Long's running to Washington and getting money for programs that place us in a position where we will not be able to use it as we see fit because it supposedly is a gift from Washington and they have the right to say how it will be distributed. The only thing about this is that Washington can't give us anything without first having taken it away from us. And we always get less back than we had to give.

Louisiana has enough money of its own to finance whatever it needs and if we were to do this instead of asking the federal government to finance such things as women having illegitimate children on the welfare rolls deliberately to keep from working for a living that we don't have enough money to finance the needed projects.

Senator Goldwater has gone on record that he is in favor of re-working the welfare laws so that such misuse would be eliminated. If this were done then a great saving of the taxpayers' money would be realized. He holds this position because he is a conservative and conservatism is the American way.

Yet this is something neither Long nor Smathers has ever been, a conservative. Their position has been more liberal. Liberalism has brought socialism to a position of reality in the United States and a great many senators from the South have been instrumental in enacting non-conservative positions into law. They have done this at the same time making a majority of the people believe they were getting something for nothing.

Helter Skelter Senator

Girard, La.

To the Editor::

In last Sunday's Morning World appeared the above entitled article "Likes outside Senators" in which the author criticized the editor for the editor's lack of consistency, and objectivity in an editorial with reference to Robert F. Kennedys running for U. S. Senate from state of New York, applicably termed as "Helter-Skelter Senators" by the editor. It is easily seen, the hurry and confusion, this move by the candidate displays his frantic attempt to remain in the obstruction of the people's efforts, in their determinations to move the ilk of the political regime, at the helm of our impending destiny, as a great nation. This candidate RFK has contributed to our Helter-Skelter condition, by over riding states rights, trampling upon the constitutional sovereignty of every state in the U. S., even causing destruction to small independent nations all over the world. Pardon me if I am deviating from objectiveness to your thinking, when if you only had kept abreast with the developments for the last 30 years, you would by the simplicity of the total records, without any trouble, see the objective in such movements

States' rights, constitutionally, legalistically speaking is just the opposite seemingly, to what you think it is.

If it is your honest, conscientious opinion that states' rights is to follow the indoctrination of the National Council of churches the only cure for you is to refine your entrenchment of this ecumenical, enigmatic order.

Should the United States ever yield to the situation suggested by the ideas of anyone, (no not anyone, just special ones) to invade the separate sovereign states, in violation of all the laws, upon which our nations has prospered, and become strong, any cult, clique, or even clergy, by immunity of the pulpit, could take over their subtle means of such system.

Nipple Replaced By Thumb-Sucking

TAKE AWAY THE rubber nipple and there's always the thumb!

If the littler ones could talk they'd describe the great fun and satisfaction there is in sucking one's thumb. All's well with the world of the infant when he can indulge himself in such oral satisfaction. "He's only a baby," we say. And then let him continue in his innocent pleasure.

However, as the calendar counts off the days in the life of the infant, it is remarkable how many an understanding parent becomes hipped on doing "just about anything" to prevent the "bad" habit of thumbsucking.

Some actually go to pieces emotionally. The parents may threaten and yell. But they do not stop there. They may spank, go to dentists, psychologists and pediatricians. I've known of some distraught mothers who have even sought advice from their ministers about their child's habit of thumbsucking.

What's behind it all? Most will agree it is not a filthy habit. Parents are fearful that continued thumbsucking will cause jaw deformity. So they tie their child's hands to the crib or bed. They pin down the arms. They paint bitter medicines on the thumb and fingers.

WHAT I SAY NOW may call down on my head the wrath of my dental colleagues. Nevertheless I say it: I think it's more important to worry about the child's psyche than the contour of his jaw. You can't easily convince me that maltreatment of an innocent infant or growing child will not bend or break something in his normal psychological pattern. I have known cases where too much interference with the thumbsucking habit has caused such complications as evident anxiety, inability to feed properly insomnia and bedwetting.

I could go on but I think I have made myself clear. Mothers, calm down. Relax. Stop worrying. It's normal for infants to suck their thumb. I agree that when your child grows into his or her seventh or eighth year and still thumbsucks it can be distressing to watch. But time will take care of it.

Besides, even if there comes the problem of correcting a slightly deformed jaw later on, I'd prefer to deal temporarily with an orthodontist (to repair any jaw deformity) than with a psychiatrist to tussle for years with your child's deformed personality.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: If you had arthritis and you found that you needed about six aspirin tables a day to keep you comfortable (and the doctor agreed it was all right), would it be safe to take it for months? I understand it can be a dangerous drug. — Mrs. D.

Comment: Be thankful you can take aspirin and that it helps you. Any drug has the possibilities for producing undesired reactions in some people. For example, many millions are taking aspirin without distress. Yet, in comparatively few, there are such symptoms as uncomfortable heartburn, bleeding from the stomach or elsewhere. In very few there are intense allergic reactions.

Apparently, you can take aspirin without any trouble. I have known patients such as you who took aspirin for decades, and in much larger doses, without having any dangerous effects.

MR. U.: Dont' be afraid of taking nitroglycerine for your angina. The trouble with many patients is that they take too little rather than too much. Therefore, they suffer pain unnecessarily. Many of my patients have taken over a dozen nitroglycerine tablets daily for years.

Dr. Steincrohn's leaflet, "How To Be a Happy Hypochondriac," will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 15 cents in coin for handling. Address your request to Dr. Steincrohn, in care of this newspaper.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Mississippi Rump Delegation Issue

YOU HAVE TO HAND it to Lyndon Johnson, he will arrive in Atlantic City with the Democratic Party not only under his control, but very glad to be there. The hold he has over the party is in interesting contrast to the hold that Harry Truman had in the spring of 1948, when Democrats from coast to coast were openly lamenting the fact that he was ever born, and Senator Claude Pepper was suggesting that the Democrats draft Dwight Eisenhower and "let him write his own platform." There was revolt in the air in 1948, and the opinion then was that Truman was not a big enough man to handle the destiny of this country. Truman was renominated only because an incumbent President always is. If the delegates had been truly free to vote their desires, they'd have voted for almost anyone else.

Yet Johnson, after only a few months in office, is not only unquestioned lord of all he surveys within his party, he has emerged as the man the Democrats would almost surely vote for if they started now from scratch.

THE ONLY CLOUD on the horizon is the matter of whom to seat from Mississippi. Johnson is of course a compromiser by nature and by training; and one can be sure that he is in touch with both the lilywhite delegation and the primarily Negro delegation, probing for an area of compromise. The philosophical question has to do with whether it is the business of a national political convention to enforce democratic procedures within the individual states. No Democratic convention ever refused to accredit the puppets sent to its meetings by the great party bosses, Nash, Kelly, Pendergast, Di Sapio. Bossism is all right; what isn't all right, some people are saying, is bossism based on race, color, or creed. It is stark clear that the Democratic Party in Mississippi doesn't permit anything like the free participation of Negroes in its affairs; as, until very recently, it did not permit Republican participation in the State's affairs. There will be drama next Monday, and next November much of the South may in any case go for Goldwater, but Johnson will sail through the days immediately ahead unperturbed.

There is the disturbing shadow of his great fortune, whose actual size the editors of Life Magazine have unearthed, and what a formidable treasure house it turns out to be. Fourteen million dollars is almost three times the amount of money John F. Kennedy, according to the most reliable estimates, commanded in his own name And fourteen million dollars besides being a very great deal of scratch, is an extraordinarily large sum of money to have been accumulated during the 27 years when he was working full-time, at modest salaries, for the government of the United States.

It is commonly suggested that the businessman in the family is Lady Bird, whose green thumb as a broadcaster and landbuyer makes her responsible for this heady accumulation of money. There are those who will buy that version, others who will remain skeptical. The former should immediately propose a movement to name Mrs. Johnson Secretary of Commerce, in the hope that she can do for her country what she has done for herself.

THE QUALITY OF Johnson's support is of course different from that of Teddy Roosevelt, and of Jack Kennedy. It is the kind of support that is primarily institutional, rather than personal; the kind that used to go to the senior proconsul in Rome when it came his turn to serve. It is not so much enthusiasm for the man (Who is stirred by Uncle Cornpone?), as it is enthusiasm over the idea that there isn't any other logical, or even seductive, alternative. There is something uncanny about the cyclical pattern of presidential styles.

It is as though there were a law, that one excitement cannot follow another. (Harding followed Wilson; Hoover was followed by Roosevelt, who was followed by Truman.) Johnson, who almost certainly could never have won a popular presidential primary, was precisely the kind of man the nation wanted to succeed the fallen prince. Whether they wanted him merely as regent, or as successor in his own right, we do not, of course, yet know, and shan't until November. We only know that the man who ran fifth in two Democratic presidential primaries in 1960, fourth in another, and first only in Texas where he was unopposed, will be anointed by the Democrats in Atlantic City as a matter of right, rather than historical accident.

Devaluation Hits Brazilian Money

IT WAS A ROUTINE announcement out of Rio de Janeiro dated Aug. 13: "The Brazilian cruzeiro was officially devalued today, after a month in which its price had been sinking on the free market." The Bank of Brazil then disclosed the rates at which it will now buy and sell U. S. dollars.

Just a routine announcement — just another grim reminder of the fact that over thousands of years of recorded history, the fate of paper money has been devaluation — meaning a diminishing of the value of each currency in relation to other currencies and gold.

What paper currencies have not been devalued in this entire generation — covering World War II and violent postwar inflations?

Only four and of the four only one matters — the currency of our land, the proud U. S. dollar.

THE OTHER THREE are the currencies of Honduras, Liberia and Panama — scarcely nations which can claim to be money centers.

The values of all the rest of the currencies of the globe have been officially slashed or wiped out by repudiations, forced exchanges, devaluations, enemy occupations.

Admittedly, the buying power of the U. S. dollar has been brutally diminished by our price inflation since World War II. While the pace of the rise in our cost of living has slowed to a creep in recent years, price increases and the resulting erosion in our dollar's purchasing power were devastating in the first postwar years.

But the significant point is that the official value of the U. S. dollar — in relation to gold and other currencies — remains where it was fixed 30 years ago.

In January 1934, the U. S. Government pledged that it would buy gold from or sell gold to any qualified foreign government or bank or international organization at $35 an ounce.

Today, 30 years later, we still stand ready to buy gold from or sell gold to any qualified source at $35 an ounce.

FOR 30 YEARS, OUR dollar has been as acceptable as gold, freely interchangeable with gold at $35 an ounce. For 30 years, our dollar has been the pivot around which other currencies have revolved and has been the foundation - stone of the free world's trade and monetary system.

Our U. S. dollar is unique in this world. While we are still running in the red in our international accounts and our creditors have enormous dollar claims against our gold reserves, we have held the line. We have kept the confidence of the world's bankers and traders in our pledge, in our resources and in our resourcefulness.

The record of the other currencies of the globe is so shocking that it defies belief. In the August issue of his "World Currency Report," Franz Pick summarizes the changes in the paper dollar value of the world's currency units between Jan. 1, 1940 and June 30, 1964. Here are excerpts from Pick's table on currency devaluations or repudiations.

99.9 per cent loss in value: U. S. S. R., Chile, China, Yugoslavia, Hong Kong, Poland, Albania, Greece, Hungary, Korea, Bolivia, Romania.

MORE THAN 90 PER CENT loss in value: Japan, Czechoslovakia, Brazil, East Germany, Argentina, Italy, Cuba, Laos, West Germany, Algeria, Morocco, Israel, France, Austria, Uruguay, Paraguay, Congo, Guinea.

Between 90 per cent and 50 per cent loss in value: Turkey, Thailand, Iceland, Finland, Spain, Iran, Peru, Ceylon, Egypt, India, Mexico, Ghana, Pakistan, Sudan, Nicaragua, Viet Nam, Nepal, Afghanistan, Cambodia.

Between 49.9 per cent and 25 per cent loss in value: Netherlands, Belgium, Norway, South Africa, Cyprus, Jordan, Australia, Ireland, United Kingdom, Denmark, Venezuela, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Ethiopia, Iraq.

Less than 25 per cent loss in value: El Salvador, New Zealand, Ecuador, Sweden, Haiti, Portugal, Guatemala, Surinam, Canada, Switzerland.

Unchanged in value: Honduras, Liberia, Panama, United States.

Politics And Less

In the United States the biggest news centered around politics, while overseas it was the same old refrain — Cyprus, South Viet Nam and The Congo.

As the week ended, Democrats were gathering in Atlantic City, N. J. for the opening of the Democratic National Convention on Monday. So far, Democratic arguments have been of a minor nature with the biggest development expected over the seating of the regular delegations from Alabama and Mississippi. Mississippi has been challenged by a Negro group and the sate's two representatives to the party's platform committee were not allowed seats.

The major fight seemed to be over the type of Civil Rights plank that will be in the platform, with some southerners trying to tone it down. Negro leader James Farmer of CORE notified the committee that civil rights supporters will demonstrate at the party's convention starting Monday in protest against what he called "The Goldwaterism found in both parties." Farmer and other civil righters, appearing before the committee, asked the writers to pledge new and far-reaching measures for Negro equality, as well as "total enforcement" of the sweeping civil rights law signed last month by President Johnson. An attempt by Georgia to arrange a quiet agreement among southerners on a plank simply pledging enforcement of the law ran into opposition from many other southern states.

The major question mark on the eve of the convention was the identity of the man President Johnson has picked to be his running mate. Most believe it will be Senator Hubert Humphrey. There seemed no question but what Johnson would be the party's presidential nominee. Some opponents were urging that two books dealing with presidential circumstances be read. The two were "A Choice—Not an Echo" and "A Texan Looks at Lyndon."

In precedent shattering appearances, President Johnson allowed top-ranking cabinet officials to appear before the committee. They include Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon. Dillon glowingly told the group that due to economic prosperity achieved by the Johnson administration, a new round of tax cuts next year would be feasible, while Rusk lashed out at critics of the administration's "no win" policy in foreign affairs. McNamara defended Pentagon actions of late and claimed the U. S. was never better prepared militarily.

On the other side of the fence, GOP Nominee Barry Goldwater challenged President Johnson to debate foreign policy, and accused him of leading the kind of administration that tempted aggressors "to plunge the world into war." He also reiterated his charge that Johnson gave the communists nearly two hours' advance warning and shattered the element of suprise by announcing over television that U. S. planes were flying against North Viet Nam bases. Goldwater also dared Johnson to debate during the forthcoming campaign and promised the Republicans would foot the bill. At Springfield, Ill., where he spoke a man called police headquarters and said plans were made to shoot Goldwater. On the flight back to Washington, his plane was diverted to a second airport and guards posted at his Washington apartment. Goldwater also scored with figures his charge that the Johnson administration plans to reduce the nation's nuclear punch by 90 percent in the next decade. The Pentagon denied this, but Goldwater said such denials were only "statistic juggling."

Meanwhile, the fortune of President Johnson and his family hit the spotlight also. Some had estimated it at from $4 to 14 million, but an accounting firm, hired by the President, listed it at $3.5 million. Emphasized in the report was the fact that since Jan. 1, 1954, the family's worth has increased from $737,730 to the present value. Meanwhile Republican National Chairman Dean Burch said the figure was "incredibly low. He said the assets were listed on the basis of cost to the Johnsons which was "like listing the value of Manhattan Island at $24."

On another front, Republican Senator Kenneth B. Keating finally said he will seek relection independently of the national ticket in New York. It appeared that he now would be opposed by Clara Boothe Luce, as the candidate of the Conservative party.

Around The World

In South Viet Nam it was another black week for United States troops. Four more Americans were killed and South Vietnamese troops suffered heavy losses in a Communist ambush. The American military advisers were killed in Kien Hoa Province south of Saigon while the outfit was searching for Viet Cong guerrillas who overran the military post of Phu Tuc on Thursday. Their bodies were recovered Friday. Their deaths brought to 185 the number of Americans killed in the South Viet Nam war.

Meanwhile on Friday Students in Saigon and other cities staged noisy anti - government rallies and demanded that President Nuguyen Khanh step aside in favor of a civilian government. Many of the students shouted that Khanh's dictatorship is even worse than Ngo Linh Diem. The students said they would give Khanh until next Tuesday to give them satisfaction or they would "enlarge the struggle." Khanh was at a seaside resort putting together a new cabinet.

In the black Congo where the Communists are also attempting a take over through rebels, a fierce Congolese army counterattack has driven back the Red-backed rebels from a portion of shantytown African quarter of Bukavu. This is the last important city in northeastern Congo not held by rebels. Assisting in the counterattack were training planes from the U. S. equipped with machine guns and rockets.

The Soviet Union entered the Congo situation with a verbal blast at the U. S., saying American intervention in the Congo was the start of an "African Viet Nam" adding "that the transfer of U. S. paratroopers and armaments to the Congo cannot be assessed otherwise than as the start of the U. S. intervention in that country." The Chinese Reds seemingly are the ones backing the rebels in the Congo.

Earlier in the week, two French UN officials working with refugees in rebel territory in the eastern Congo were killed.

Reports circulated also that rebel leader Pierre Mulele had been killed, but this had not been confirmed. A report said that all of Melele's belongings had been found at a spot where he was believed to have died.

The Cpyrus dispute started boiling again toward the weekend. Two Turkish planes flew over the coast of the island late Thursday after a brisk outbreak of communal fighting near the town of Ktima, which momentarily broke a UN cease-fire.

At the United Nations in New York, Secretary General U Thant warned the UN may have to withdraw its troops from Cyprus ahead of schedule unless additional financial help is forthcoming. U Thant said, however, he thought chances of peace or at least a settlement were improving on the island.

One important development saw both Greece and Turkey announce they were sending their forces back to NATO. Both had pulled out units and planes when the crisis developed sharply a week or so ago.

In another incident, American authorities charged that a Soviet sentry fired about 10 shots at an American Army sedan in East Berlin last Sunday. News of the incident was withheld until the past Thursday.

None of the four enlisted men in the automobile was hurt by the bursts from a submachine gun. The Americans called it an "unprovoked and undisciplined act." The incident occurred in an unrestricted part of the Soviet sector about six miles east of the wall.

Recent naval encounters have pointed up the need for small fast attack craft such as the PT-boats of the second World War and the Navy finds itself with an embarrassing shortage. Considering them obsolete, the Navy had either sold, or given away or sunk as targets in naval exercises nearly all of its several hundred PT boats. With the increase in brush-fire wars and the importance of counterinsurgency tactics, the Navy now has reversed its position and is hastily trying to build up a new fleet of boats ... When the children grow old enough to object. A team of psychiatrists recently asked 12 beaten wives, from a predominantly mid-class suburban area, when they finally lowered the boom on their roughings up, and found that the children ended the beatings. Since the late Aly Khan's old flame, Bettina, and his son, the Aga Khan, quarreled over publication of her memoirs, old girl friends of other European famous men seem to be getting more discreet. French actress Gisell Pascal, longtime love of Monaco's Prince Rainier in pre-Grace days, has decided to withdraw publication of her memoirs which reported, reputedly in full details, their friendship.

Domestic Issues

Racial flareups continued in various parts of the nation the past week. The focal point was Dixmoor, Illinois, near Chicago where 1,000 Negroes rioted for five hours Monday before 200 shotgun carrying police restored order. More than 50 persons, most of them white, were injured when Negroes stoned their autos. The riots occurred again on Monday and Tuesday nights, but eased off by Wednesday. However, riots were expected in other northern cities, despite efforts of President Johnson and some of his Negro leaders to curb them — until after the election at least .... Meanwhile, broadcasts from Communist Cuba and Red China have been pouring out a torrent of advice to American Negroes to take to the streets in armed revolutionary violence and even guerrilla war. Many of the Negro movements in the South particularly have the backing of Communist. And at Jacksonville, Fla., the first conviction for contempt under the 1964 Civil Rights Act was leveled against William Chew, manager of the Palms Congress Inn at St. Augustine, along with his corporation. Both were ordered by a federal court to pay $400 in fees toward the costs of attorneys for the integrationists who brought the complaint. A deputy sheriff, Charles Lance Jr., was ordered to resign as deputy and pay $200 of the plaintiffs' cost ....

IN WASHINGTON, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield indicates Congress faces a long session after the recess for the Democratic National Convention. Meanwhile President Johnson pulled out all the stops Wednesday night to salute what he termed a constructive, compassionate, cooperative Congress — a Senate and House that have dealt kindly this year with major administration proposals. He invited all members of the Congress to the back lawn of the White House for dessert, coffee, and a specially produced Broadway show. He praised this session of Congress and said "it has enacted more major legislation — met more national needs, disposed of more national issues, than any other session in this century or the last." Several score singers and dancers, imported from New York at taxpayers expense presumably, staged the production of music and dances. Later in the week, House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts said out of 52 major proposals Johnson submitted to Congress, 37 have been enacted; an additional six are in conference, two are on the House calendar and two on the Senate calendar while four are in committee .....

PRESIDENT JOHNSON apparently is also optimistic about the outcome of the November balloting. Administration officials say he plans to ask Congress next year to cut excise taxes by $1 billion to $3 billion in time for the nation's 1965 Christmas shopping. Taxes to be placed on the chopping block would include retail levies on jewelry, furs, cosmetics, luggage and women's handbags; certain manufacturers' excises such as those on office equipment and machine tool lubricating oils. Americans supposedly received a $11.5 billion tax cut in corporate and personal income taxes the past March, but many are holding the cut in reserve until income settling up time next April. Both issues make excellent campaign ammunition. ....

THE PRESIDENT, while denying it, campaigned vigorously on many fronts. He signed the $947.5 million so-called anti-poverty bill into law, claiming "the days of the dole in our country are numbered." He failed to explain what the bill was unless it is a dole ... He also signed into law a compromised bill of $1,165,000,000 continuing major federal housing programs for an additional year ...

IN DES MOINES, Iowa, the National Farmers Organization says its members would start immediately withholding meat animals, cattle, hogs and sheep — from the market place in 23 states from the Rocky Mountains to the East Coast — in an effort to raise what it termed the sagging prices farmers are paid for livestock. The minimum prices the NFL is seeking are the same as two years ago: $34.45 a hundred-weight for choice graded beef; $22.75 a hundred-weight for No. 1 and 2 graded hogs, and $29.45 for sheep ...

LIKE HIS FORMER leader, Dave Beck, James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union appeared in deep trouble. He has now been convicted twice, but he claimed in Miami Beach, Fla., the past week that there has been no challenge to his leadership and that there will be none. Hoffa issued the statement after a four-hour meeting of the Union's 15-man executive council. His latest conviction came in Chicago where he was convicted on charges of conspiracy to misuse the union's funds in a $20-million loan scheme. The conviction, which is being appealed, brought four prison terms of five years each, to run concurrently. Earlier he had been convicted in Chattanooga, Tenn., on jury-tampering charges and sentenced to eight years .....

Key Question: What Strategy Should U.S. Follow Next 4 Years

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the foreign policy questions to be decided by the next administration is what strategy the United States should follow to promote the further breakup of the once powerfully centralized Soviet Communist bloc.

The issue may become a controversy in the presidential election campaigning this summer and fall.

The basic questions are not only involved in the political dispute; they range far beyond it.

One uncertainty debated by diplomatic officials recently in private conferences at the State Department is how far the Eastern European countries can loosen their ties with Russia without a risk of triggering Soviet counter-action. Another issue is whether there is a point at which assistance to countries still in the Soviet orbit tends to become "appeasement" of Communism.

INFORMATION

On the basis of all the information U.S. diplomatic and intelligence agents have been able to gather, the Soviet Communist bloc is caught up in the grip of a slow moving but significant crisis. This crisis is compounded of issues of resources, unworkable doctrinal theories, excessive central control and other mistakes which are slowing badly needed economic growth and which have turned food surplus countries into food importing countries.

The roots of the problem go back into the post-war history of Europe, for the monolithic Red empire of the late dictator Joseph Stalin began breaking up in the very year that it achieved its highest peak of centralized Communist control.

That was in 1948, when President Tito of Yugoslavia rejected Stalin's efforts to take over his country's economy and infiltrate its government. In little more than a year the United States, Britain and France began pouring millions of dollars into Yugoslavia to keep it alive as a symbol of independence from the power and authority of Moscow.

Today the policy of the Administration of President Johnson, having evolved out of encouragement given by the United States to other nationalistic hopes in Eastern Europe, is definite generally as a policy of flexibility. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, however, has thought it necessary in recent months to make speeches on "why we treat different Communist countries differently" and in Congress the expenditure of money in aid, the expansion of trade and other actions flowing from the policy have been challenged.

Against this background—and with full knowledge here that U.S. allies are rushing headlong into all kinds of trade arrangements with Russia and the Eastern European countries—the political argument over this question of foreign policy is now rather sharply defined. The definition is to be found in statements laid down by President Johnson; Rusk; chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; the Republican platform recently adopted in San Francisco, and Soviet Premier Khrushchev. Here is the way the differences are spelled out in quotations from the contestants:

President Johnson, before an Associated Press luncheon in New York April 20, having stressed a need for both military defenses and diplomatic probing to improve relations: "Our guard is up but our hand is out."

OUR POLICY

Rusk, in a February speech: "It is our policy to do what we can to encourage evolution in the Communist world toward national independence and open societies."

Khrushchev, speaking at Warsaw in July: "All this is intended to undermine our unity, to divide our countries."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, accepting the Republican presidential nomination: "We must make clear that until its goals of conquest are absolutely renounced, and its relations with all nations tempered, Communism and the governments it now controls are enemies of every man on earth who is or wants to be free."

The Republican platform, calling for firmness toward Communism: "It is accommodation, not opposition, that encourages a hostile nation to remain hostile and to remain aggressive."

Fulbright: "If we persist in the view that all Communist nations are equally hostile and equally threatening to the West ... the West may enforce upon the Communist bloc a degree of unity which the Soviet Union has shown itself to be quite incapable of imposing." Over a period of 15 years the United States has invested at least $3 billion in encouraging Communist governments to take and hold nationalist positions either in spite of Moscow policies or to the fullest extent Moscow will allow.

This U.S. line was implicit in the decisions made on relations with Russia and the Eastern European countries at the time of the Marshall Plan beginning in 1947.

President Truman refused to bar Russia and its satellites from the European recovery program and it was not until Stalin himself rejected the program that the Communist countries could be counted out.

In 1948 when Marshal Tito refused to accept Stalinist domination and was ejected from the Cominform, the United States and other western powers acclaimed the first major crack in the Communist monolith as a triumph for freedom and began aiding Tito in his stand against the Kremlin.

ASSISTANCE

Today U.S. assistance, including loans, grants and military aid stands close to $2.5 billion.

Strong stirrings became apparent in Poland in 1956, but were overshadowed by the outbreak of revolution in Hungary against Moscow dictation.

In 1957, however, the Eisenhower Administration, in order to encourage Polish strivings toward greater freedom, extended $61 million in credits for agricultural machinery and industrial equipment. The United States also began giving Poland food and since 1957 the U.S. food program for Poland has climbed to a total of $538.2 million.

In both Yugoslavia and Poland the pulling away from Moscow was accompanied by specific steps which the United States applauded. The Poles abolished collectivization, stopped jamming U.S. radio broadcasts and allowed the Roman Cathoilc Church a greater degree of recognition and autonomy. The Poles also permitted increased freedom of discussion among the country's intellectuals and began whittling down police power.

Hungary's moves toward greater independence were smashed by Soviet tanks in the streets of Budapest in 1956. Since then, however, the Hungarian government, taking advantage of Khrushchev's more relaxed policies, has embarked on some liberalizing measures in some ways comparable to those in Poland. The United States has sought to encourage Premier Janos Kadar but trade and other ties between this country and Hungary are still at a very low level.

The latest radical change in U.S.-Soviet bloc relations developed in the case of Romania. The Romanians made overtures last year for talks with the United States and other western countries and the talks were held this spring.

The Romanians emerged with a preferred position in economic relations with the United States as compared with other Soviet bloc nations except Poland.

The question of how much freedom the Russians will tolerate within the Eastern European countries is complicated by the fact that Khrushchev's choices are limited by his split with Red China as well as by his peaceful co-existence policies toward the West.

U. S. officials believe, however, that what will be decisive in Khrushchev's thinking will be the questions of Soviet security and the power relationship between Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

The Johnson, Kennedy and Eisenhower Administrations have all been at some pains to assure the Russians that they did not seek any changes in Eastern Europe that would threaten the Soviet Union. This was made clear most dramatically in 1956 when Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who had preached aggressive policies of liberation toward Eastern Europe, decided against military intervention to secure Hungarian freedom.

Wonderful Day Recalled

Paris Celebrated Liberation 20 Years Ago

By DON WHITEHEAD
Written for the Associated Press

LINGERING POCKETS of war broke the pattern of joy on Aug. 25, 1944, the day Paris was liberated from the Nazis. The French 2nd Armored Division and American 4th Infantry had marched in that morning to receive the city from the Germans who had refused to hand it over to the French underground. Here, at left, on the afternoon of the 25th, a French tank shells the burning Chamber of Deputies, still held by Germans. Even now its hard to believe that the tender passion called love could knock out a battle-hardened armored division in the midst of a war. But it happened. I saw it happen in Paris just 20 years ago, when that lovely city was liberated from the Germans in World War II.

The willing victim in this odd instance was the French 2nd Armored Division. Les girls captured it without firing a shot.

The division entered Paris a tough, lean outfit. Most of the men had started their march homeward in the desert of North Africa. They had fought with the British against Rommel's Afrika Korps. They had developed elan and esprit and all that goes into a good fighting outfit. Yet within 24 hours after the division moved into Paris, it simply disintegrated. These Frenchmen were never trained to resist women.

Commanders raged. The Americans were flabbergasted. Orders were issued. But what good is an order when there is no one around to listen to it?

Once Paris was liberated, the tank crews simply walked away from their armor to join the women. For a long time it had been la guerre. Now is was l'amour.

There were tanks parked in back alleys, standing in courtyards, left in parks and standing in the streets. All were empty and silent.

Paris chuckled. Paris laughed. And it was a full week before the lovers could be rounded up to man their tanks and get back to the job of chasing the Germans.

It was all part of the wild, crazy, mixed-up story of the liberation of Paris which reached its climax on Aug. 25, 1944.

That was when the French division and the U.S. 4th Infantry Division moved into Paris. The move was part of a plan agreed upon by the German garrison commander to save the city from becoming a battleground — torn by shells and bombs.

The liberation of Paris had been a certainty from the time Gen. Omar N. Bradley turned Gen. George Patton and his tanks loose after the bold breakout from the Normandy Beachhead in the last days of July.

There had been one bad moment. That came early in August when Adolph Hitler issued an order for a counterattack aimed at shattering the Americans' offensive. The American drive was threatening to engulf the German Seventh Army and to leave Germany exposed in the West all the way to the Siegfried Line.

On the evening of Aug. 6, the tired U.S. 30th Infantry Division had moved into positions near the town of Mortain to relieve the 1st Infantry Division, which was to push on to the east. At dawn the next morning the 30th was hit by the armored spearhead of the German Seventh Army.

The 2nd Battalion of the 120th Regiment was cut off. But it held its position and fought on. Food and medical supplies were dropped by plane but most of them fell into enemy territory. Medical supplies were stuffed into shell cases which were lobbed into the battalion's defense ring.

The battalion held, and so did our other units. The attack was stopped and with its collapse Hitler lost any chance of blocking the Allied Armies in France.

Paris was in the line of the American advance, and as far as Gen. Bradley was concerned, it was no jewel to be gloated over. To him, Paris meant trouble. He knew that once the city was liberated, the allies would have to take over the job of feeding some 4,000,000 people. And every ton of food delivered to Paris was a ton less gasoline for his tanks.

As a military objective, Paris was not important. The important job was to destroy Hitler's armies. For this he reason, planned to by-pass the city. He believed if he could keep his tanks rolling, he could push on into Germany and perhaps breach the Siegfried Line without a struggle.

But while Paris wasn't important to the strategists, it was a prime objective for every correspondent. It was the true heart of France and the sentimental home of millions around the world. As long as it remained in the grip of the enemy, no one could think of France as being free.

As our columns neared Paris, the correspondents began to cluster in the little town of Rambouillet, 30 miles west of the city. Our headquarters was the Hotel Grand Veneux which stood near the headquarters of Gen. Jacques Leclerc, commander of the French 2nd Armored.

The hotel courtyard must have looked like a scene out of comic opera because it had become the "command post" of Ernest Hemingway. "Papa" Hemingway would stalk from the hotel with a pistol strapped to his waist, carrying an armload of maps. Then he would hold conferences with his forces — members of the French underground.

Correspondents were not supposed to carry weapons. But Hemingway paid no attention to such nonsense.

From his command post, Hemingway would dispatch men to reconnoiter the routes to Paris and report to him on the disposition of the enemy. I don't know whether the information his scouts gathered was of any use to our intelligence, but Hemingway was having himself a fine time.

My own problem — as it was with each reporter — was to get into Paris with the first troops. We had been warned by our home offices not to take unnecessary chances. But Paris was a Hell of a story that no one wanted to miss.

Getting into Paris was important, but that was only half the job. The other half was to get out with a story and get it to New York. Not far from Rambouillet I knew Press Wireless had a mobile radio unit which could fling words from the battlefront to New York at the rate of 300 words a minute. The trick was to get the story back to Press Wireless and the censors.

I took my problem to Maj. Gen. Stanhope Mason, Assistant Commander of the 1st Infantry and an old friend from the North African and Sicilian campaigns. I had landed with the Big Red One in the assault on Sicily and again on Normandy. But I had never asked for any special favors. Now I felt the time had come.

I told Mason: "I've got to get into Paris. I need a jeep of my own and I need a driver who speaks French like a native. Can you help me?"

"I'll get the jeep and driver for you," Mason said. "and if you need a cub plane, I can get that too. The boys aren't doing any artillery spotting now because there is nothing out there to spot."

I couldn't see how I could use the Cub plane, but I left the offer open.

The next day Sgt. Adrian Pinsince of Evanston, Ill., called for me at the Hotel Grand Veneux. He was a slender, dark-haired young man and he was bubbling with excitement over the prospect of getting into Paris. I climbed into the jeep with him and we set out to probe for a way into the magic city. It was Aug. 23.

There were rumors the Underground had risen in Paris and was battling the German garrison troops of Gen. Dietrich Von Choltitz. There were rumors our troops were pushing into the city from half a dozen different points. Other rumors had it the Germans had pulled out of the city and all we had to do was walk in.

If the Germans had pulled out, no one had told the gunners guarding the approaches to Paris from the west. They shot at everything that moved.

The truth, we learned later, was that the Underground was indeed in revolt against the Nazi garrison — but Choltitz refused to hand over the city to irregulars. However, he let it be known he was willing to surrender to the Allied forces if they should enter the city.

A citizen committee was allowed to leave Paris in secrecy to carry this word to the American command. They told their story to Gen. Patton who arranged for them to see Bradley at Laval. Bradley immediately ordered the French 2nd Armored and the American 4th Infantry to move on Paris.

At Rambouillet, Gen. Leclerc had promised correspondents that if he received orders to go into Paris, he would give them notice so that they could accompany him. But when the order came, Leclerc slipped out of his command post without telling anyone.

On Aug. 24, Pinsince and I shifted our search for an approach to the southern side of the city. And it was then we ran into a column of the 2nd Armored lumbering toward the national highway leading to Paris from the south. An officer told us the column had orders to drive into Paris.

This was it. Pinsince swung our jeep into the column and we edged our way toward the point. We were more certain that this was the main thrust when we heard Leclerc himself was near the head of the column.

Just outside the town of Longjumeau, about six miles from the city limits of Paris, the column was halted by fire from a German anti-tank position. The long column ground to a halt and in the growing dusk there was mostly just the sound of the guns duelling.

"They aren't going into Paris in the dark," I said to Pinsince. "Let's go back to Longjumeau and get something to eat."

We found a small restaurant which served us a modest meal with a jug of wine. And then we found a place which gave us lodging for the night.

We were up at dawn and soon the column was moving toward Paris. But not far from Longjumeau a French captain stepped into the road and stopped us. There was a rapid exchange between him and Pinsince.

Pinsince said: "He says no civilians can go into Paris without a special permit from General Leclerc. He says we've got to turn back."

Three British correspondents drove up and they were stopped too. The captain informed them coldly that if they drove past him he would shoot.

We turned back toward Longjumeau. And the farther we drove the angrier I got. I had come all the way from the beaches of Normandy looking forward to this moment of entering Paris only to have a French captain block the path. And how in Hell could you get a permit from Leclerc when he was at the head of the column?

Suddenly I told Pinsince to pull to the side of the road.

"Let me under the wheel," I said. "We're going into Paris and no captain is going to stop us."

We drove back down the highway and again the captain waved us to halt. As he stepped from in front of the jeep and started to my side, I pushed my foot down on the accelerator and the jeep leaped ahead into the column. We left the captain shouting behind us, but he didn't shoot. He probably was afraid of hitting some of his own people.

At the gate of Orleans, the last pocket of resistance was knocked out and the column drove into the city. As I passed the gate of Orleans, I noted it was 9:57 a.m.

Men, women and children poured into the streets to scream a welcome. Tears coursed down their cheeks. They tossed flowers at the vehicles and pressed bottles of wine and brandy into our hands. Tanks rumbled forward with garlands of flowers hanging from them. Thousands upon thousands of people formed a lane barely wide enough for the armor to edge through.

All the emotions pent up during the long Nazi occupation exploded in one great outburst. Paris was free! The hated enemy was on the run! A Frenchman once again was his own master! The long wait was ended!

And then in the midst of this joy came the ripping sound of machinegun fire and the sharp crack of rifles. The crowds screamed and ran for cover. Within moments the street that had been so happy was bare except for the armored column. Now the only sound was the sound of guns and angry shouts of soldiers.

At the time we thought the Germans had ambushed the column from the windows of the buildings rising above us. Frenchmen later swore the attack came from Germans in civilian clothes. Others said it was the Milice — the pro-German police. Still others would say the French Underground simply had begun hunting down its own enemies.

Whowever it was, the shots were real and the bullets richocheting from the tanks were real. For several minutes the gunfire rattled while Pinsince and I took shelter behind a tank. But then the guns were still. People came back into the streets to continue their celebration.

We moved through the tumult until gunfire again swept the street. At this point, I wheeled the jeep and started back or Rambouillet. I had seen enough and had heard enough for my

Once more we were caught in a fire-fight. We jumped from the jeep and lay in the gutter. Why it was I thought the few inches of curbing was any protection I don't know and after a time the absurdity of it struck me.

"This is a stupid thing to lie here like this," I said to Pinsince. "Let's get out of here." We got back into the jeep and raced for Rambouillet.

I stopped at the hotel long enough to write my story with AP columnist Hal Boyle doing the editing for me. Then the story was handed to a courier who rushed it to the press wireless radio truck for censorship and for transmission to New York.

In Paris, Von Choltitz waited in the Hotel Meurice with his staff for the inevitable surrender. The group was taken under guard to the Gare Montparnasse for a formal surrender ceremony while orders went out for the German garrison to quit the fight. Now the battle for Paris was ended.

All night long Paris celebrated. The people laughed and sang. And their special heroes were the men of the French 2nd Armored Division.

Looking back, perhaps it wasn't really so strange that love knocked an amored division out of the war for a week. Perhaps the strange thing was that the men were back in their tanks after only one week — and the threat of a courtmartial.

Betancourt Views U. S. Policy Needs In Latin America

By ROMULO BETANCOURT
Written for
The Associated Press

What ought to be the United States policy toward Latin America?

The ideas I am going to express have the patina of time. They are the ones I have expounded, with monotonous insistence, during a long public lifetime.

The first and major point is that the United States recognize the existence of Latin America. Since World War II the United States has exercised powerful influence in the world and the State Department has preoccupied itself with events in every latitude except those which occurred in Latin America. It was only recently that the United States discovered this vast region of 200 million inhabitants situated in its geographical back yard. And it was only recently that it recognized Latin America as "the most critical zone of the world."

RECOGNITION GOAL

For powerful economic and national security reasons the United States should have recognized the importance of the Latin-American region long ago.

We now number 217 million persons, producers and consumers, and we will number 500 million in the year 2,000. The extent of our geographic expanse can be appreciated in the fact — nowadays being remembered — that Central and South America comprise a land mass twice the size of the United States and larger than the non-Communist part of Asia. From the economic standpoint, Latin America's importance to the United States is obvious. More than $8 million is the sum of U.S. investments in Latin America. U.S. trade with Latin America amounted to $6.6 billion in 1963. The United States is the most important market for Latin America's exports.

There is no point in discussing here the influence brought to bear by the installation of a Communist regime in Cuba, 90 miles from Florida. The real, concrete fact is that the political, economic and social situation of Latin America is placed in focus by Washington with an interest that previously did not exist. And the question is: How should this interest be orientated?

The United States government should maintain a clear, unequivocal and consistent support, without reservation, of the democratic and representative systems in Latin America.

SUICIDAL

It would be suicidal for the United States to fall again into a previous diplomatic practice of accepting any Latin-American policy provided it noisily proclaimed anti-communism.

Senator Hubert Humphrey warned about this risk. He writes: "We should always keep in mind the results of our policy of embracing 'anti-Communist' military dictators during the 50's, results which were dramatically shown when a vice president of the United States came near to being trampled by a crowd in Caracas in 1958."

Fundamental for those 200 million men and women with Spanish and Portuguese roots, and more important than bread, is freedom. The sense of individual dignity and the very Spanish hunger to live in democracy and freedom came to us with the caravels of discovery.

BREAK IN PURSUIT

President Kennedy's tragic death marked a break in the vigorous pursuit of a Latin-American policy of hostility toward dictatorships and aid to the democracies. But I do not believe that the administration of President Johnson will return to the decade of the 50's when U.S. diplomacy was one of toleration of dictatorships. I have had the opportunity of speaking with President Johnson and I believe that he was sincere in his speech of May 11, 1964 when he confirmed the government's decision to work with democratic Latin-American regimes and forces to stabilize political institutions and just socio-economic structures.

I also discussed these problems with Thomas Mann (Johnson's special assistant on Latin-American affairs), who now occupies a State Department post of singular importance to inter-American relations. Basically we were in agreement, and his public remarks of June 7, 1964 on State Department policy toward Latin America coincide basically with the criteria professed by democratic peoples and governments of Latin America.

Definite formulas should be fashioned by the XI Inter-American conference, which should not be postponed any longer, to create machinery for dealing with de facto governments. At present they do not exist because Resolution XXVI of the Inter-American Conference of Bogota in 1948 left the problem of de facto governments to a letter conference.

PRACTICE

Democratic Venezuela consistently has followed the practice of non-recognition toward governments which came into being through the overthrow of legitimately constituted governments.

The United States acknowledges the seriousness and consequence of the Venezuelan foreign ministry's position. It has not adopted it, but neither does it now support the so-called "Acheson doctrine" of automatic recognition for all de facto governments.

In his June 7 remarks Mr. Mann declared: "This is not to say that in the future we will recognize all governments which might attain power by unconstitutional means. Each case will be judged by its own circumstances. In those cases where the facts justify it, where the circumstances may be such that, to use someone's phrase, the conscience of America is outraged, we reserve the freedom of making known our indignation, denying recognition or the continuation of economic cooperation."

He also said that the United States supported Venezuela's proposal for collective consultation in order to face up to changes of governments by unconstitutional means. He added that his government favored collective action "in cases in which repression, tyranny and brutality constitute an outrage to the conscience of America."

The maintenance, preservation and strengthening of the popular and democratic system of government in America are attainable through the joint efforts of North Americans and Latin Americans. The era of splendid isolation behind the parapets of nonintervention from which Latin-American constitutional governments observed coup d'etats against legitimate regimes forms an obstacle to hemispheric action in defense of democratic institutions. We will be in a weak position, morally speaking, in asking the United States to maintain unequivocal hostility to dictatorships of the right or left if the foreign ministries of influential Latin-American nations care nothing about the fate and destiny of other peoples of the continent.

IN ACCORD ON what U.S. policy toward Latin America should be are Romulo Betancourt (left,) former president of Venezuela, and U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, shown in Washington April 21. They agree that consistent support of democratic governments is vital as against the "practice of the 50's" (Betancourt's words) of "embracing 'anti-communist' military dictators" (Humphrey's words.) # Club Has Busy Role In Church

By EARL D. MERCER

A church garden club? You never heard of one? Since March 17, 1957, the First Baptist Church of Bastrop has had a very active one.

It all began when several ladies of the church found the schedule of the community garden club to which they belonged conflicting often with their church activities. Dr. Ray P. Rust, the pastor, suggested that they organize a church garden club.

After three preliminary meetings, the Garden of Eden Garden Club was formed with a place on the church calendar like all other church activities.

The object of the club is to stimulate interest in and a knowledge of the different forms of gardening, particularly the building of private gardens, the sharing of flowers and the gardening interest of the members and properties of the First Baptist Church.

Club members are not idle. They meet on the first Tuesday of nine months in the year at 9:30 a.m. at the church. The programs are varied, dealing with such matters as making flower containers, Christmas and hospital arrangements, corsages and sprays, handbook study and horticulture. Experts in flowers and gardening are frequent program guests. Yards and gardens are visited and members bring to certain meetings their floral arrangements for criticism and learning.

Club members provide many of the floral arrangements used in the church sanctuary. Their talents also are seen outside the building where they have supervised the planting and relocation of shrubbery. They are responsible for an odd-shaped flower garden artistically set in a paved parking lot west of the impressive church building. They seek to keep something blooming throughout the year in this spot, utilizing such things as chrysanthemums, day lilies, celosia and violets. This beauty spot is viewed by many passing motorists who, attracted by it, drive through the parking lot for a closer look. Attractive church grounds can mean much in bringing people to the church, the members feel.

The highlight of the year is the flower show held each spring in the church social room. A Biblical theme is always used. One year the show was based on John's portraits of Christ.

Last Spring the theme was "The Many Faces of Love," using John 15:12: "This is my commandment: That ye love one another as I have loved you." Selected scripture verses, written in manuscript, denoted each entry division.

The show features such things as vertical line and crescent arrangements, mass arrangements, informal family dinner table arrangements, sick trays, birthday tables, formal table arrangements and all green arrangements. Six accredited judges from out of town make the awards. The club has been invited to enter a float in the Northeast Louisiana Cotton Festival and Fair parade later this year in Bastrop.

Mrs. Claude Houston is serving now as president. Other presidents have been Mrs. Bobby Wallace, Mrs. David Ogden, Jr., Mrs. Freddie Marlatte Jr., Mrs. N. B. Pratt and Mrs. J. E. Jackson. The club maintains a membership of approximately 25 members who pay dues of four dollars annually.

In Phoenix he is assistant supervisor of missionaries in the area. He entered missionary service June 3 of last year, and will serve for another 14 months.

He is 20, a former student at Farmerville High School and Northwestern State College, Natchitoches. A twin brother, Ronnie Rugg of Ruston, recently returned from Phoenix following a visit with him.

EVANGELIST

TAORMINA, Silicy (UPI) — Marlene Dietrich, who recently completed a tour of the Soviet Union, appeared Wednesday at the opening of the eight-day "Songs of the World" festival.

Students Find Work Reward Not Monetary

RAYMONDVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The pay is only $3 a week with room and board, but 10 Texas college students have given up their summer vacations to build a church in this south Texas town.

In addition to building the church, the students conduct revival services in the Raymondville area and lead regular services here of the First Baptist church and Primera Iglesia Bautista — Spanish for First Baptist church. It is a new structure for the Spanish church that they are building.

The students are members of the Baptist Student Union which has 55,000 members on campuses of 68 Texas colleges.

"I wouldn't work this hard for money," says Jeff Crossland, 21, a senior history major at North Texas State University.

"Actually, there is pay in this job," Crossland says, "but the pay isn't money; it's a richly rewarding experience."

STRONG IMPRESSION

The students have made a strong impression on local residents.

Stanley Addington, a member of the building committee and owner of a department store, says, "They have restored my faith in the youth of America. I read about teen-agers involved in drunken brawls and about immorality on the college campuses, but these kids have given me a new insight on a new breed of American youth which is on the horizon."

Church Adds Facilities For Auto Parking

New parking facilities are being added at Central Baptist Church, 2400 Lee Ave.

The church recently purchased property immediately behind its auditorium on the corner of Polignac and Gordon Avenue. The space will accommodate more than 70 cars, it was announced by Carlton C. Smith, chairman of the Parking Lot Committee.

The new parking area, complete with asphalt surfacing, "Not only will add to the convenience of its members and visitors, but it will remove much of the congested parking off Lee Avenue," said the chairman.

Other members of the Parking Lot Committee are Fred Salley, B. A. Tarver Jr., and Oscar Alford. The Rev. Charles B. Littleton is pastor.

College Place Planning For Revival Series

Revival services will be held at the College Place Baptist Church beginning Sunday, August 30 and continuing through Sunday, September 6.

Dr. Leonard Sanderson, former pastor of the First Baptist Church, Lake Charles, and now in full-time evangelistic work will bring the messages. Eddy Nicholson, a full time worker in revival ministry will lead the singing.

Bob Anderson will serve as organist.

Weekday services will be at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday services will include Sunday School at 9:45 a.m., the worship hour at 11 a.m., Training Union at 6 p.m. and the evening worship hour at 7:10.

The Church is located at 301 Sherrouse. The Rev. T. Earl Ogg is pastor.

REV. C. B. WILLIAMS, pastor of Central Baptist Church of Hattiesburg, Miss., will be evangelist at First Baptist Church of Sterlington today through Sunday, August 30, it was announced by the Rev. Ray Raddin, pastor. Ronnie Stephens, music director of Trinity Baptist Church, West Monroe, will lead the singing. Morning services Monday through Friday will be held at 9:30. Evening services daily will be at 7:30. Sunday services are at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. A nursery will be open during all services.

REV. JAMES E. ALBRITTON, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Crowley will be evangelist for revival services this week at New Chapel Hill Baptist Church, on Arkansas Road, West Monroe. Services today will be held at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Weekday services will be held at 9 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. There will be no services Saturday, and the revival will conclude on Sunday, August 30. A. E. Chapman will be in charge of music and singing. A nursery will be open during all services. Rev. James A. Smith is pastor of the church.

REV. CHARLES B. LITTLETON, pastor of Central Baptist Church, Monroe, will be evangelist for revival services starting today at Brownville Baptist Church, 1701 Bailey Street, West Monroe, and continuing through Sunday, August 30. Starting Monday services will be held daily at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Lynn Parker of Fair Park Baptist Church, West Monroe, will be in charge of music throughout the week. Rev. Harold E. Cook is pastor of the church.

REV. W. L. FONTENOT, pastor of the Fundamental Baptist Church of Palmer, Texas, will be guest speaker at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services today at Liberty Baptist Church, 401 Slack St., West Monroe.

Youth Led Revival Set At Parkview

A youth-led revival will be held at Parkview Baptist Church, 1001 Forsythe, Friday through Sunday, August 30, it was announced by the Rev. James R. Edwards, pastor.

Evangelist will be Don Murdock of Fort Worth, Texas, and song leader, Dudley Stiles of Terrell, Texas.

The series of meetings will involve the entire church membership, guests and visitors, with young people serving in all key positions of responsibility. The revival will start with a 7:30 p.m. service Friday and conclude with the 7:30 p.m. Sunday service.

Murdock and Stiles, both 22, have had considerable experience in religious work. Both have participated in revivals youth camps, retreats, and similar activites. Both plan careers of full-time Christian service.

BACKGROUND

Murdock, who did his undergraduate work at Southern Methodist University and Baylor University, is a student at the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. He is an able athlete, having lettered in baseball at SMU, and has been active in Baptist student work.

Stiles has just completed his undergraduate work at North Texas State University in Denton and plans to begin work this fall on a master's degree in sacred music and voice. A soloist and member of the NTSU choir, he accompanied the group on a tour of Europe last spring.

PLANS MADE

During a recent series of meetings, a group of the young people at Parkview, under the leadership of Herbert Gathright, minister of music and youth, laid plans for the revival. They elected as their youth pastor, Jim Mathis, and as their music director, Tim Greer. These committees and chairmen were named:

Committee on Committees, headed by Charles McLain; publicity and promotion, Peggy Dawson; music, Tim Greer; visitation, Mary Eve Beckett and Vicki Lankford, co-chairmen; ushers, Skipper Riley and Larry Mullens, co-chairmen; fellowship, Mack Marsh; arrangements, Jean Carter; spiritual preparation, Vernon Houston; and follow-through, Donna Lomax and Amy Riley, co-chairmen.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

Facilities Addition In Planning As Church Continues Expansion

AN INTERESTING vantage point in a tour of the facilities of the First Presbyterian Church of Monroe is shown in this view of the inside courtyard, which is accented by grass and flowers.

During the past 11 years the active membership of the First Presbyterian Church of Monroe has spiraled from 513 to 917, and many other changes have taken place.

In that period under the leadership of Dr. W. H. McFadden, minister, the church shifted to a new location, constructed new facilities and made plans for more.

On January 22, 1961, the congregation moved from the downtown facilities into a contemporary educational building on a beautiful seven-acre plot, located between Stubbs and Royal streets and 11th and 14th streets. And services were held in fellowship hall.

PRESENT FACILITIES

The present building consists of the Lettie E. Owen Fellowship Hall, which was made possible by a generous donation by Miss Owen, who served as a teacher in the beginner's department of the church school for 40 years.. There is a total of some 25,000 square feet of classroom and office space.

Plans recently were in preparation for a new sanctuary. Members of the building committee named to work with the architectural firm of Rivers and Heuer were Dr. George Walker, chairman, Mrs. Stanton E. Huey, Mrs. H. L. Woods, Alden Shotwell Sr., and Nelson D. Abell.

Behind the present work of the church and its beautiful modern facilities, there is a considerable amount of history.

The earliest available records of the church session stated: "The first effort to establish a Presbyterian Church at Monroe was made in the fall of 1855. At this time the church was organized with 12 or 15 members and Fielding L. McCormick and Dr. Martin chosen ruling elders."

SUPPLEMENTAL DATA

Church historians have been able to supplement this information on those early days with several accounts found in "The Register," a newspaper published in Monroe, copies of which are in the library of Louisiana State Univesity at Baton Rouge. In the issue of December 8, 1859, there is a notice that Dr. B. M. Palmer was to preach the following Sunday at Union Church.

Union Church was located on the lower floor of Masonic Temple in the 100 block of Walnut Street. Several church groups in addition to Presbyterians held services there. As a result Presbyterian services were held on an irregular schedule.

On February 19, 1860, a Bible Society was organized, composed of 18 members of whom five were Presbyterians, including Elder McCormick as treasurer and another Presbyterian as secretary.

On May 24, 1860, a permanent organization was suggested by Dr. John Ekin of Port Gibson, Miss., who was in charge as minister on Sunday, August 19 of that year. During that year the church was incorporated.

Church records following a period after that were lost. Records are available for a service of May 28, 1871, held by Presbyterians which again mention Elder Fielding L. McCormick. The Rev. T. H. McClelland of Delhi assisted at services and was moderator for a meeting of the session that followed, dealing with reorganizing the Presbyterian group.

When Union Church was destroyed by fire in December 1871, Presbyterian records also were lost.

SANDERS HALL

On January 19, 1873 Sanders Hall on Wood Street opposite the courthouse square was secured as a meeting place and the Rev. John McCampbell, of Mississippi Central Presbytery was called as minister. He was installed by Red River Presbytery, December 14, 1873.

From that time on church historians report, regular meetings were held and records were carefully kept and preserved.

Dr. S. C. Murphy was elected trustee and received into membership as an elder from Little Rock, Ark. During his service from 1874 until 1888 he brought many death-bed converts into the church.

On Christmas Day, 1874, Col. Francis Peter Stubbs, a ruling elder, donated a small corner lot. He also loaned $2,500 to the church when it acquired property where the old brick sanctuary stood, and upon transfer of the old lot to him in 1897, cancelled the debt.

The church then constructed a sanctuary which was formally dedicated in 1901 and the Rev. O. S. Hillhouse preached the sermon. The bell which was placed in the belfry of the sanctuary was donated by John W. Conch of Franklin Parish, January 12, 1876.

MINISTERS

During its long service, ministers who have served the church include:

The Rev. John McCampbell, D. D., (1873-1874); the Rev. Joseph Young Allison, D. D., (1876-1882); the Rev. Charles Marsh Shepperson, D.D., (1883); the Rev. Robert Hoskins Crozier, D. D., (1887-1888) the Rev. William Hunter Wycough, (1888); the Rev. William Dexter Spurlin, (1889-1894) - (1900-1904); the Rev. Littleton Purnell Bowen, D. D., (1895-1900); the Rev. McFadden began his ministry here in 1952.

Dr. Ernest Holloway served the church for 23 years, and has retired. He still lives in Monroe and attends this church when not carrying out a preaching engagement.

In 1955, the church celebrated its centennial, and had as special speaker Dr. Wade H. Boggs, then moderator of the General Assembly.

When First Presbyterian Church started, there were no other churches of this denomination in the Twin Cities area, but now there are four others.

In recent months, the church acquired an associate minister, the Rev. Archie B. Faires, whose chief responsibility is that of minister of education.

The Pastor's Corner

PERSONAL WORTH

Are not Sparrows five for twopense? And yet not one of them is overlooked by God . . . —Luke 12:1-34

Dr. McFadden, pastor
1st Presbyterian Church, Monroe

"More than that, even the hairs of your head have all been counted. Have no fear, you are worth more than any number of sparrows."

In the time of Christ, two sparrows were sold for one penny. If a man wanted to be reckless and spend two pennies, he could get five. Sparrows were so worthless in the Jewish society that they were five for two pennies. The storekeepers would throw in an extra one when two pennies were spent as a kind of "come on" bargain. Yet Jesus could say, "Not one of them is overlooked by God."

As a child, I remember how sparrows were such a nuisance and pest around my father's farm. They ate up the good grain and did not eat the harmful insects as the cardinals and bluebirds did. In spite of their worthlessness, Jesus reminds us of God's concern even for little sparrows. How much more are we, who are His children, created in His image, worth in the sight of God?

HAIRS COUNTED

"More than that, even the hairs of your head have all been counted." God is aware of every single hair that falls from a human head, just as keenly as the man who is getting bald. If God is aware of each single fallen hair, how much more He must be aware of each of us?

Jesus spoke the words of our text when a crowd, numbering in the thousands, was gathered to hear Him. They were packed so close together that they were in danger of treading on one another. As Jesus looked out over the crowd, He saw not its vastness, but he saw the individual and the personal needs of each. Jesus used this occasion to show the personal worth of each person in the sight of God. The God who does not overlook the sparrows, the God who is aware of a single fallen hair misses nothing. Certainly He does not miss the needs of a single human being.

AGE OF BIGNESS

We are living in an age of a great population explosion, of great industrial developments, of cities numbering in the millions, of mass production, of nuclear power, and of impersonal technologies. This is the age of big government, big cities, big movements, and even big churches. The individual today is only a number in the army.

He wears this number on a "dog tag" around his neck. If he is a laboring man, he belongs to labor union number so and so. To the politician, he is usually another vote, not a person. To the church, he is another member. In this age of automation, when machines are replacing individual labor and calculation, there is a danger that we lose this sense of personal worth. We are apt to throw up our hands in holy horror and say, "What are we against such vast impersonal forces?"

But God sees and is aware of the individual. Jesus reminds us "There is nothing covered up that will not be uncovered, nothing hidden that will not be made known. You may take it, then, that everything you have said in the dark will be heard in broad daylight, and what you have whispered behind closed doors will be shouted from the house-tops."

Everything that we say, everything that we do does have significance one way or another, even in this age of mass movements. The individual does count. You are of infinite value in the sight of God. Your witness today is most significant.

ON UNEARNED RUNS

Pittsburgh Tops Philadelphia, 9-4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pittsburgh scored five unearned runs in the seventh inning and Roberto Clemente cracked three doubles as the Pirates cut down the National League-leading Philadelphia Phillies 9-4 Saturday.

The loss cut the Phils' lead to seven games over second-place Cincinnati, playing a night game in Los Angeles.

Pittsburgh snapped a six-game losing streak, and broke the Phils' winning string at four.

Winner Frank Bork singled home two of the runs in the big seventh as 10 Pirates came to bat. Willie Stargell had a pinch hit double, driving home the first run, in the rally and Dick Schofield and Manny Mota singled in runs.

The runs followed a throwing error by Richie Allen on Gene Freese's grounder, and all were unearned.

Clemente batted twice in the inning but had no part in the rally. His double drove in the first run in the first inning and the league's leading hitter scored one of the runs in the two-run third.

Clemente's third double didn't figure in the scoring. He was doubled off second when Bob Bailey lined to Tony Taylor, who stepped on the base.

One of the hits off Bork was Allen's solo homer in the first inning which tied Allen for the team lead with Johnny Callison at 21.

Reliever Ed Roebuck walked one of the Pittsburgh runs home in the third and the other scored on his wild pitch, but both were charged to lower Dennis Bennett, who put them on base. Bennett's record now is 9-10.

Packers Beat Bears Behind Paul Hornung

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Green Bay's Paul Hornung one of the most prolific scorers in National Football League history, broke loose for three touchdowns and added the conversions Saturday night as the Packers punished the Chicago Bears 21-7, in an NFL exhibition game.

Bouncing back after a year's suspension, the Packers' "Golden Boy" appeared in mid-season form as he ripped the vaunted defense which helped the Bears to dethrone Green Bay as NFL champions in 1963.

Hornung managed to get free late in the first period and, with a burst of speed, hauled in a Bart Starr pass completing an 18-yard scoring maneuver.

Employing his blockers in old time fashion, Hornung burst through left tackle, cut to his left and angled into the end zone on an 11-yard touchdown romp in the second period.

Then, in the third quarter, the former Notre Dame great, who holds the NFL scoring record of 176 points in a season, cut behind a block from guard Fuzzy Thurston and raced across the goal from three yards out.

The Bears, stung by injuries, including the loss of halfback Rinnie Bull with a muscle pull suffered in pre-game practice, were unable to launch an effective attack until reserve quarterback Rudy Bukich took over for Bill Wade in the final period.

Bukich found fullback Rick Casares a favorite target and directed the Bears downfield. Bukich then finished the 80-yard advance by passing eight yards to former Packer Gary Barnes.

Causey Homers As Kansas City Beats Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doc Edwards' three-run homer in the sixth inning and a leadoff home run by Wayne Causey in the fourth powered the Kansas City Athletics to a 6-2 victory over the Washington Senators Saturday.

The victory by the Athletics reduced the Senators' ninth-place margin to one-half game in this battle to avoid the basement.

Orlando Pena, who won his 11th against 12 defeats, held the Senators in check for seven innings except for Willie Kirkland's homer against the wall in dead center field with Jim King on base in the fourth.

The Senators loaded the bases in the eighth on Don Blasingame's single, King's double and a walk to Kirkland. But Wes Stock came in and fanned Don Lock and took care of Dick Phillips on an infield grounder.

Causey's eighth home run was one of three hits off Buster Narum over the first five innings.

Dick Green led off the sixth with a single and went to third on Causey's double to right. The runners held as Ed Charles grounded out, but Rocky Colavito scored both with a single to left, and went to second on the throw to the plate. Jim Gentile drew an intentional pass and Edwards followed with his third home run.

3-Run Homer In 9th Lifts Birds To Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Brooks Robinson crashed a three-run homer with one out in the ninth inning that gave Baltimore a 4-2 victory over Chicago Saturday and increased the Orioles' American League lead over the White Sox to 1½ games.

The Orioles trailed 2-1 going into the ninth. Jerry Adair led off with a double that just eluded Mike Hershberger in short right field. Luis Aparicio struck out, but Joe Horlen walked Norm Siebern.

Robinson, drove in two runs in Friday night's 4-2 victory, followed with his 22nd homer into the lower right field stands.

Until the ninth, Horlen had allowed the Orioles only three hits, one Robinson's double in the second.

Robinson went to third when Sam Bowens grounded out and raced home on a sacrifice fly by Charlie Lau to right field. Hershberger's throw to catcher Gerry McNertney was on target, but McNertney dropped the ball. No error was charged.

The Sox pounced on rookie southpaw Frank Bertaina, making his second start, for runs in the first two innings but then were checked by a brilliant relief job by Dick Hall.

Jittery Bertaina walked Jim Landis, the first man he faced, and Al Weis beat out a bunt. After Floyd Robinson flied out, Bill Skowron walked, filling the bases. Pete Ward grounded out, Landis scoring on the play.

Ron Hansen led off the second with his 15th homer.

BEATS BOSTON FOR SPLIT

Stottlemyre Halts Yanks' Six Game Losing Streak

BOSTON (AP) — Mel Stottlemyre, unbeaten New York rookie right-hander, pitched a six-hit, 8-0 victory over Boston Saturday night and righted the skidding Yankees after six straight losses.

Home runs by hobbled Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and John Blanchard helped Stottlemyre achieve a split after the Red Sox won the opener of the day-night doubleheader 5-3. The split left the Yankees 5½ games behind Baltimore in the American League race.

Red Sox shortstop Eddie Bressoud broke up Stottlemyre's no-hit bid when he lined a single to left as leadoff batter in the sixth inning. Pinchhitter Al Smith blooped another hit to center and Felix Mantilla walked, filling the bases, before Carl Yastrzemski grounded back to the mound for the final out.

Stottlemyre sent his record to 3-0 on his 11th day in the majors and prevented the Yankee losing skein from reaching the longest in 11 years. Third place New York has won only seven of its last 21 games.

Mantle, who had gone 0-for-7 since returning to the line-up from a painful right knee ailment, crashed a two-run homer to right in the first inning and a run-scoring double to left in the fifth.

Maris also hit a two-run belt tipped by Yastrzemski leaning into the bullpen, and singled across another run. The homers were Mantle's 26th and Maris' 20th. Blanchard homered with none on, one pitch after Maris connected in the fourth.

Elston Howard's two-run homer in the afternoon game gave New York a 3-2 edge, but Lee Thomas dramatically turned the tide with a two-run homer off loser Al Downing in the eighth.

There were two out and a count of 3 and 2 when Thomas drove the winning blow into the right field seats. Mantilla twice forced home runs by drawing bases loaded walks.

When Bobby Richardson doubled off Bill Monbouquette in the fifth he scored Clete Boyer with the first New York run in 25 2-3 innings.

Dick Radatz, in relief, became Boston's winningest pitcher with his 12th victory. Coupled with 21 saves he now has had his right arm in 33 of Boston's 58 triumphs this season.

TOP GIANTS, 27-24

Seedborg Kicks Redskins To Win

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — John Seedborg, a rookie from Arizona State, kicked a tie-breaking 35-yard field goal Saturday that propelled the Washington Redskins to a 27 - 24 National Football League exhibition victory and sent the New York Giants tumbling to their third straight defeat.

The Giants, defending Eastern Conference champions, again were unable to put together a sustained scoring drive but had gone in front 24-21 on Clarence Childs' 99 yard kickoff return.

Seedborg quickly tied it with a 46 yard field goal and then, with four minutes and seven seconds remaining in the game, booted the winner. It was Washington's first victory in three exhibition starts.

The Redskins scored first on George Ize's 11-yard pass to Angelo Coia. The other Washington touchdowns came on Bob Pellegrini's lumbering 60-yard return of an intercepted Y.A. Tittle pass and a 19-yard burst through the line by J.D. Lockett.

Old pro Tittle did the New York quarterbacking for the first half and rookie Gary Wood handled the chores in the second half, but neither could put together a march.

The Giants scored on a blocked kick recovery in the end zone, a 47-yard pass interception return by Tom Scott and Childs' kickoff return.

KTVE Forces Playoff For Fourth Place

KTVE pushed across five runs in the eighth inning to defeat Davis Food, 8-3, Saturday night and force a playoff contest to decide fourth place.

The victory left both KTVE and Davis with a 11-10 record and they will meet today at 2 p.m. in Bernstein's Legion Stadium to settle the issue.

The actual four team playoff series will start Monday night at 7:30 with Falstaff facing the winner of today's tilt. Second place Piggly Wiggly will tangle with Rivers Ford, the third place finisher, on Tuesday night.

Two out of three game elimination series will be played to settle both the semi-finals and finals of the playoffs.

After KTVE grabbed a 3-0 lead in the top of the sixth inning Saturday night, Davis rallied for two runs in the bottom of the frame and picked up another in the seventh to tie the score, 3-3.

KTVE then busted things wide open with singles by Fred McEnery and Jerry Lovett and a two-run double by Howard Baily plus an assortment of Davis miscues.

Lovett went the distance for the winners, allowing five hits and striking out four. Bob Groves also went the route in a losing cause. He gave up six hits and struck out five.

Billy Crawford and McEnery both had two hits to pace KTVE while Robert LaCas had two safties for Davis.

Gun Bow Takes Arlington Park Racing Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Gedney Farms' Gun Bow, packing top weight of 132 pounds, raced to a two length victory Saturday in the 37th running of the $114,750 Washington Park Handicap at Arlington Park.

Lemon Twist, a 50-1 shot, was second and Going Broad was third in the 1⅛ mile event over a sloppy track.

Ridden by Walter Blum, Gun Bow led practically all the way.

Carling Boasts Largest Purse In Gold History

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — A large international field will be playing for the largest golf purse in history when the $200,000 Carling World Championship opens at Oakland Hills Thursday.

The course's exacting 6,907 yards will face the challenge of 107 U.S. golfers and 48 others from 13 foreign nations.

Robert Trent Jones, the famed course architect who modernized the layout in 1951, predicts that par of 280 for the 72-hole test will not be broken.

"The target areas are tighter and more stringent than any course in the world," says Jones.

Many of the foreign golfers, especially the lightweight Asians, will have trouble with this challenging course.

Al Watrous, a pro here for 35 years, believes the course is more suited to the long hitter. He has named Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and George Bayer as among the golfers with the best chance to win.

The winner will receive $35,000, second-place is worth $17,000, and the rest of the prize money will be distributed down to 75th spot.

Despite the obstacles the prize money has helped make this one of the most desirable events on the tournament schedule.

Recreation Softball

Southside Methodist also advanced in the tourney with a 12-7 whipping of Good Hope. Stanley Smith had a two-run homer in the eighth to lead the winners. Perkins had three hits and J. Smith two also for Southside. Billy Hendrix and Joe Solomon were the winning battery with K. Grant and Wilson taking the loss. Southside will meet A.B.C. Monday in the 6:30 tilt.

ABC routed First Christian, 13-0, and advanced in the Monroe Recreation Softball Tournament Saturday night. Danna had a home run and McMullen, Pinton, and Kelly had two hits for ABC. Maggio pitched a one-hitter for the winners. He and McClandish were the winning battery. Max Wroten and Billy Clark were the losers. ABC plays Monday night at 6:30.

Cole Shoots 71 To Tie For Lead In Golf Tourney

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP) — A 1-under-par 71 pulled Clayton Cole of Monroe, La., to a tie with John Kirk of Greenville in the annual Greenville Country Club Invitational golf tournament Saturday.

Cole's 71, plus 71 for his first 18 over the 6,556-yard course, gave him a 142 total. Kirk, who had a slick 68 on his first round, slipped to a 74.

Wayne Williams of Greenwood, Miss., the first round leader with a 4-under-par 67, labored through a rugged 35-42—77 to boost his total to 144, tied with Steve Lyles of Mississippi State.

A stroke behind the leaders, were Sam Hall of Lake Charles, La., with 72-71—143, and Fred Michael, Greenville, 72-71—143.

The medal play tournament, which drew 220 entries from six states, winds up Sunday.

McIntire Wins Women's Title

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Barbara McIntire of Colorado Springs, Colo., won the U.S. Women's Amateur Golf Championship Saturday with a 3 and 2 victory over JoAnne Gunderson of Kirland, Wash.

It was the second victory in this event for Miss McIntire who won in 1959.

Both Miss McIntire and Miss Gunderson, a three-time winner in the tournament, were named midway through their 36-hole final match to the seven-member Curtis Cup team which will play in Wales next month.

Miss McIntire did not gain the lead in the final match until the 26th hole. That came when Miss Gunderson played a stray ball, lying some four feet from her own, on the back side of the green.

The match was even when Miss Gunderson told referee Joe Dye.

"I played the wrong ball, I concede the hole."

Miss McIntire went 2-up on the 28th hole when her tee shot landed on the green 162 yards from the tee. Miss Gunderson's tee shot went in a trap, and she scored a bogey four.

The red-haired Miss Gunderson closed the gap to one-up on the 30th hole when she sank a 12-foot putt for a birdie three. Her fairway shot had hit the flag pole above the cup.

Miss McIntire came back on the next hole when her second shot stopped 15 feet short of the cup. Miss Gunderson was short of the green on her second shot and she missed three-foot putt and conceded the hole.

They halved the next two holes, but on the 34th hole Miss McIntire's second shot was on the green while Miss Gunderson's landed in a sand trap to the right. Miss McIntire's putt of about 20 feet stopped six inches short of the cup.

Miss Gunderson, with a putt of about seven feet, looked it over, turned to spectators and said:

"Anybody want to putt this for me?"

Then she took aim and missed by an inch.

Other members of the Curtis Cup team, who will play at Porthcawl, South Wales, Sept. 11-12 are Peggy Conley of Spokane Wash.; Phyllis Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla.; Nancy Roth of Elkhart, Ind.; Carol Sorenson of Janesville, Wis., and Barbara Fay White of Shreveport, La.

Rookie Leads Jets To Win Over Patriots

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Rookie fullback Matt Snell led the New York jets to a come-from-behind 21-20 victory Saturday over the Boston Patriots in an American Football League exhibition game.

Snell, who gained 117 yards in 20 attempts, was the big gun as the Jets stormed back from a 20-7 decicit early in the fourth period.

Snell carried the ball four times in New York's 70-yard touchdown drive that took 10 plays midway in the fourth quarter. Then he carried six times out of 13 as the Jets went 57 yards for the touchdown that tied it 20-20 with only 1:57 remaining in the game. Jim Turner's kick for the conversion provided the winning point.

The Patriots almost pulled the game out after that when quarterback Babe Parilli came off the bench and led the team from their 20 to the New York 35, where a field goal attempt by Gino Cappelletti fell short.

Boston dominated the first half, holding a 7-0 lead after the first quarter and a 13-7 advantage at intermission.

They struck for a touchdown at 13:01 of the first quarter when Parilli hit Al Snyder in the end zone from the 10-yard line, capping a drive of 78 yards. The big play was a 25-yarder to Cappelletti.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Tobin Rote, veteran San Diego quarterback, went from goat to hero with a 90-yard touchdown pass, and 86-yard scoring drive, and led the chargers past the Kansas City Chiefs 26-14 in an American Football League exhibition game Saturday night.

The 36-year-old Rote, in his 15th pro season, lost a fumble at the Kansas City nine-yard line in the third period just after he replaced the injured John Hadl. Kansas City led 14-12.

But on San Diego's next possession Rote caught the Chiefs' defense asleep on first down at the Charger 10. His pass found split end Don Norton in the clear at midfield for a 90-yard TD that put San Diego in front 19-14.

Giants Victory Breaks Streak

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco snapped its six-game losing streak Saturday with a 4-2 victory over St. Louis behind the pitching of Bob Bolin.

The triumph, coupled with Philadelphia's 9-4 loss to Pittsburgh, moved the Giants 7½ games behind the National League-leading Phillies.

The Giants hopped on Cardinal starter Roger Craig for two runs in the first on four consecutive singles, including run-producing safeties by Jim Davenport and Tom Haller.

San Francisco added two more off Craig in the third on singles by Harvey Kuenn and Hal Lanier, a sacrifice fly by Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda's single.

The Cardinals scored one run in the first when Lou Brock singled, stole second and third and came home on Bill White's single

They added another in the eighth on Tim McCarver's single following a single by Ken Boyer and a walk to Bob Skinner.

St. Louis loaded the bases with two outs in the seventh on three singles, but Bolin fanned Brock on three pitches to end the threat.

Bolin scattered nine hits, all singles, in evening his record at 5-5. The 25-year-old right-hander struck out 11 while walking three.

Indians Sweep Twinbill Behind Strong Pitching

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians swept a doubleheader from Los Angeles Saturday behind the sparkling pitching of rookie Sonny Siebert and veteran Dick Donovan, beating the Angels 1-0 in the opener and 5-1 in the nightcap.

Siebert pitched his first complete game and first shutout in the opener as he outhurled the Angels' sensational Dean Chance. The Tribe right-hander scattered five singles in boosting his record to 4-5.

Donovan limited Los Angeles to four hits in the nightcap.

A three-run uprising in the sixth inning of the second game featured a two-run homer by Leon Wagner, his 28th. The other run in the inning came on a double steal, with John Romano stealing home and Vic Davalillo going to second.

Siebert struck out six and walked only one in the opener. Previously the longest he had worked was 7 2-3 innings.

The Indians' run in the opener was in the fourth on a fielder's choice. Bob Chance and Wagner hit successive singles and advanced on a sacrifice. After an intentional walk loaded the bases, Larry Brown then grounded out to shortstop Jim Fregosi, allowing Chance to score.

That was the first earned run off Dean Chance in 21 2-3 innings. The 23-year-old right-hander, now 14-6, had tossed two-hit shutouts in his last two starts and was seeking his 10th straight triumph.

Chance lasted seven innings, allowing Cleveland four hits, walking four and fanning two.

Jessen Captures Tourney Lead At Albuquerque

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Ruth Jessen parlayed a one-under-par 71 into a one-stroke lead in the $11,000 Albuquerque Ladies Professional Golf Association pro-am tourney as first day leader Marilynn Smith suffered a case of putting jitters.

Miss Jessen was three under par Saturday after 36 holes in the 54-hole event.

The Seattle, Wash. lass fired two birdies and had one bogey in her otherwise steady par round. The bogey came on the par four ninth where she three-putted for a five.

Miss Smith, whose steady putting gave her the first day lead and a course record at 68, saw her putting fall apart for a two-over-par 74 as she slipped to a 142 and second place. Miss Smith took 35 putts and had a double bogey six on the 18th as she let the lead slip away.

Kathy Cornelius moved into third with a one-under-par 71, giving her a one-under-par 143 for the first two rounds.

Texan Sandra Haynie, who was second Friday, fell into fourth with a two-over-par 74 for a 144.

Jo Ann Prentice vaulted into fifth place as she scorched the 6-814-yard Paradise Hills Country Club course with a women's record equalling 68. Coupled with her opening 77, it gave her a one-over-par 145.

Ponchatoula In Finals Following 5-1 Baseball Win

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Ponchatoula, La. defeated Coyle, Okla. 9-5 and Trenton, N.J. beat Osceola, Ark. 5-1 in Saturday afternoon games of the National Non-Pro Baseball Tournament.

Trenton and Ponchatoula are now 2-1. Osceola and Coyle were eliminated with 1-2 records.

George Dugan was the winning pitcher for the Louisiana team. Lou Comeoux relieved him in the eighth inning when Coyle had the bases full, no one out and a 2-0 count on Jody Grey. Comeoux wild-pitched one run home. The catcher threw wildly, allowing another runner to score for the third error of the inning.

Comeoux struck out Grey, pinch hitter Jim Scott singled in another run to make it 6-5 before Earl Boyer hit into a double play.

Ponchatoula came back with three runs, two driven in by Manager Charlie Williams with a bases-loaded single.

Maloney Has A Sore Shoulder

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pitcher Jim Maloney has a sore muscle in his right shoulder and may be out of action for four days, the Cincinnati Reds said Saturday.

Maloney was flown to Cincinnati Friday night from Los Angeles, where the Reds beat the Dodgers 3-2. Maloney started the game but the chronic shoulder ailment caused him to leave in the third inning.

BEST CAREER RECORD

Vaught Is New 'King'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The list of college football's top 20 coaches has a new leader for the first time since the ranking originated in 1958. He's Johnny Vaught of the University of Mississippi.

The Southeastern Conference coach succeeds Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, who retired as coach to run for the U.S. Senate, after 17 seasons as head coach with a fabulous record of 145 wins, 29 losses and 4 ties for a winning percentage of .826.

Vaught, a native Texan, and former star guard at Texas Christian University, has compiled a 137-32-9 record for a .795 percentage in 17 years as chief of the Rebels.

He wins so regularly that an 8-2 season, such as 1963 when the Rebels won the SEC championship for the sixth time, has little effect on his career average.

Woody Hayes of Ohio State University is second with 116-40-7 for a .733 winning percentage. Pie Vann of Southern Mississippi is third with 110-40-2, for .730.

Fourth is Alabama's Paul Bryant with 141-49-13 for .727. Bob Blackman, who played his football on the West Coast at Southern California, and now coaches at Dartmouth, is fifth with 100 conquests, 36 losses and 8 ties, for a .727.

The next five are: Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech, 142-56-7, for .710; Ralph Jordan, Auburn, 92-38-4, for .701; Ben Schwartzwalder, Syracuse, 119-51-2, for .698; Bill Murray, Duke 134-59-11, for .684; Warren Woodson, New Mexico State, 211-98-19, for .762.

The system used for determining the top 20 coaches annually is based on a combination of the total number of games won and the percentage of games won, with the individual records being taken from the NCAA football guide.

Rounding out the list are these 10 coaches, in order: Rip Engle, Penn State, 121-59.8, .665; Eddie Anderson, Holy Cross, 196-123-15, .609; Odus Mitchell, North Texas State, 109-69-8, .608; Frank Howard, Clemson, 137-87-11, .606; Phil Dickens, Indiana, 87-61-10, .580; Frank Camp, Louisville, 95-69-2, .578; Jess Neely, Rice, 199-154-19, .560; Buff Donelli, Columbia, 97-80-7, 546; Tom Nugent, Maryland, 80-69-3, .536; Len Casanova, Oregon, 90-80-9, .528.

Quadrangle Gets Travers Victory On Muddy Track

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Quadrangle, at home on a muddy Saratoga Race Track turf, staged a mighty surge in the final 70 yards Saturday and won the 95th running of the $80,050 Travers by one-half length.

Hill Rise, the pacesetter until collared in the home stretch by Quadrangle, finished third one-length behind the fast closing Knightly Manner. Portfolio was fourth and Ramant fifth in the five-horse field for the 1¼ mile race for 3-year-olds.

With Manuel Ycaza aboard for his fourth winner of the day, for his fourth winner of the day, Quadrangle was timed in 2:04 2-5.

As the odds-on favorite of the crowd of 22,356, he paid $2.60, $2.20 and $2.10. Knightly Manner, purchased last week by Mrs. Henry Obre for $300,000, returned $2.70 and $2.30. Hill Rise was $2.40 to show.

Quadrangle, winner of the Wood, Belmont Stakes and Dwyer, went off the 3-10 favorite to take America's oldest race for 3-year-olds. But it took all of Ycaza's knowledge to get the powerful built colt home in front on this rainy, chilly day.

Don Pierce sent Hill Rise into the lead at the start and he set the pace through a 24 1-5 second first quarter mile, 48 4-5 half; 1:13 1-5 six furlongs and 1:38 4-5 mile.

Ycaza had Quadrangle under a tight hold in second place and moved in on the California colt with one-half-mile remaining. They headed out of the backstretch with only one-half length separating them as both jockeys went to their whips with Hill Rise on the rail and Quadrangle at his flanks.

For his fifth victory in 11 starts this year Quadrangle earned $52,032.50 to boost his career bankroll to $451,321.50.

Richard Szal, 14, Fires No Hitter For 2-1 Victory

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Richard Szal, a 14-year-old out to fulfill his father's dying wish, pitched Massapequa Park, N.Y. to a 2-1 victory over Brenham, Tex. Saturday in the Senior Little League World Series.

The effort ended a grueling three days for Szal, who commuted between New York and Louisville during the series. He pitched the opening victory Thursday night, then returned home for the funeral of his father, Ludwig. Friday night, he came back and played the outfield in another triumph.

Szal's father, pitching coach of the team, died Tuesday during a practice session.

"Before he died he told me to win," Richard related at the start of the series, "and that's what I'm going to do — win."

Tourney Added

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — A new tournament has been added to the fall professional golf tour, the Mountain View Open Invitational at Corona, Calif.

The professional Golfers Association announced Saturday that the tournament will be held Oct. 22-25 and will replace the Frank Sinatra Open Invitational.

ABOUT 55 PLAYERS EXPECTED

Tribe Opens Drills Sept. 1

Around 55 players are expected to report next Sunday at Northeast State in preparation for the opening of fall football drills Sept. 1.

New Coach Dixie White and line coaches George Luffey (offense) and Leon Manley (defense) and backfield sides Wallace Hargon (offense) and Ralph Lane (defense) have scheduled a full round of activities the following Monday, Aug. 31 — physical examinations, the issuing of equipment and picture taking.

The following day, Sept. 1, two-a-day drills begin. The morning practice session will be from 9 until 11 and the afternoon session from 4 until 6. The two-a-day workouts will continue until the beginning of classes with only the afternoon workout slated each day after that.

Northeast will open the season Sept. 19 in Cleveland, Miss., against Delta State. The first home game is scheduled Oct. 3 against Northwestern, a contest that will also open the Tribe's Gulf States Conference slate.

The major job facing the Northeast staff in the fall drills is the development of depth in the line, especially at guard and center.

Only two lettermen guards will report Sunday and one letterman center. The situation is almost as bad at end and tackle.

The prospects in the backfield are much brighter with at least two lettermen at every position.

More than half of the players who report Sunday will be freshmen and another eight will be redshirts, players who did not play in a game but were on the squad last fall. About a half a dozen junior college transfers will also report.

Good Season On Waterfowl

With Sam Hanna

Frameworks Are Better

The Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission should set a 40-day duck season to end on January 3rd, or the last day granted to the Mississippi Flyway states by the U.S. Department of the Interior.

That would place the opening date on November 25th, or a day before Thanksgiving, giving hunters, including college students home for the holidays, three holiday periods — Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's.

This would be the fairest season possible for all Louisiana under the frameworks handed down by the government.

Louisiana has a choice of 40 consecutive days or a split season of 36 days — anytime between October 3rd and January 3rd. An early season would be bad for North Louisiana where the waterfowl population is always greater on up in the winter months.

The commission will make its decision, according to Richard Yancey, assistant director, Tuesday in New Orleans.

Louisiana and the other Mississippi Flyway states got a better shake from the federal government this year, since the 40-day season is a slight improvement over last year's 35 days. Three years ago the season ran for 19 days.

And the bag limit, at least, is no worse than it was last year — four ducks daily, including two mallards.

Yancey, chairman of the Mississippi Flyway Council, was pleased the other day when we talked to him on the phone about the season. He said the Mississippi council got practically everything it asked for.

But Yancey did say he could see no reason why the government didn't set the closure for at least January 10th. Our council asked for January 15th.

The latest possible season is best for Northeast Louisiana.

But things are looking up. The trend to curtail the season by the government has been reversed and the Louisiana biologists are predicting comparable flights down the Mississippi Flyway.

Lonisiana's goose season should be a fair one with 70 days anywhere from October 1st until January 15th with a bag limit of five. That will not include Canadian geese.

Basically, the government gave the Mississippi and Central Flyways the same framework of 40 days, but the Atlantic Flyway got 50 while the Pacific Flyway got 90.

Remember that surveys last winter showed that the Mississippi Flyway actually had more ducks than the Pacific Flyway?

But 40 days is an improvement and that's what the Louisiana people have been working for these past few years. Yancey says that if Louisiana hadn't led the protest three or four years ago the trend to close the season may have been successful.

Now if the commission will take the 40 days to end January 3rd (why don't you wire the commission?), then let's have some cold November weather and the whistle of wings will put us in business for a winter's day.

D'Arbonne Duck Blinds

Numerous persons have asked about establishing duck blinds at D'Arbonne Lake at Farmerville for the coming season, but a plan for this has not been approved.

The D'Arbonne Lake Commission, according to Bud Brady, will meet either Monday or Tuesday night to work out the details of a system for duck blinds on the lake.

An announcement of the commission's decision will be forthcoming after the meeting.

D'Arbonne should be pretty good for duck hunting this season, since the lake has a lot of trees. Of course, in time, the trees will die off and as a result the lake may not be as good for ducks.

At any rate, the commission will make its decision on duck blinds within the next day or so.

Also, the commission will consider a program for public camping areas and park areas to be scattered around the lake. Right now it's in the planning stage.

It'll take time for the commission to get its complete program into action. After all the lake is less than a year old.

Black Bayou Blinds

A part of Black Bayou will be closed to public duck hunting this year.

Owned mostly by Cities Service Oil Co., the big lake near Monroe, however, will offer space for public shooting, according to a spokesman of the company.

Cities Service is making plans to use the Fourth Lake and a part of the Third Lake in Black Bayou for its own hunting purposes, leaving the rest of the lake for the public.

In addition, fishing will not be permitted in that part of the lake to be used by the company during the duck season. That's during the duck season only.

For the rest of the year, public fishing will be permitted all over the lake.

According to a company spokesman, less than a dozen blinds that have been in use will be affected by the change. Persons owning blinds that were moved are being assisted by the company in relocating their blinds in the lake.

Of course, the change may not suit all persons — and especially those who are affected — but it must be kept in mind that the company owns the property and for that reason certainly has a right to use it as it sees fit.

It also should be pointed out that Cities Service owns about 25,000 acres of timberland open to the public for hunting between Monroe and Bastrop.

Numerous industries in the Monroe area are providing land for recreational uses and Cities Service is no exception.

Little Man's Corner

It was too rainy for the fishermen and the little men had trouble making news afield.

But Black Bayou at Monroe paid off for those who stuck with it.

For instance Sam Ladart of Monroe landed a string of 21 bass that weighed a total of 60 pounds. And some more big bass were caught in Black Bayou.

Sam Danna of Monroe caught a 6¼ - pound bass and Ned Brunson of Rayville landed two that were big — one weighing 5 and three-quarter pounds and the other going 5½-pounds.

Still from Monroe, Vinson Danna caught a string of 85 bream in Black Bayou and Luke Lisotta brought back 74. But the biggest bass reported came from Kenneth Davidson of Monroe. He caught a 7½-pounder.

In the Jonesville area, Tilford Walker of Jena caught a big string of catfish in French Fork. The catfishing has been good there.

From Monroe, Frank Walker and Charley Smart of Cotton Valley, fishing together in Lake St. John, got the limit of bream on different kinds of flies. Red worms are paying off for most of the bream fishermen in Lake St. John.

Jack St. John of Ferriday got the limit of bass on an H&H in Lake Concordia. Also from Ferriday, Austin Wilson and Morris White caught the limit of white perch on shiners in Wild Cow Bayou below Monterey.

Just back from the mammouth King Ranch out Texas way are big game hunters John McKeithen of Columbia and Jim Adcock of Monroe.

They saw a lot of game during a two-day visit but neither scored a kill.

McKeithen, according to Adcock, shot at a "deer-like animal" four or five time but missed while Adcock said he fired a shot at a coyote but missed.

Adcock said the governor's marksmanship was not up to snuff and admitted that he is not much of a hunter himself.

Belinsky Is In Trouble Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lefthander Bo Belinsky of the Los Angeles Angels was suspended again Saturday for failing to report to the Angel's Hawaii farm club.

General Manager Fred Haney said Belinsky's salary — estimated at $15,000 a year — was also suspended.

The Angels first suspended the pitcher a week ago for allegedly punching Los Angeles Times sports writer Braven Dyer.

KINGSIZE GAR landed in Bayou D'Arbonne is displayed by Billy Joe Owens of Farmerville. The alligator gar weighed 155 pounds and was 7-feet, 6-inches long. Bill said the distance betweens its eyes was 10 inches. John Turner of Sterlington was in on the catch with Owens. Together they have caught six gar weighing a total of 700 pounds this year in Bayou D'Arbonne.

2ND SUB-PAR ROUND

Venturi Leading In Golf Classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Open champion Ken Venturi, playing an exacting game, shook off erratic Bill Collins and took the third-round lead in the $50,000 American Golf Classic Saturday.

The 33-year-old Venturi put together his second straight sub-par round with a 35-34—69 and a total of 206, four under par for the 7,165-yard Firestone Country Club course.

This gave him a two-stroke lead over Mason Rudolph, who started the day one stroke behind Venturi and Collins. Rudolph had a par round of 35-35 — 70 and was the only other player under par going into Sunday's final round.

British Open champion Tony Lema had a 34-36—70 and was four strokes behind Venturi.

Collins, bothered by an ailing back, started off with a double bogey six on the first hole. He birdied No. 2 and then he bogied five of the next nine holes before getting birds on Nos. 12 and 15, a couple of par-three holes.

Collins finished with a 40-35 — 75 for a fourth-place tie at 212.

Neither Masters champion Arnold Palmer nor leading money winner Jack Nicklaus managed any kind of a charge.

Nicklaus mixed three birdies with three bogies for a 36-34 — 70, two over par for the tournament. Palmer had a 36-35 — 71, and fell into a 212 tie with Nicklaus and Colline.

Venturi, who opened with a 71 and then shot a 66 Friday in the best round of the tournament, bogied No. 4, a 465-yard par-4 which played especially tough when the leaders started out in the wind and the rain. This cut Venturi's lead over Rudolph to one stroke.

Venturi collected a birdie two on No. 7 to regain his advantage over Rudolph, lost it with a bogey four on No. 15 and finally carved a two-stroke lead with a birdie four on the 625-yard No. 16.

Bob McCallister had a 37-35 — 72 and 213 to hold sixth place, one stroke ahead of Charlie Sifford and Rod Funseth, who were tied for seventh with 214.

Funseth had a 34-35 — 69 and Sifford 35-36 — 71.

Chuck Courtney, winner of the St. Paul Open last week, had the best round of the day, a 35-33 — 68. Courtney opened the tournament with a 79 and dropped to a 69 Friday for a 216 total.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Good Year For Sophomores

NEW YORK (AP) — If you doubt 1964 will be a banner year for sophomores in college football, just glance at the names. There's a linebacker named Huff, a quarterback named Galiffa and "General" Omar Bradley is a tackle for North Carolina.

But the names which may bear closest watching among yearlings in the fast-approaching season include these:

Halfback Frank Antonini and tackle Maurice Moorman, Kentucky; end Cas Banaszek, Northwestern; center Joe Siesel, Bowling Green; tackle Lloyd Phillips, Arkansas; and halfbacks Lloyd Reist of California, Charlie Brown of Missouri, Floyd Little of Syracuse and Bo Rein of Ohio State.

In the age of the quarterback, the varsity newcomers offer the likes of Miami of Florida's Bob Biletnikoff, Bob Griese of Purdue, Baylor's Mike Marshall and Georgia's Lynn Hughes.

Center Greg Huff hits the University of Pennsylvania varsity this fall amid hopes he'll help brighten the Quaker picture. Art Galiffa, from a line of famed Donora, Pa., quarterbacks of the same name, was battling for the No. 2 spot at the conclusion Tennessee's spring practice.

Bradley is no relation but was tagged with the nickname "General" when he arrived at Chapel Hill., N.C.

Ohio State, noted for its quarterback-fullback offense under Woody Hayes, introduces a fine halfback candidate in 6-foot-6, 225-pound Bennie Blocker although the swift Rein draws more headlines.

Bill Dickens, son of the Indiana coach, Phil Dickens, is a strong center candidate at South Carolina.

Antonini, of Ambridge, Pa., was generally conceded to be the best freshman back in the Southeastern Conference last fall when he led the unbeaten Wildkittens with a 7.5-yard rushing average and 68 points.

Northwestern needs someone to catch Tom Myers' passes and Banaszek is considered best bet with his ability and desire.

At Bowling Green, where winning is a way of life, Siesel will start both ways despite the rules change which encourages specialization and the fact he's being pressed by three veterans.

Also at center watch Don Downing of Navy, Townsend Clarke of Army, Joe Waldrep of Clemson, Duke's Mike Murphy and Ray Prior of Ohio State, who will work at guard or tackle if it gets crowded in the pivot.

Phillips, rated by some the finest interior lineman in talent-laden Texas schoolboy ranks two years ago, will be a defensive starter for Arkansas. Dwight Hood is headed for the same assignment at Baylor.

Other tackles to remember: Herb Slattery, Delaware; Bill Brown, Tulane; Jim Riley, Oklahoma; Joe Schmiesing, Minnesota; Gerry Twardowski, Air Force; George Tijerina, Arizona; Ben Bradley, Dayton; Willard Parr, Ohio University; Tom Gallagher, Indiana; John Elliott, Texas; John Seifert, Princeton.

Reist had an impressive spring game and is part of a Cal plot to upset Washington-Southern Cal equilibrium on the West Coast. Brown is so good he jumps right into a sprinter backfield with Johnny Roland at Missouri. Little, a sprinter from New Haven, Conn., is rated as outstanding prospect at Syracuse despite the excellent supply.

Ray Cahill at Southern California is a standout flanker back, Louisville's Finis Williams is considered the school's finest breakaway threat since Lenny Lyles, and Ivy League followers anxiously await debuts by Harvard's Bobby Leo and Dartmouth's Paul Klungness.

Biletnikoff, of Erie, Pa., is George Mira's successor at Miami, Marshall must step into the wake of national passing champ Don Trull at Baylor and Griese is labeled the latest in a long line of standout sophomore quarterbacks at Purdue.

Hughes has impressve new coach Vince Dooley with his poise and will share the starting job now that Larry Rakestraw has departed at Georgia.

Bruce Matte, whose brother Tom plays for the Baltimore Colts, is making his bid at Miami of Ohio while Rick Volk—nephew of all-america Bob Chappuis—and Richard Vidmer are prize Michigan sophomore quarterbacks.

Navy fullback Danny Wong, 5-6 and 184, promises an answer to Army's Chinese Bandits and Giles Smith, 5-9 and 168, of Georgia Tech has moved onto the first team because he can run, receive, defend, return kicks, punt and placekick.

Other fullbacks to note include Jim Flanigan, Pitt; Ray McDonald, Idaho; Mike Davenport, Wyoming; Lee Narremore, Florida State; Harrison McCraw, Auburn; and Neal Weinstock, Brown.

Guards come in all sizes from Virginia's John Naponick, 6-10, 290, to Terence Mulvihill, the English-born, 6-1, 205-pound candidate at Columbia. Linebacker Jack Card, 5-6 and 165, of Florida is rated the best at his job in recent years despite his size.

Here are some other players worth noting:

ENDS — Bobby Crenshaw, New Mexico State; Eugene Washington, Michigan State; Billy Masters, LSU; Paul Naumoff, Tennessee; Joe Hurley, Texas Tech; Al Wilburn, Stanford; Jeff Elias, Kansas.

GUARDS — John Runnells, Penn State; Bobby Smith, North Carolina State; Lynn Nesbitt, Wake Forest.

QUARTERBACKS — Jim Robie, Buffalo; Mickey Beard, Dartmouth; Danny Talbott, North Carolina.

HALFBACKS — Mike Randall, Detroit; John Ginter, Indiana; Wayne Trimble, Alabama; Chuck Latourette, Rice; Ron Lindsey, Texas A&M; Gary Lyle, George Washington.

MISSISSIPPI STATE

Better Ball Club, Poorer Record?

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Mississippi State Bulldogs are in an awkward position. It's possible for them to be better than last year but end up with a poorer won-lost record.

The reason? The Bulldogs won or tied four games they were expected to lose and posted a 7-2-2 mark that included a Liberty Bowl victory over North Carolina State.

Game after game the Bulldogs were snatched from the brink of defeat by last-minute daring. They trailed Florida 9-0 in the final period and tied; a field goal with 22 seconds left handed Auburn its only defeat; a last-minute pass beat LSU; and a pass interception and a fumble recovery in the final two minutes earned a tie with Mississippi.

It wouldn't be fair to ask as much of the Bulldogs in '64. They have a good, experienced team. But halfback Ode Burrell and quarterback Sonny Fisher—two of the big clutch men of '63—are gone and the home stretch again is killing.

In the last four games of the season, Mississippi State must meet Alabama, Auburn, Louisiana State and Mississippi —the "Big Four" of the Southeastern Conference.

A year ago, the Bulldogs posted a 2-1-1 mark against these four with the loss by one point to Alabama with Burrell out of the lineup. The Bulldogs must be considered underdogs against all four again.

With Burrell and Fisher gone, the offense keys on junior fullback Hoyle Granger, the 220-pound Cajun, and how well any of three candidates — Don Edwards, Ashby Cook and James Carroll — fill the quarterback post.

Mississippi State's strength should be up front. Pivotman Bat Watson is as good as any in the conference and end Tommy Inman, tackle Tommy Neville and guard Justin Canale should all be standouts. Better depth and more experience is basis for expected improvement.

But the improvement may not be enough to wage a winning campaign. At least seven teams on the Bulldog schedule appear capable of winning and unless State's luck holds up for another season it's hard to forecast a better than break-even mark.

Paul Davis, 1963 conference coach of the year, took the helm at Mississippi State determined to make the Bulldogs competitive with arch - rival Mississippi. His charges lost to the Rebels by only seven points in '62 and tied them last year. State could go into the nationally televised finale with Mississippi Dec. 5 with a poor record and still call its season a success by upsetting the Rebels.

HERE SEPTEMBER 4-7

Cotton States Gets Top Field

Some of amateur golf's biggest names are already on the entrant list for the 16th annual Cotton States Invitational Golf Tournament, scheduled for Sept. 4-7 at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club here.

Club Pro Winnie Cole says this year's field should be the best ever attracted by the event, which has evolved since its beginning in 1949 into one of the finest amateur tournaments in the United States.

Early entrants include:

Downing Gray, a member of the United States Walker Cup Team and 1962 National Amateur Champion; Mike Malarkey, of signal Mt., Tenn., the 1963 Southern Amatuer Champion; Jimmy Day, of Laurel, Miss., 1964 National Jaycee Junior Champion; and Richard Anthony, of Andalusia, Ala., winner of the Future Masters of America tournament.

Also on hand will be Harry Toscano and Mark Hopkins, members of the University of Houston NCAA title - winning golf squad, and six varsity golfers from another collegiate power, Memphis State University.

A large and capable delegation of Louisiana hopefuls for the crown, won the last two years by Homero Blancas, of Houston, Tex., is headed by state amateur champion Clayton Cole of Monroe, and LSU Invitational winner Buddy Short of Lafayette.

Other Louisiana players expected to make the championship flight are Charlie Kennon of Baton Rouge, runner-up in the 1964 Southern Amateur, Henry Cole, Clayton's younger brother and a member of the LSU golf team, and another ex-Cotton States Champion (1959), Jack Rivers of Monroe.

BLANCAS MAY RETURN

Blancas, who won the Cotton States crown in 1962 and 1963, was originally not expected to defend his title.

At the present time, the ex-University of Houston great is serving out a term with the U.S. Army at Ft. Polk, leading to the early belief that he would not be able to participate in the tournament this year.

The army, however, allowed Blancas to attempt a defense of his Louisiana Open title last week, and the Cotton States tournament committee is hoping that this might serve as a precedent for letting Homero come back to Monroe to shoot for a third win.

Definitely missing from this year's field, however, will be 1963 runner-up Roy Pace, who has joined the PGA tour as have many other Cotton States winners and contenders.

Other fomer Cotton States contenders now on the circuit include Jackie Cupit, 1960 winner; Fred Marti, runner-up in 1962 to Blancas; Don January, 1951 winner; Don Cherry, 1960 quarter - finalist; and Howie Johnson, a quarter - finalist in 1954.

Championship qualifying for the event will be held Friday, Sept. 4, with the 32 low qualifiers making up the championship flight. First round losers will go into the first flight.

Semi-final and final matches are scheduled for Monday, Sept. 7. All play will be match play.

The Cotton States field is limited to 160 players, and is strictly an invitation affair.

The 1964 tournament committee is composed of chairman A. T. Van Veckhoven, Amos Smelser, Bob Powell and John Savage. Tournment director will be Don Richards.

Harcourt Head Discusses Books

NOW, BARBABBAS. By William Jovanovich. Harper. $5.

Book publishing, writing, editing, school books and similar subjects of this collection of essays by the man who has been president, for nearly 10 years, of a large publishing firm, Harcourt, Brace & World, Inc.

As a publisher, Jovanovich discusses such branches of the industry as "trade books" (general fiction and nonfiction), textbooks, reference and subscription books, reprints (including paperbacks) and educational tests. He has some interesting things to say about the role of government in the educational field.

He also makes some oblique comments on publishing problems abroad — his firm did not fare too happily in a British alliance — and on public financing of publishing companies.

On the topic of writing, his best effort is a chapter titled "Sex, Crime and to a Lesser Extent, Sports." In this section he develops the idea of recent tendencies to write about what he calls "the brutal life," and connects it with matters of society's class structure.

Only in two chapters does he get right down to his personal experiences. These deal with the international problems of bringing out some of the works of Milovan Djilas, the Yugoslav writer who was jailed for writings which offended the Tito regime.

This volume is likely to attract bookish people, but scarcely can be expected to have a wide, general appeal. In the matter of writing style, there are times when he fails to achieve clarity.

Political Novel Not A 'Reality'

BOOKPAGE Sun June 28 ....
The 480. By Eugene Burdick. McGraw-Hill. $5.

Burdick, who was co-author of "The Ugly American" and later co-author of "Fail-Safe," has written a melodrama, crammed with topical gimmicks, that amounts to a political fantasy.

Its hero is a sort of wild card in the political deck of the 1964 Republican nominating campaign. He is John Thatch, an engineer. What little clue is given to his ideas on international and domestic policies makes him seem downright naive in public affairs.

But twice in the preconvention months he has caught the popular fancy — (1) during an incident at a bridgehead between India and Pakistan, where he seems to "stand up to the Communists," and (2) when it is revealed that he had had a secret, personal confrontation with a Red leader in the Phillippines, after which the Red's colleagues were so overwhelmed they shot their leader. Both indidents, as described in the book, are implausible.

Because of Thatch's popularity, a small coterie decides to make him, against his better judgment, a dark horse candidate. They include Bookbinder, a minor figure in the Republican leadership; Curver, a smart young lawyer, and Dr. Devlin, a neurotic female of the behaviorist school. Their maneuvers are designed eventually to catch the convention delegates off balance when Rockefeller, Goldwater, Lodge, Nixon and others have eliminated each other.

It happens that the plotters discover. Thatch has some liabilities as a public figure. Such as a history of one year in a mental institution, and a wife who is a Malay, or part Malay, and who is vulnerable on another, tragic, count. But they proceed boldly, the author making much of the idea that their pollster techniques (classifying voters into 480 categories and feeding their reactions into computers) and psychological tricks can sway the public and the delegates.

The book is highly topical, all right, but for one reader at least, much too fanciful.

Bond Takes A Castle In Japan

YOU ONLY LIVE TWICE By Ian Fleming. New American Library. $4.50.

The current installment of Fleming's James Bond series neatly varies the pattern. Bond carries no gun, and there is only one big fight, at the climax. Sex, however, hasn't been forgotten.

The previous installment "(On Her Majesty's Secret Service") had ended with sinister old Blofeld killing off Bond's bride Therese (Tracy). So Bond went to pieces and was about to be fired. But he was given one more assignment, in Japan. With diplomatic status, technically, hence no pistol.

All he had to do was to inveigle the head of the Japanese Secret Service, a sort of Oriental James Bond called Tiger Tanaks, into sharing with the British all those intercepted Russian secrets which he had been relaying to the Americans.

The Tiger was willing to make a deal, providing Bond did a little chore for him. There was a remote Castle of Death, run by a mysterious foreigners, which attracted too many suicide-bent Japanese; it was full of deadly poisonous plants, and other ghastly phenomena. So it was up to Bond to conquer the castle. With a bit of help from a sexy shell - diver named Kissy Suzuki.

Not to give the plot away, we can say only that Bond wins revenge on an old enemy. And at the end, he is left in a midair position which no doubt will lead into the next installment.

Antagonists Is Interesting Book

THE ANTAGONISTS. By William Haggard. Ives Washburn. $3.50.

The British secret agent, Col. Charles Russell, is the master mind in Haggard's thriller, which is centered around a top scientist.

Dr. Alexander Gorjan, who knows more about microwaves — and their use in missile and anti-missile devices — than anyone else in the world, is from the Confederated Republic, a Communist country in Eastern Europe, which does not want to become a satellite of Russia.

Because of an internal political crisis in his country, Dr. Gorjan is hustled off to London so he won't become a pawn in a possible coup at home. Immediately, two Red agents try to assassinate him. And all the while his country's ambassador, Nikola Mitrovic, is trying to protect the scientist, the embassy's first secretary, Stevean Starc, is trying to get him killed.

The complication is that a minor American diplomat, Mellion Lee, gets the notion that he can exploit Dr. Gorjan's talent for American uses. Being an amateur at the espionage game, Lee manages to mess up the intrigue.

So the crux is that Col. Russell faces the problem of extricating the scientist from a set of killers and a set of exploiters.

The opening scenes of the book seem a little foggy and not too skillfully contrived. But once the action piles up, there is an incisive cadence to the narrative.

Haggard often closes a chapter or an episode with a sharp plot-snapper, giving the reader a lift. He gets a certain deft sophistication into his word witchery.

Unflattering Portrait Of Scotch People

THE SCOTCH. By John Kenneth Galbraith. Houghton Miffin. $3.95.

Early in this 150-page memoir-history by author-professor - diplomat Galbraith, he observes that the Scotch who settled the portion of Canada north of the Great Lakes were largely pacifist by nature.

And considering what he says about them in the remainder of the book, it probably is a good thing for Galbraith that they are. Otherwise, a lynching party or at least a tar-and-feather expedition might arrive at Harvard shortly.

Galbraith, a native of the area, has combined reminisences of his youth with an informal history of the Scottish settlements in Canada. As much as anything, it is a collection of wry anecdotes that should prove delightful to everyone except the people about whom he writes.

They might be expected to take exception to the author's descriptions of their aversion to cleanliness, religions other than their own and just about everything except hard work and money.

He credits the Scotch (they refused to call themselves Scots, like most people of Scottish descent) with being generally law-abiding, industrious people who take care of their own. But generally he describes these people and their land in devastating terms:

"In the autumn when the leaves are gone, the countryside has a stubbly appearance rather like that of a man who has shaved in poor light with a bad razor."

"The architecture, as I have observed, was intrinsically an eyesore. So, in general, were the Scotch."

"All of the Scotch believed in God. But for most this was less the result of piety than of tradition and prudence."

Many of the stories are on the ribald side, and most are good for a laugh. The chief criticism of the book is that Galbraith has inserted comments on such subjects as U.S. foreign policy; John Foster Dulles, former secretary of state, and Ezra Taft Benson, former secretary of agriculture, which seems oddly out of place, regardless of whether you agree with Galbraith's appraisals.

Shades Help In Matching Tans

If you are in the process of acquiring a tan or fading it for the new season's fashions, three - well chosen shades of make - up will beautify all the day-by-day complexion color changes. Regardless of the foundation make - up you use, select one color to harmonize with your natural skin tone, one in a rich deep shade to match the darkest tan your complexion finally becomes, and the other in a medium shade just between the two.

Apply the natural color until a golden tan begins to appear. Then, during the make-up application, blend in a small amount of the medium shade. Once you use two make - up colors together, you'll realize how easy it is to match each complexion change. As the suntan deepens, apply the medium shade alone, and then begin to mix it with the darker make-up until you are using it altogether.

The moment you decide to lose your suntan, simply reverse the process and blend in the lighter shades as required. This technique will keep your complexion even - toned, radiant and beautiful throughout the entire vacation season.

Wig Popularity Soars

By CHARLES F. JUSTICE

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Glamourpusses aren't my main customers; most of my sales are to fashion-conscious working girls and housewives who can buy on terms if they like."

Milton Barrie, who said that, is a king of wigdom.

He sells the wigs, curly and straight, at discount in what he termed "the largest wig store anywhere." He sells more than 3,000 a year at his Wig City.

Barrie is grateful that females have gotten out of the hugh-hush stage about wigs. It's good for business.

"Formerly," he said, "a woman wouldn't want to tell her neighbor she was wearing a wig. It was like falsies. Now wigs are a status staple. They're an integral part of milady's wardrobe."

Barrie's most expensive wig is ticketed at $300.

The wig center also rents — at $15 a day or $25 a weekend. Most women who rent a wig eventually buy one.

Perukes in stock come in 60 basic shades with another 60 variations in shades. There are 15 shades of red alone. The most popular: dark brown.

With proper care, a wig ought to last a month without a beauty treatment, according to the expert. "It saves money on beauty shop bills," he said.

Among his customers Barrie listed fan dancer Sally Rand, musical comedy star Diahann Carroll, singers Terry Thornton and Lori James.

"The most consistent purchasers," Barrie said, "are airline stewardesses."

Most women, by the way, purchase a wig that is nearly the shade of their own hair.

"We encourage this," Barrie said. "The shock is too much for them and their friends if they pick some radically different color. They can't cope with it."

Usually it takes several hours to prepare a wig for a customer.

Part of this time is taken up persuading a woman not to order an orange-colored wig and to choose instead one that is more nearly her own shade.

Morning Nuptials Unite Alice Louise Goorley, Ensign Harold Breard Jr.

Miss Alice Louise Goorley and Ensign Harold Anthony Breard Jr. exchanged wedding vows Saturday, August 22 in a ceremony solemnized at 11 a.m. in Jesus the Good Shepherd Church. Monsignor John Wakeman, rector of Maryhill Seminary, Alexandria, officiated at the double ring vows.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Theodore Goorley and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anthony Breard, Sr., all of Monroe. The groom's family is descended from one of Monroe's original settlers, Lt. Jean Louis Alexander Breard, French naval officer, who received a grant in 1791 from Don Juan Filhiol, founder of Fort Miro. Miss Goorley's forebears also were land grant settlers in Pennsylvania and Ohio prior to the Revolutionary War.

Traditional arrangements of white California gladioli and miniature chrysanthemums in gold vases were placed on the altar with lighted candles in brass candelabra. Family pews were marked by clusters of flowers tied with ribbons.

Escorting guests to their pews were Michael Feltus Breard, brother of the groom; Peter J. Mulhearn, James T. Bailey and Ralph T. Armstrong, during a concert of nuptial music presented by Miss June Maddux, Brookhaven, Miss., organist and Miss Linda Allen, Houma, soloist.

Attending the bride were Miss Coni Sweeney of Shreveport and Miss Kathy Chermak of Washington D. C. Their gowns of Jade green crystalline taffeta were fashioned with portrait necklines, fitted midriffs and floor length bell skirts. Matching tailored bows formed their headpieces and they carried cascade bouquets of Golden Rapture roses.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white Alencon lace, re-embroidered with seed pearls and featuring a portrait neckline and elbow sleeves. The belled skirt of peau de soie terminated in a chapel train. Her triple tiered veil of illusion was held by a double ring halo of Alencon lace and her only jewelry was an antique diamond lavalier, a gift of the groom. She carried a cascade bouquet of white bridal roses.

Mr. Breard attended his son as best man and military groomsmen in informal dress uniform, included Lt. Col. Reneau G. Breard, Lt. (jg) Armand E. Breard, cousins of the groom, both of Monroe; Lt. (jg) Karl Crowder, Wytheville, Va., Ensign Richard A. Wilson and Ensign James Hall, both of Beeville, Texas and Lt. John Goorley, brother of the bride. Bruce Walker and Patrick Hayes served as altar boys.

Mrs. Goorley, mother of the bride, wore a pearl gray linen with empire waistline and yoke of embroidered organza. Her hat was of white organza and she wore matching shoes and a corsage of white Japhet orchids. The groom's mother chose a white linen sheath with overblouse embroidered in natural linen. Her accessories were white and her hat was of white petals. She also wore white Japhet orchids.

A ceremonial arch of gleaming sabers was formed by the groomsmen at the church entrance for the departure of the bride and groom.

The wedding was followed by a reception given by the bride's parents at the Paragon Club. Mrs. Theodore H. Allen and Mrs. Edgar Hemphill welcomed guests into the reception room where the receiving line was formed. Miss Trudi Avants of Baton Rouge, registered guests in the bride's book, at a table covered with a white organdy cloth, bordered with lace. A memory candle encircled with white flowers completed the decor.

The bride's table was covered with a ruffled white organdy cloth and centered with an arrangement of stock and white bridal roses in an antique cherub epergne. At one end the footed silver punch bowl was presided over by Mrs. Harry H. Blanke Jr., sister of the groom and Mrs. Warren Breard, aunt of the groom. Mrs. Sara Goorley Beegle, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. John Collens, aunt of the groom, poured coffee and another aunt of the bride, Mrs. Robert R. Coleman of Los Angeles, Calif., served the tiered wedding cake.

Assisting with the courtesies were Miss Sandra Dean, Miss Josie Gregory of El Dorado, Ark., Miss Ann Woodward, Calhoun; Miss Linda Johnston, Shreveport; Miss Barbara Borgkvist and Miss Beverly Bartlett. Rice bags were distributed by Mary Clay Albright and Lou Lemert.

For a wedding trip to the Ozark Mountains the bride changed into a three piece suit of green Italian silk linen with shoes and bag of alabaster lizard, and a corsage of gardenias. The couple will be at home at Ocean Beach, Florida, where Ensign Breard is assigned to the USS Turner.

Mrs. Breard is a graduate of Neville high school and attended Louisiana Tech where she was a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority and served as senator on the Student Senate. Ensign Breard also graduated from Neville high school and from the United States Naval Academy, where he was a member and during his senior year, commander of the United States Naval Academy Drum and Bugle Corps.

MRS. JESSE DOUGLAS BRIDGES

Candlelight Scene Marks Bridges-Taylor Wedding

Arrangements of all white gladioli, Fuji chrysanthemums, pompons and lighted tapers fromed a setting at the First Methodist Church of Winnfield, Friday, August 21 at 7 p.m. for the wedding of Miss Judith Frances Taylor and Jesse Douglas Bridges. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clyde Taylor, Winnfield and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Parum Porter Bridges of Pleasant Hill.

Clusters of ivy tied with white bows at the base of a three-branch candelabra marked the pew caps and potted palms were placed at the altar steps. At either side of the chancel were myriad lighted tapers which formed a background setting for the white satin prie dieu, centered with a bunch of white violets and ribbons.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Ruth Dufresne, organist and Mrs. Larry Price, soloist. The Rev. George W. Ross performed the double ring ceremony, and acolytes who served as candlelighters were Eddie Jenkins and Max Kelley.

She carried a cascade bouquet of English ivy interspersed with white Fuji mums and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Paul Miller, cousin of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a sweeping gown of Saccaret gold peau de soie designed with wide oval neckline and short sleeves. A bow of self fabric marked the back waistline and extended into three wide panels to the hemline. Bridesmaids, Mrs. Ray Aycock, Ruston and Miss Brenda Carpenter, Winnfield, wore gowns of Island green styled identically to that of the honor attendant. A massive fan - shaped arrangement of gladioli and chrysanthemums provided a background for the bride's table which was overlaid with a linen and lace cloth centered with the wedding cake. Yellow roses and ivory tapers in a silver epergne was placed between two crystal punch bowls on the refreshment table covered with an ivory linen cloth. Silver three-pronged bud vase held long stem gold roses where Mrs. Perry H. Smith registered the guests.

Leather Makes Fashion Plus For Fall Wear

The feeling for luxurious texture that is one of the strong points of the current fashion era brought leather back strongly last year. The trend will continue, with leather itself valued for its look and feel, but even more as the accent that makes the fashion plus.

What's better than a fashion knit? One which is leather-bound and sashed. What's better than fur itself? Fur combined with leather.

The variations run all the way from narrow bindings and dog leash belts to half - and - half combinations. Often a coat reverses from leather to fur, especially useful when one side is sporty suede, the other dressy black nutria.

For ski wear have a white calf pullover with sleeves, front band and big cuff collar in black leather. For city lunches have a suit with butter-soft suede skirt, a jacket that reverses to mink paw, that pretty brown and white combination.

Leather coats, once entirely sports types, now are dress coats, too. Young actress Patty Duke loves a floor-length white leather evening coat she's recently acquired. White leather hats are both dashing and practical, the only white that just wipes clean of city grime. The newest boots for fall will be copies of Andrew Courreges' slim white kids, to wear with fur-trimmed suits.

What better kind of party for the summer than a luau? And what better time of year than this for a Hawaiian party? Members of Bayou DeSiard country club enjoyed just this sort of gala, gayest party of the season, last Saturday night. An island menu was served, and a floor-show presented by "The Polynesian revue."

Guests were greeted at the entrance by members of the entertainment committee, hosts for the evening. Leis were presented to all comers, with fresh orchids flown in from the Islands for the ladies. Focal point in the entrance was a tiered brass container filled with fresh fruit and tropical greenery.

Decorations carried a Polynesian theme throughout the club, with large posters of the Islands on the doors and down the halls. Backgrounds were designed of bamboo stalks, potted palms, and banana trees, all back-lighted and placed throughout the reception area.

Twin arrangements of red and yellow gladioli in tall brass compotes were used at each end of the long buffet table in the main dining room. Centerpiece was a whole roast suckling pig, atop a pyramid of fresh glazed fruit. The menu was highlighted by such Polynesian specialities as Hawaiian ribs; Chicken Aloha (with pineapple and soy sauce cooked to a rich gravy); fried rice; summer buffet salad of fresh pineapple, watermelon fingers, peaches, pears; a casserole of ham, vegetables and pineapple; and a casserole of green beans, water chestnuts, and cheese. Dessert was a choice of pineapple or cocoanut pie.

A wide variety of attire, all with a Polynesian flair, was noted at the party. We saw muu-muus, sarongs, gay printed shirts, tea-timers, hula-muus, Chinese bankers' coats, houseboy outfits.

At nine - thirty, an hour-long floor show entitled "Polynesian Revue" was presented by a troupe of five musicians and five dancers. Dances from Samoa, Tahiti, Hawaii, New Zealand, and other Islands were performed, in costumes showing the differences in various areas of Polynesia.

Preceding the party at the club, VICKY and SHELBY HILL invited a group to their house for a get-together and proceding to the club in costume. This group had made a trip to the Hawaiian Islands together about two years ago. To set the proper mood, Vicky served the island drink called "Mai tai" with Wong Tong, Chinese chicken, egg rolls, and macadamia nuts.

LEIS AND ORCHIDS were presented to each arrival at Bayou DeSiard country club's Polynesian party last Saturday night. Members of the entertainment committee served on the welcoming committee. Here Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Brown, left, and Mrs. Robert Lewis, right, present leis to club members, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cummings of Columbia.

ROAST WHOLE SUCKLING PIG was the Island delicacy which centered the refreshment table at Bayou DeSiard's party. Here Mr. and Mrs. Armand V. Breard and Mr. and Mrs. James Rivers serve themselves from the lavish buffet. Mr. Rivers, chairman of the club's entertainment committee, was in charge of Saturday night's affair.

Members brought out of town visitors to this party. Among the groups present we noted the BOB CURRYS, with their guest, Courtney's sister, MRS. RICHARD GREMILLION of Baton Rouge. She was here for the weekend, took Courtney home with her for a week . . . With the FELIX WILLEYS were his sister and brother - in - law, MARY LOU and JAMES FITE of Nashville, Tenn., here for the week-end en route home from a visit to Dallas.

With DOT and FRED AMMAN were her mother, LUCILLE TURPIN, and her guest, MABEL DAVENPORT of Bowling Green, Kentucky . . . JOYCE and D. F. BURKHALTER had as their guests LaFOYE and DELTON McCARTY of Winnsboro. The McCartys are soon to move to Monroe with their two daughters, CHRIS who will be a freshman at Neville, and MAUREEN, who will attend Lexington.

PAT LAROCCA of El Paso, Texas, was the guest of RENEE and HOMER TILLERY. Pat, with the children, PATTY, JANE and TOMMY, visited the Tillerys through Wednesday of this week.

Tuesday was indeed a red letter day for a group who were invited to Jackson, Mississippi, to spend the day with CINDY WAKEFIELD and her mother, MYRTIS WALTON. Cindy, who lived in Monroe for a number of years before moving to Munster, Indiana, in early 1963, was home visiting in Jackson. As we go to press, plans are for her to be in Monroe this weekend.

A caravan of cars was formed to drive to Jackson. Those included in the party were TEEDEE DIXON, CISSY RYAN, ANN HOLMES, MARGARET LAND, PAT RILEY, JEAN HUENEFELD, KATHERINE JORDAN, VIRGINIA GUERRIERO, LOUISE MORGAN, BERNICE WOODS, ADELE RANSOM, MARILLYN TAYLOR, VERA TROY, HUGH TOUCHSTONE, JEAN MINTZ, BETTY MABRAY, and JEANNE DOWNING. By an incredible series of crossed wires and misunderstandings, TOMMIE SARTOR got left at home.

Myrtis's home at 3434 Old Canton Road, a jewel of a house, was scene of the party. In the living room were noted arrangements of yellow roses in crystal and silver; and summer greenery in brass containers. Myrtis and Cindy served beautiful frosted pink drinks with cheese straws as guests gathered.

In the dining room, the table was centered with a bronze and crystal epergne overflowing with green grapes and ivy. Guests served themselves from the buffet table before being seated in living room or den. Included on the menu were chicken breasts in a sauce of sour cream and jumbo mushrooms; marinated asparagus and artichoke hearts; tomato aspic with horseradish sauce; casserole of wild rice with almonds, and tiny hot biscuits. For dessert, the hostesses served pound cake with fresh peaches and whipped cream, with coffee.

Bayou DeSiard country club was scene of a luncheon yesterday honoring SUE DOIRON of Shreveport, bride - elect of JACK MAXWELL of Ferriday. MAE SHAW, was hostess for the party in the private dining room. An antique silver wine cooler filled with gardenias centered the table, where bridal placecards marked plates for ten guests. Sue and Jack are students at Louisiana Tech.

Two out of town visitors were named guests of honor when EDWYNNE SOLOMON and STELLA SANDMAN entertained at a dessert - card party at Bayou DeSiard country club on Wednesday. Honored were BETTY MARX of California, guest of CAROL MARX; and ELEANOR MENDELSOHN of Baton Rouge, who is visiting her mother, ELSIE HENINGER. Three tables of players took part in the games in the main ballroom at the club.

What constitutes "Fighting Words" to a woman writer has never been better set down than in these lines by Dorothy Parker:

Say my love is easy had,
Say I'm bitten raw with pride,
Say I am too often sad—
Still behold me at your side.
Say I'm neither brave nor young,
Say I woo and coddle care,
Say the devil touched my tongue—
Still you have my heart to wear.
But say my verses do not scan
And I get me another man!

SPRAY BLURR

NEW YORK (UPI) — With the cosmetics industry turning out 225 million cans of hair spray a year, no wonder some of it is getting in madame's orbs.

Watch direction of the nozzle when putting the finishing touches on a coiffure, suggest Murine researchers. If spray does get in the eyes, wash them with plain water immediately. If irritation still results, try an eye wash.

Simpson-Ladshaw Vows Read In Parkview Church

Solemnized at 6 p.m. Friday, August 21 in Parkview Baptist Church was the double ring ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Mary Grace Ladshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Ladshaw Jr., 1414 Auburn, Monroe, and Reilly James Simpson, son of Rev. and Mrs. Vernon Denson Simpson, Theodore, Ala.

The bridegroom's father, assisted by Rev. James R. Edwards performed the vows before a white prie dieu against a background of branched candelabra holding white tapers, banked with fern and palm trees. The stained glass cross was lighted in the background. Traditional nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Gerald Merritt, organist and Jim Mathis, soloist.

Mr. Ladshaw gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory French taffeta with appliques of Alencon lace scattered over the full skirt. A double layer of Alencon lace formed a sweetheart neckline of the pointed bodice with short shirred sleeves. A large bow of the lace fell into lace panels which formed a chapel train. A tiara of seed pearls and crystals held her fingertip veil of French illusion. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis, white miniature moon chrysanthemums centered with a white orchid atop a white Bible.

Miss Linda Jane Harvill of Bay Minette, Ala., who served as maid of honor, wore a floor length gown of yellow organza over taffeta with belled skirt and short jacket. Her headdress was a yellow cabbage rose with a circlet of tulle and completing her costume were yellow pumps, short white gloves and a drop pearl necklace, a gift of the bride. Dressed identically to the maid of honor were the bridesmaids, Miss Carolyn Simpson, sister of the groom, Theodore, Ala., Miss Delores Moody, Mobile, Ala., and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Paula Ladshaw, sister of the bride. Their bouquets were crescent design of yellow Fuji chrysanthemums, and moon mums with bronze net and ribbon.

Serving as best man for his brother was Charles Vernon Simpson and groomsmen were Billy Ladshaw, brother of the bride and Earl Webb, Monroe. Ushers were Paul Babuchna of Biloxi, Miss., and James W. Channell, Atlanta, Ga., cousin of the bride. Tommy Ladshaw, brother of the bride, acted as ring bearer.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a beige silk shantung dress with lace jacket, matching shoes and hat of beige silk with sequin trim. Her corsage was of green cymbidium orchids. The groom's mother chose a dress of powder blue silk organza, with blue silk hat, matching accessories and corsage of pale pink cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained in the reception hall of the church. Two silver candelabra and a cluster of yellow Fuji chrysanthemums and pompons with white tapers centered the bride's table which was covered with white net and tulle. Mrs. J. W. Channell and Mrs. C. V. Simpson served the tiered wedding cake and alternating at the silver punch bowl were Miss Sylvia Pritcher and Miss Sandra Cararas. Miss Diane McGee presided at the guest book and tea girls were Misses Rita Brandon, Amy Nell Riley, Janet Germany and Sandra Seale. Rice bags were distributed by Jonita Joseph, Stacy Harrison, Cindy Channell and Suzonne Dickerson. Others assisting with courtesies were Mrs. R. B. Harrison, Mrs. E. J. Joseph, Mrs. R. R. Riley, Mrs. D. W. Tillman, Mrs. F. A. Mathis, Mrs. G. L. Brown and Mrs. J. C. Dickerson. Mrs. Gerrald Merritt provided piano music. All were presented corsages of white carnations.

For a wedding trip West the bride changed into a dress of azure silk shantung with accessories of cocoa patent and the orchid from her bouquet. They will be at home in Austin, Texas where Mr. Simpson will attend the University of Texas Law School.

The bride is a graduate of Neville high school and graduated cum laude in August 1964 from William Carey College, Hattiesburg, Miss., where she was president of Alpha Lambda honorary scholastic society and dorm president. Mr. Simpson graduated from Theodore high school and William Carey College. He was president of the Association of Men Students, a class president, listed in Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges, was recipient of Kiwanis Club scholarship, a member of Circle K club and recipient of a pre-law citation.

Rayville Couple Wed In Candlelight Setting

The wedding of Miss Sue Melanie Livingston, daughter of Mrs. John Henry Livingston and the late Mr. Livingston, and William Henry Hallack Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Hallack, all of Rayville, was solemnized Friday, August 14 in the chapel of the First Baptist Church, Rayville.

Dr. H. R. Herrington performed the double ring ceremony in a candlelight setting. The altar was banked with a mass arrangement of gladioli and greenery and tall white tapers which were lighted by Marsha Sturgis and Jennifer Boyd.

Mrs. Kermit Walters, pianist, played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Ann Joyner.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Max Livingston. Her traditional gown of antique peau de soie was fashioned with side pleats in the floor length skirt and featured a fitted bodice with Sabrina neckline, of appliqued lace embroidered in seed pearls. The detachable watteau train of peau de soie was also embellished with the applique motifs. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a miniature pearl studded pillbox and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, cascaded by violets, tuberoses and satin streamers.

Attending the bride were Miss Linky Murray, maid of honor; Miss Rosalyn Hardy, Miss Susan Parrish and Miss Cathy Hallock, sister of the groom, as bridesmaids. They wore identical dresses of aqua peau de soie featuring fitted bodices and pleated skirts, with matching pillbox hats, veiled in aqua illusion. They carried nosegays of yellow Fuji chrysanthemums with English ivy streamers.

Hans Eppinette served the groom as best man and groomsmen were James Parrish, Jackie Fuller and Tommie Smith.

The bride's mother chose for the occasion a dress of orchid linen with matching accessories and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother was wearing a beige sheath with lace bodice and a bronze orchid corsage.

A reception followed in the church parlor, where the refreshment table was centered by a floral arrangement flanked by silver candelabra and the tiered wedding cake and punch service. Mrs. Hans Eppinette presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Max Livingston served cake, assisted by Laureen Johnson, Paula Buie, Dianne Boles, Dana Kervin, Marsha Sturgis and Jennifer Boyd as tea girls. Dianne McConnell, niece of the bride, was at the bride's book.

When the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a navy sheath with white accessories and the orchids from her bouquet. The bride is a graduate of Rayville high school. Mr. Hallack was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College and is enrolled in Louisiana State University Law School. The couple will be at home in Baton Rouge.

The wedding of Miss Joyce Mae Foy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin M. Foy of Baton Rouge and William Major DeMoss, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. DeMoss of Tallulah, was solemnized Saturday, August 8 at 10 a.m. in the First Christian Church in Baton Rouge.

The Rev. Verl Underwood performed the double ring vows following nuptial music by Mrs. Jere Higgs, organist and Wilburn Walker, soloist.

On the altar fan-shaped arrangements of white flowers were flanked by tall white tapers. Miss Kay DeMoss, sister of the groom, lighted the candles.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of gossamer silk over peau de soie fashioned on princess lines. The empire bodice with Florentine neckline was highlighted by a pearl embroidered motif. Pearl encrusted Chantilly lace bordered the belled floor length skirt and a lace-edged watteau train fell from the shoulders. A bouffant veil of illusion was held in place by a princess crown of lace and pearls. She carried a cascade of white feathered carnations centered with a white orchid.

Miss Beverly Ann Covington, maid of honor, wore a floor length gown of linen textured pink silk. Her headpiece was a pillbox of pink petals and she wore matching slippers and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Creative Texas Mother Tastes Sweet Success

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mrs. Howard Singer, mother of three, has proved that a woman with ingenuity, spare time, and the energy to get a small business started can make an unusual idea a going concern.

Her idea: a candy tree. When you are tired of looking at it, you can eat it.

With $300 she saved from her household allowance, Mrs. Singer founded Candy Tree, Inc., two years ago and started putting together trees whose fruit are hard candies yrapped in colorful paper.

The candies are strung on wire frames and affixed to a styrofoam base.

The trees proved so popular as decorations, gifts, and treats that it was not long before Mrs. Singer had to hire a staff to help make them.

Mrs. Singer took her plunge into business with little experience, as an outlet for her creative energies and as good training for budget balancing.

"I didn't even know how to balance a checkbook," she said. "I'd file bills under 'T' for 'Trouble.'

"The first year, I put all the money back into the business. Later, one night I was discussing what I was going to buy with this amount and that amount. My husband reminded me of the income tax. I nearly collapsed."

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Gardening Tradition

By MRS. LESLIE CLARK
Guest Writer

A book all gardeners should find interesting, donated to the Garden Center by Mrs. K. R. Young, is "Pioneer American Gardening," compiled by Elvenia Slosson.

Rich in tradition, the reader clearly sees how the gardens made by our forefathers in this country over 200 years ago are a priceless inheritance. With the many privations of beginning life anew in this untried land, how often must the thoughts of the Colonists have turned with weary longing to the homeland and to the familiar scenes they had left. Some highlights I think you will enjoy follow.

CHERISHED

You will learn that in Vermont, seeds, bulbs, and plants are looked upon as heirlooms, as respected and cherished as fine old glass or china. In Rhode Island, thyme that can survive a new England winter, one lady reports, is growing well and thriving in great quantities where it has escaped from her great-grandmother's herb garden brought with her from England. Horseradish can still be found growing around old cellar holes, planted no one knows how long ago.

White heather grows today in French Town and tradition is sure that it was planted by the Huguenots in 1686. The colonists frequently brought small fruit trees with them. William Blackstone planted upon his farm at Study Hill an orchard, the first in Rhode Island. Many of the trees which he planted 130 years ago are still pretty, thrifty fruit bearing trees.

FLOWER BORDERED

Of Tennessee is said: "The early houses, most of them made of hand-hewn logs had shrub and flower bordered walks to the doorway. Favorite among these plantings were lilac, snowball, lavender, and the damask rose. Cuttings and seeds were brought from old homes and were freely exchanged among neighbors. Evergreens used were boxwood, arborvitae, pine, hemlock and cedar. The first formal gardens in Tennessee may be claimed by Memphis. These gardens were Spanish made in 1795 in what is now the business district of Memphis, which was then Fort Ferdinand on the Chickasaw Bluff. The home of Governor William Blount built in 1792 in Knoxville, the first frame house west of the Allegheny Mountains, had a well laid out garden in the rear of the house." In Knox County, "State's View", the home of Charles McClung, surveyor, lawyer, and diplomat, this charming descriptive paragraph is quoted from "History of Homes and Gardens of Tennessee" — "On State's View's southern slope daffodils, snowdrops, lilies and roses linger still in the grass, indicating the location of the old garden. What an enchanting spot this must have been when, more than a century of Aprils ago, Margaret McClung was its lovely chatelain! Pausing among the lilacs, as the apple blossom petals drifted down on her fair head, with the bleating of lambs, the negro voices from the quarters below, and the hum of the busy mill down on Turkey Creek making a song of domestic contentment she must have looked toward the blue Smokies and asked as all gardeners do: Who will cherish my garden a hundred years from now?"

PLANTING RECOMMENDED

In Utah, Brigham Young insisted that even the first rude log cabins be beautified by planting. "Some will say that it is not worth while to plant around a log cabin. I say," he thundered on Sunday afternoon sermons, "that it is worth while. Plant vines over the door, plant fruits and trees and flowers so that everyone who passes will say, what a lovely little cottage." Soon every home had its sheltering trees, its fruit trees and berry patch, its lilacs and roses blooming sweetly by the door. Travelers and visitors who stopped on their way to the gold fields of California were amazed to find such gardened homes in this wild country, so very different from the usual frontier community. Many famous writers commented in print at the peaceful beauty of the towns, each home surrounded with gardens of flowers and ripening fruit. All plants were in great demand, since the only source of supply was some thousand covered-wagon miles away. A single peach stone sold for five cents.

MANY FACETS

The reader is given a glimpse of each state's share in creating the national garden of these United States of American. And to be sure, you wouldn't want to miss the chapter on Old Bulbs by Jo N. Evans and the Gardens of Old Natchez. There is much more. You'll learn how the pecan of Texas got it's name and how a 15-year-old girl in the year 1815 correctly named her plant collection, and about the Heirloom Beans. The southerner will appreciate the contribution of Laura M. Bragg on Old Plantations. How the French Huguenots under Jean Ribault went ashore at Port Royal in 1562 where they "found the place as pleasant as possible, for it was all covered with mighty high oaks and infinite store of cedars, and with lentiches growing underneath them smelling so sweetly that the very fragrant odor only made the place seem exceedingly pleasant. I wish you Happy Reading!

Mrs. Margie Porter was on the sick list last week and was unable to give the garden show as announced. Mrs. Ralph Coleman would appreciate your surplus ivy cuttings, (phone 322-3979). Anyone who has cuttings, plants, etc., to share, call the Garden Center. Sharing helps to keep our city beautiful. Sponge the leaves of house plants with a mixture of one part water and one part whole milk for a well groomed look. Mrs. Tolar will be back with us Wednesday. I can hardly wait to see what she returns with this time.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Clematis In Comeback

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Now that nurseries here and there are beginning to supply gardeners with the fine varieties of clematis, these once - popular vines are appearing in our gardens again.

Catalogues of the 1830s and 1840s listed many varieties of the showy clematis vines. Almost as fast as these named varieties were created in Europe, the Boston and Philadelphia and New York nurserymen introduced them here. Our grandmothers grew many varieties on their well houses and on trellises and garden fences. In the 1890s, there were several dozen varieties available, but shortly after that, the interest in these showy flowers seems to have died down.

GROWN AGAIN

Today, we are again beginning to grow clematis. Although they have some cultural requirements, gardeners are catching on to what it takes to grow them: a soil composed of one third coarse sand, one third rich garden loam and one third humus of some kind like peat moss. To this mixture should be added enough agricultural lime to make it sweet. Some gardeners mix old spent cow manure into the soil, but some are against this and use a complete fertilizer which is non acid forming.

The worst enemy of the big flowered hybrid clematis is stem rot, a disease which attacks the main stem right at the ground. Dusting with sulphur will control this disease, and a collar of zink placed a few inches high and one inch into the ground seems to help prevent both the disease and any damage which might come to the stiff main stem at ground level. The large amount of coarse sand recommended above certainly helps to keep the drainage going, and this, in turn, aids in preventing stem rot.

LIKE COOL PLACE

Clematis vines like to have their feet in a cool place such as along the bottom of a wall. Here in the South, we have to watch out for damage to these elegant vines during our prolonged droughts, but the humus in the soil mixture and a cool area for the roots of these plants combine to make them happy.

There are so many named varieties of clematis that it is difficult to make a choice among them. There are, however, some hybrids which are easier to grow than others. Among the easier ones are the old Jackmani (that deep bright violet one which one sees more often than any other), Henryi, the commonest white, Prinz Hendrik (azure blue), Nelly Moser (striking mauve with red band down the center of each speal) Duchess of Albany and Countess of Onslow (crimson and white), Mrs. Cholmondelay (light blue) and, if you want a double one, Belle of Woking.

We suggest a north facing location for the clematis hybrids and as cool a spot as you can find here in the South. A well grown vine is a dazzling sight, and many southern gardeners grow these plants to perfection as you will see, here and there, on fences and on the north side of houses.

The heating unit is isolated from the mattress and a cut-out operates if the temperature should rise three degrees above maximum. Base and mattress are especially designed to allow free circulation of the fanned air.

Neat, quick repairs in plastic, leather or fabric upholstery with a new transparent, pressure-sensitive tape, designed to stand extremes of heat and cold. Available in gloss or matte finish in one-inch wide rolls.

An instant roadway, should you have use for one. A new system allows an 11-foot wide aluminum roadway to be unrolled over marshy, sandy, sticky or otherwise soft terrain at a rate of 10 miles per hour. The equipment is recoverable and reusable and will bear vehicles of 20 tons or more, making it useful in construction lumbering and mining as well as the military use for which it was designed.

Safety Angles Important In Tending Yard

There's a lot more to good lawn care than planting the right kind of grass, fertilizing it correctly, watering it when needed, and cutting it at the right height, says the Louisiana State University Agricultural Extension Service.

Good lawn care also has its safety angles, as the recent experience of one Louisiana man demonstrates.

The man was mowing his yard when he suddenly felt a sharp pain in his chest, as if someone had shot him with a BB gun. When he began to find it difficult to breath, he went to a doctor and then to a hospital, where surgeons found that a four-inch piece of wire thrown by the mower had pierced his heart. He survived but doctors classed it as a miraculous escape from death.

In the United States about 80,000 such accidents, most of them less serious, take place each year. "But this man's experience warns all of us that safety first is just as important in yard work as in factory work or in automobile driving, says Extension. "The lawn mower is one of the greatest labor savers ever invested, but like many other household appliances it can be dangerous if not operated very carefully."

PROTECT CHILDREN

Good lawn maintenance calls for careful removal of rocks, pieces of metal, and other such objects before mowing. The mower should be operated according to instruction. Children should not be allowed nearby when the mower is in use.

It should not be left unattended with the motor running. The gas tank should not be filled while the motor is running or while it is still hot. Repairs or adjustments should never be attempted while the motor is running.

AMONG THE recent International Holland Bulb Selections was this Gregii Red Riding Hood tulip, which is large, and scarlet with black base, and bronze mottled leaves. Selections are influenced by the admiration expressed by visitors during the spring at the huge Keukenhof bulb garden in Lisse, Holland.

Store Tubers For Winter

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Mrs. Gardener, in a matter of a few weeks, the foliage of the fancy leafed caladium will begin to die. However, some may last until frost. The tubers will not survive in the soil through the winter, so lift the tubers and store them for planting next spring.

You may use one of several methods for successful storage. Tubers can be packed in peat moss or dry sand, and placed in a dry, cool place. Another method is storing the tubers in old nylon stockings and hanging them in a cool, dry place. The heat temperature for storage is in the 60 to 70 range.

Before storing the tubers, it will pay you, Mrs. Gardener, to treat them for bulb mites. Place the tubers in an air tight container and dust with a chemical commonly used for moth control when storing winter clothing such as napthalene flakes or paradichlorobenzene. Allow the tubers to remain in the container for at least 48 hours before removing them. Check the tubers every six weeks for signs of mites and retreat if necessary.

TIP TO MR. PAINTER

If you, Mr. Do-It-Yourself, are planning to paint your house here's a tip from the U.S.D.A. specialists in the Forest Porducts Laboratory. Paint the north side early in the morning, the east side late in the morning, the south side well after noon, and west side during the late afternoon. In other words, follow the sun.

FREEZER FACTS

Where you put your food freezer makes a difference in how well it operates, how convenient it is, and how much it costs to run it. The most logical place for a freezer is the kitchen, utility room, porch or basement.

But are these always the best places? A freezer should be located in a cool, dry, well ventilated area, out of direct sunlight. It should not be placed in a room that is especially hot in the summer, or heavily heated in winter. Too hot a spot can add 15 per cent to the cost of operating the freezer. Do not place the freezer in a niche in the wall or in a place with cabinets on three sides. There must be ample space at the back, top and sides so air can circulate around the cabinet. Circulation is necessary for the escape of heat given off by the condenser.

HINTS TO HOMEMAKERS

Meat does not ordinarily need to be washed before it is cooked. However, our food specialists in the U. S. Department of Agriculture suggest you, Mrs. Homemaker, wipe it with a damp cloth or scrape it with the blunt edge of a knife.

The best way to ripen green picked tomatoes is in a relatively cool place where the temperature is 60 to 70 degrees. Too much sunlight prevents development of normal, even color. Immature, green tomatoes won't ripen in the sun and are likely to rot if kept there too long.

NON-STICK COOKWARE

An innovation in cookware that began with the non-stick frypan two years ago has now achieved an important place in the cookware industry. Interest in non-stick cookware among consumers continues to grow. A national test conducted in January, 1964 revealed that one out of four people who bought metal cookware last fall purchased at least one pan coated with "teflon."

With the increase in production and variety of non-stick utensils, consumers should have no difficulty in finding their choice of cookware on the market this year. Fifteen manufacturers now offer a wide variety of non-stick utensils including casseroles, loaf pans, saucepans, chicken fryers, griddles, cake molds, bake and roast pans, frypans, cookie sheets, muffin pans, electric frypans and griddles.

Big Pumpkin Raising Test Is Scheduled

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

The Men's Garden Clubs of America are sponsoring a "Big Pumpkin" contest for children. The contest is open to youngsters under 16. First prize is a $25 U.S. Savings Bond. There are four $5 awards and the next 10 biggest pumpkins will bring their owners a year's subscription to "The Gardener," MGCA's official publication.

All entries must be sent to George Spader, executive secretary, Men's Garden Clubs, Morrisville, N.Y., before Nov. 15. Each entry must include the weight of the pumpkin or other member of the gourd family, certified by a member of the MGCA and a photo of the grower with his pumpkin.

LAST LONGER

Roses cut in the morning before the sun is high, or in the evening, generally will last longer indoors.

Rosarians recommend cutting with a knife rather than a scissors, which will permit a slanting cut on the stem. Cut the stem only as long as is needed for the arrangement since taking too many leaves deprives the plant of foliage, thus weakening it.

A rose will keep longer if picked when the bud is just beginning to open. Petals will drop more rapidly if the rose is mature when cut. If the buds are too tight when the rose is cut they may not open at all.

Plunge the stems of the roses into a pail of water promptly to prevent quick hardening of calcification at the stem ends. This action will permit better absorption of water.

Keep the roses in a dark, cool room in deep water for a few hours before arranging them, to condition them for vases.

ANNUAL SHOW

The National Chrysanthemum Society's 21st annual show and meeting is scheduled Oct. 30-Nov. 1 at Birmingham, Ala. The society is preparing an Advanced Growers Handbook and is planning a test garden program to evaluate the many new chrysanthemums introduced each year.

NEW ROSE

A new rose to be introduced this fall (Jackson & Perkins) is a brilliant orange floribunda named Crown Jewel. It is described as a larger-flowered Spartan with dark green foliate and fragrant blooms.

REFORESTING

To reforest barren areas — some difficult to get to — the New York State Department of Public Works is using a truck from which a blower scatters a mixture of wood pulp, fiber glass, fertilizer and seeds of 10 different varieties of trees.

The mxiutre provides a protective covering for the seeds, enabling them to germinate more rapidly.

Rose Sport Has Change Of Coloring

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

"How come my rose bush has two almost all-red roses this year when last year all the flowers were white?" we were asked.

This bush apparently is what growers term a "sport." This is a mutation which, in this case, is manifest in the color of the flower. In plants, as in humans, genetic mixups occasionally occur, showing up in different characteristics after a time.

Generally, however, sports or mutations in roses tend to be unstable and it is possible that in the next several seasons all the flowers on our puzzled planter's bush will be white again.

However, if the red persists, then he has a sport.

EXAMPLE

An example, one rose grower related, is Chicago Peace, which was a sport of Peace found in the Midwest. It is almost identical to the original Peace except in the different color scheme. Fortunately, this turned out to be a stable sport — or should we say a lasting Peace.

CLUB GALL

The dogwood club gall, an insect which deforms dogwood, may be checked with sprays of DDT or Sevin repeated for six consecutive weeks in early summer, according to tests.

The gall (or swelling of tissue in new growth) is caused by larval infestation. The orange-yellow maggots winter on the soil surface under the trees as mature larvae. In spring, the tiny midges lay eggs among the small terminal leaves of new growth. The young larvae work into the base of the tiny leaves, causing curling.

Flowering and leaf buds beyond the balls usually die.

ELM DISEASE

A new approach to the fight to save the elm has been reported by plant pathologists. They have subjected the Dutch elm disease fungus to chemicals that appear almost effective in killing the fungus without injury to the tree. Among these materials are mixtures of isomers of aminotrichlorophenyl acetic acid, which investigators say do not act as ordinary fungicides do.

Experts at the Connecticut Agricultural Station and in Wisconsin report the compound causes changes within the tree that mechanically block the spread of the fungus. They are seeking the exact nature of this blocking action.

FOR SHADY SPORT

For the spot that gets little sun, we suggest ferns, pink or white astilbe, fancy-leaf caladium, impatiens, coleus or tuberous begonias. These should do well in pots plunged into the earth or peat moss. Try hanging tuberous begonias, fuchsias and trailing lobelias, ivy-leaf geraniums and strawberry geranium in semi-shade. Strawberry geranium (Saxifraga Sarmentosa) forms small plants at the ends of runners.

NEW BOOK

Available to help you select attractive ornamental trees for your lawn and home garden is "Flowering Trees," a new book by Robert B. Clark (Van Mostrand). Clark advises how to select dogwoods, crab apples, flowering cherries, magnolias and many other versatile trees that will provide year-around pleasure.

The illustrated book contains information about planting, care, pruning and forcing branches to bloom indoors in winter and early spring.

Here's The Answer

QUESTION: This is not just a question. It's a complaint. Every time I have a paint job to do, I go to our paint dealer and talk it over with him. I keep trying to get a single paint that will handle different kinds of surfaces, but he always tells me there is no such thing and I wind up buying two or three different kinds. Yet I always get the impression from reading paint advertisements that there are paints which can handle everything. Is my paint dealer giving me the right dope?

ANSWER: You can thank your dealer for being honest. There are paints which can be used on a variety of surfaces, but there is no such thing as an "all purpose" paint. That doesn't mean that you can't buy a paint which will do a good job on one or more surfaces, as well as an adequate job on other surfaces. But no single paint is the right paint for every purpose.

If it's perfect for surface number one, the chances are it is less than perfect for surface number three. That's where the paint industry has made its biggest advances in recent years: providing specific coatings for specific surfaces. There's no doubt that it makes the consumer's choice a little more difficult, but he is assured, after making his selection carefully, that he will get a paint which will look better, last longer and is easier to apply than the paint he would have purchased twenty years ago.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Want a special decorative effect on a painted surface?

Try using a feather duster!

This is no harebrained gimmick that sounds interesting but won't really work in practice. We've seen the results of the feather-duster technique and can testify to the novel and excellent results it produces.

It's not as far out as it seems to be at first glance. After all, professional masonry workers have been creating different textured finishes for years through similar procedures. The Italian travertine texture often used on stucco is obtained by using an ordinary whisk broom. After the finish coat is applied and troweled smooth, the whisk broom held at a slight angle, is run along the wet mixture to produce the hillocks and hollows which distinguish this finish.

SKILL NEEDED

A certain amount of professional skill is necessary to get this and other types of stucco finishes, but anybody who exercises a little care can get good results with paint and a feather duster. The first essential, unlike the stucco method, is that the base coat be thoroughly dry before applying any paint with a duster.

Besides the duster and the paint, you'll need a fairly large flat, shallow pan of some kind. One of the metal trays used when applying paint to a roller will do nicely, although a pan which keeps the paint level is preferable. There should not be more than an inch or so of paint in the pan or tray while doing the painting.

If there is any trick at all to using the duster, it is to do everything lightly. Dip the duster into the pan lightly; touch it lightly to a piece of scrap cardboard to remove any excess paint; then flick the duster lightly against the wall or other painted surface. Each touch of the duster will produce an unusual, interesting and effective design. You can space the designs as close together or as far apart as you wish.

CURTAIN CALL

The playbooks have arrived for "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With," the opening production of the new Little Theatre season. A quick perusal confirms the hilarity of this Norman Krasna comedy and the complexity of staging its multiple scene changes. It will be interesting to see how Lonny Fraze and our new technical director surmount problems reminiscent of last season's "Auntie Mame."

Even with some doubling of parts, it will take a cast of a dozen men and five or six women to cope with "Who Was That Lady. The principal characters are an attractive young married couple, played on Broadway by Mary Healy and Peter Lind Hayes, and the husband's Army buddy and long-time friend who was Ray Walston in the original cast.

SPIES, AGENTS

Then there are two Russian spies, two F.B.I. men and a C.I.A. agent who could be drawn from almost any age bracket past twenty, The Coogle sisters are two brassy blondes in their twenties who have one big scene. Lesser parts call for assorted tenants, waiters, secretaries and repairmen. We will need someone who can impersonate a Chinese restaurant owner.

With such a wide range of parts in terms of age, length and difficulty, there will be an opportunity for nearly anyone who has harbored a secret ambition to appear in a Little Theatre play. Tryouts for "Who Was That Lady," will be held Monday and Tuesday, August 31 and September 1, at Strauss Playhouse at 7:30 p.m. Even if you are hesitant about auditioning, at least come to see how it is done.

Meanwhile the membership solicitation continues, with initial emphasis on patron members. However, other types of membership may also be secured at this time. For many years that mainstay of Little Theatre has been the sustaining membership at $7.50 which covers one admission to each of the five productions, including the winter musical. At an average of $1.50 per play, sustaining membership is a great bargain.

STUDENT MEMBERSHIP

This season for the first time in several years, Little Theatre is again offering a season membership for students at $5. A student is defined as someone in full time attendance at school or college. The former student membership at $1 is also available, calling for an additional cash admission of $1 to each regular show and $1.50 to the musical. Hence there is a saving of $1.50 for students who buy the season membership and attend all productions.

Finally, adults may become regular members of Little Theatre for a membership charge of $2.50 plus admission of $1.25 to each nonmusical attended and $2.50 to the musical. Obviously a sustaining membership offers a worthwhile saving to those who regularly attend our productions, but the regular membership is attractive to people whose attendance is more haphazard.

NOT TRANSFERABLE

Although memberships themselves are not transferable, a member is free to invite someone else to use an admission to which the member is entitled if he does not use it himself. Naturally we like to see members take in all five shows, but when they must miss one, we are happy to see a non-member introduced to the pleasures of Strauss Playhouse.

It was good to hear from Mrs. Tom Serwich during her recent visit to Monroe. Her late husband was president of Little Theatre 1943-45 and Rose directed "Skylark," "Over Twenty-One" and "Guest In The House" in 1945 and 1946. She now lives in New Orleans and confesses she is no longer active in Little Theatre.

Warm congratulations to Murray Burfford for the many honors heaped upon her at Mississippi Southern's summer theatre. After her sterling performance in "Once Upon A Mattress" at Strauss Playhouse, it comes as no surprise to us that she was voted "Most On The Ball" by her directors and "Best Actress" by the company on the strength of leading roles in "Pajama Game," "Ah, Wilderness," and "The Chalk Garden."

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

When Spain sought a poster symbol for its $7 million pavilion at the New York World's Fair, 300 top Spanish artists entered their paintings in a poster competion. One photographer also sent in an entry, a color photo in poster form.

The photographic entry won first prize in the competition. It also focused official attention on the photographer, Antonio Cores, and led to his selection as the official photographer for the Pavilion of Spain at the fair. It's a familiar photographic success story with a Spanish flavor.

This short story, however, has other interesting angles. For one thing, Antonio heard of the contest just a few days before the closing deadline. In a burst of energy — not quite typical of the Spanish "manana" character — he planned his theme, photographed it in color, processed the films in his studio and enlarged a print to poster size, added the message and got it in under the wire.

THEME

His theme was a Spanish guitar, closely cropped to make a simple but symbolic eye-catching design. The simplicity and effectiveness of his photo brought further assignments to provide photo murals for the Spanish Pavilion and led eventually to his selection as its official photographer.

The photo murals, about 75 of them, depict the beauty and tradition of Spain through typical scenery, architecture and people. They are displayed as backgrounds for the exhibits of handicraft and industry in the salons of the pavilion. Many of them were shot with 35mm camera.

INFORMAL, FRIENDLY

Antonio Cores is slim, informal and friendly. We chatted through an interpreter because he knew no English when he came to this country with the opening of the New York World's Fair. Now 28, he was a photo fan from the age of 13 and within a few years decided it was to be his career. At 17 he went to Paris for serious study, became an apprentice in the studio of a top French photographer and worked in a color laboratory.

When he returned to open his own studio in Madrid, Cores was probably the youngest professional photographer in Spain. He included a color lab too and soon was illustrating and producing pictures for the leading Spanish magazines.

Vatican Paper Urges Prayers For Red Leader

VATICAN CITY (AP) — L'Osservatore Romano called Italina Communist party leader Palmiro Togliatti a man "of singular personality" and told Roman Catholics to pray for his soul.

The Vatican newspaper devoted a brief editorial Saturday to the death of the Red politician without mentioning him by name.

"Death is placing its dramatic mantle on this personality and on this life which was entrusted with grave and historical experiences," l'Osservatore said. "The silence which succeeds the tension, the fight, the daily polemic, appears even more solemn.

"Our desire is that those who followed the representative of an ideology so much opposed to Catholicism should experience in this hour full of pity the waring evidence of the relativity of every human effort, of every earthly ideology.

"Those who, in the name of Catholic faith, radically opposed and oppose the vision of atheist communism stop before the memory of the singular personality of the man and of his history, making their own the August and paternal prayer by Pope Paul VI who offered to the Holy Virgin the mystery of a soul."

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Charming Home Has Best Features Of Many Styles

By ANDY LANG

FLOOR PLANS: There are plenty of extras in this two-level house, including a fourth bed-room or den, a huge recreation room, a breakfast balcony and three porches.

The house design you select must fulfill the needs of your family, yet have the kind of eye appeal which time will not diminish.

Each style of house has its adherents. The ranch is favored by those who desire one-floor living; the 1½ and two-story by those who need more house on less ground. The split level is a compromise and lends itself to interesting designs.

The advantages of the various styles have been incorporated by Architect Rudolph A. Matern in what ordinarily might be called a raised or high ranch. In this type of house, both the main floor and the "basement" are a few feet higher than normal, thus keeping all the regular rooms on a single level and turning the lower level into a livable, useful area. Matern's Design H-45 in the House of the week series has this kind of practical construction, plus a charming Colonial exterior that has the appearance of a split level.

The three bedrooms on the upper level are isolated from, but easily accessible to the rest of the house. Because of the raised floor, the bedroom windows are at a high level, affording extra privacy from passers-by. The master bedroom has its own bathroom, back to back with a second bathroom and directly above a third bathroom suggested for the lower level, an economical grouping feature.

A combination kitchen-family room has a balcony-type breakfast area by an open-railed stairs leading to the outdoors. A large panorama window opens the rear view to the kitchen and serves the same purpose for the recreation room below.

Sliding glass doors from the dining room lead to a porch, which can be used either for outdoor eating in good weather or merely for relaxing. Directly underneath is a sunken porch off the recreation room, also reached by sliding glass doors.

The living room has a fireplace at one side and a wrought iron synthetic balcony outside the front window.

That recreation room on the lower level is more than 29 feet long. Another room at the rear can be used either for a den or a fourth bedroom. There is an extra bathroom and a laundry area. The remainder of the lower level is taken up by the garage and the basement area, where the utility equipment is located.

Note the generous amount of closet space on both levels of this well-planned house, which has 1343 square feet of habitable area on the upper level and 807 square feet on the lower level, excluding the garage and the basement section. The traffic pattern minimized tracking through the house by children and service men. And the Colonial front-entrance porch adds a gracious touch to the exterior.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-45.

COLONIAL CHARM: This Colonial split entry house, with the exterior appearance of a split level, combines the advantages of several house styles with a few added touches of imaginative design.

RECREATION ROOM: This 29-foot recreation room has sliding glass doors leading to a sunken porch, which is directly under a dining porch.

Mrs. Kennedy To Stay Away From Service

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy, wife of the late president, will not appear in the Convention Hall for the memorial service for Kennedy at the Democratic National Convention, it was learned Saturday.

Although she has been invited by President and Mrs. Johnson to occupy the presidential box, Mrs. Kennedy has declined.

Sources close to the former First Lady said she did not feel that she would be up to making an appearance at the emotion-charged memorial session Thursday night.

However Mrs. Kennedy still plans to attend a Thursday afternoon reception for the delegates given by Mrs. W. Averell Harriman.

"I know of no plans for Mrs. Kennedy to do anything but attend the reception at that time," said the former First Lady's press secretary, Pamela Turnure, in Washington.

Miss Trnure said Mrs. Kennedy does not plan to stay overnight in Atlantic City, but will be there just for the day, Thursday.

Possible Auto Industry Strike Tension Grows

NEW YORK (AP) — The automobile industry's crucial negotiatons on labor contracts are coming down to the wire and tension is growing over the possibility of a strike.

Current contracts expire Aug. 31, and unless there are extensions, a decision must be reached by then.

The companies made their first proposals this week after seven weeks of negotiations.

The immediate reaction by the United Auto Workers was, "miserabley inadequate" and "terribly disappointing."

Parallel offers by General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. included three-year contracts with higher wages, larger pensions and earlier retirement.

It was estimated by the companies that the offers would increase basic wages from 18 to 36 cents an hour over the life of the contract.

Malcolm Denise, Ford vice president for labor relations, called the offers "the most generous we have ever made."

The UAW councils representing the workers at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler voted to reject the offers and urged that their companies be made strike targets.

It was up to the UAW's 25-man executive board to decide whether there should be a strike and, if so, which company to call it against.

Walter Reuther, UAW president, described the Big Three's offer as "unfair, unreasonable and unrealistic."

"Never before," he said, "have so few with so much offered so little to so many."

The union's reaction was described by some industry sources as the toughest in years.

The UAW has made no bones about it that it expects the companies to make a bigger share of their record breaking profits of 1963 and the first half of 1964 available to their workers.

Meanwhile, the pace of auto production picked up. An estimated 39,300 of the 1965 models were turned out, compared with 20,670 last week and 222,910 a year ago.

Chrysler, Ford and American Motors were busy all week on the new models and General Motors began assembling them Thursday.

Chrysler previewed its 1965 models for newsmen in New York City. It was the first of the automakers to unveil its new lines.

The Chrysler 1965s emphasized larger size models, diversity and restrained styling.

In another development involving Chrysler, its proposed merger with Mack Trucks Inc. fell through after a court injunction was filed in antitrust opposition. The companies dropped their plans rather than go through long litigation.

Steel production last week posted the biggest gain since late January. This partly reflected the end of vacation and maintenance close downs.

Output totaled 2,379,000 tons, up 3.4 per cent from the 2.3 million tons turned out the previous week and 37 per cent ahead of the 1,742,000 tons in the corresponding 1963 week.

The increase boosted the industry's operations to an estimated 75.2 per cent of capacity.

Production and shipments are moving up so strongly that it's a real possibility that the current quarter will equal or exceed second quarter marks, according to the trade publication, American Metal Market.

Accident Victim Hurt Critically

Stocks Spin Into Slight 'Downtrend'

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week went into a mild downtrend, reversing its course of the previous week.

Formal rejection by the United Auto Workers of the counter-offer by the automotive Big Three in the bargaining for a new labor contract was linked by observers to some of the market's weakness.

Opinion of many leading Wall Street analysts, however, remained optimistic regarding the probability of an agreement between the auto union and management. Even if a strike occurs, these experts said, it will probably be very short.

Stock prices went mildly lower on balance. Some of the retreat was ascribed to technical factors, because the list had enjoyed a good recovery from a recent slide and there was room for profit-taking by traders.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week took a trifling loss of .19 at 838.62.

Volume was generally slack. The week's total was 19,664,110 shares compared with 19,324,510 the week before.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks showed a small loss of .9 at 315.6.

Thursday's session, a sharp decline in moderate trading, more than accounted for the week's loss. On Wednesday, stocks edged off slightly but the averages rose a little on the other three trading days.

Of 1,514 shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 735 fell and 597 rose.

The bond market marked time. Prices were mostly unchanged in light trading.

Mississippi Test Is Drilling Ahead

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Austral Oil Co. is drilling below 14,460 feet in its puzzling Federal No. 1 sec. 11.4N-9E located approximately a mile north of the discovery well of the Bienville Forest Field of Smith County. It is reported that coring operations 14,123-42 feet in the Smackover lime logged shows of oil with drill stem test run in the interval recovering salt water. Operators are drilling ahead with no information being released.

The Bienville Forest Field was discovered last September opening the first Smackover lime oil production for Mississippi. A well drilled on the east 40 acre offset to the discovery failed to log production and was abandoned. The current operations is the third test to be drilled in the field.

Pan American Petroleum Corp. continues to release no information on its Scott County Smackover lime discovery the U.S.A. Bell No. 1 sec. 18-5N-8E with reports that the mechanical troubles have been encountered in completion. The well is reported to have tested at the rate of 250 barrels of oil per day from a Smackover lime sand at approximately 14,550-60 feet. The new discovery is located approximately six miles southwest of Forest.

A second Scott County Smackover lime wildcat is nearing the interesting stage with the drilling depth below 13,400 feet. The venture is Skelly Oil Company's reopened Miles No. 1, sec. 17-5N-7E located six miles west of the Pan American well. The wildcat was abandoned last year at a depth of 11,200 feet with the well scheduled to be deepened to 15,500 feet to test the Smackover.

In Jones County Austral Oil and Paul Radzewic are drilling below 11,500 feet in their closely watched wildcat the Murray No. 1, sec. 6-9N-13W, located between the Gitano and Summerland oil fields. The venture is reported to have logged oil shows of undetermined commercial worth at 11,400 feet with the well having contract depth of 12,600.

In north Rankin County George H. Jett Drilling Co. is drilling below 5,100 feet in the West No. 1, sec. 14-7n-4e, with the wildcat scheduled to be drilled to 10,500.

Phillips Petroleum Co. is rigging up at its Simpson County wildcat the Zellerbach No. 1, sec. 21-10N-19W, located approximately four miles north of the Gwinville Gas field. Contract depth is 14,500 feet.

In Smith County, Pan American Pertoleum Corp. is drilling below 6,100 in its wildcat the Thomas No. 1, sec. 13-4N-7E, located approximately six miles southwest of the Scott County discovery. The wildcat is scheduled to be drilled to 16,350 feet.

Grain Futures Scores Gains Across Board

CHICAGO (AP) — Weather was the dominant influence if not the only one in the grain futures market last week, and it was bullish enough to add moderate gains to all contracts on the Board of Trade.

From the start of activity on Monday, speculators talked of almost nothing but the adverse crop conditions, which some later had begun to call a developing disaster.

Numerous reports had circulated in the corn and soybean pits of crop prospects declining by the day. Corn was understood to have become a total loss on considerable acreage and soybean pods were reported to be withering instead of filling.

A few brokers said a roaring bull market might have developed had the general soaking rainfall failed to materialize.

Friday, however, the fear of a more prolonged drought had ended and a move toward liquidation began. The offerings were rather readily accepted, though, by bolder traders who seemed convinced damage already had been very heavy in spots.

Gulf To Expand Offshore Rigs

HOUSTON (UPI) — Gulf Oil Corp., said building of new offshore drilling facilities and recent new contracts will add five drilling rigs to the 15 the firm operates off the Louisiana coast.

All will be in use before the end of the year, Gulf said.

Gulf is building three new self-contained drilling platforms. Designed for water depth around 150 feet. Another structure being used for other purposes is being made into a self-contained drilling platform, Gulf said. In addition, a new tender is being built at an Orange, Tex., shipyard for use on Gulf leases.

Gulf said that with the new self-contained platforms, drilling will be done by Brewester-Bartle Drilling Co., Inc., at two locations in the South Timbalier area block 135 field; by Zapata Offshore Co. In the area's block 176 field, and by Reading and Bates Offshore Drilling Con., on South Timbalier block 28.

Rowan Drilling Co., will use the tender at a drilling platform yet to be designated, the firm said.

Demo Scores Sen. Goldwater For Reversals

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey said Saturday Sen. Barry Goldwater has made "one of history's greatest reversals" on the question of Social Security.

Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee, told the Senate Friday he wants to strengthen the Social Security system and will vote for a bill to increase benefits.

"I have voted for genuine improvements in the system since I have been in the Senate, and I plan to do so now," the Arizona senator said.

Bailey termed this "one of history's greatest reversals," and said, "The American people will not for a moment take him seriously."

In a statement issued at this site of next week's Democratic National Convention, Bailey added: "They (the American people) know these are the words of a man for whom talk is cheap and votes are ridiculous.

"They remember that on virtually every occasion since he became a sentaor, Goldwater has voted against proposed expansions in the Social Security sytem.

"They know that his several positions on Social Security are irreconcilable. One day he says he will not saddle the program with any new burdens, and the next day he favors increased payments.

"Furthermore, he has frequently advocated making Social Security voluntary, which he knows would wreck the program he now says he wants to expand. But expansion by destruction seems to be Goldwater's basic political creed.

Freedom Party Stages March

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) —The predominantly Negro Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party delegation marched to Convention Hall along the Boardwalk Saturday singing freedom songs.

Thousands of strollers watched quietly as the delegation, marching four abreast, walked and sang. The 68 members and other civil rights backers were led in the march and the singing by Joseph L. Rauh Jr., a white attorney, from Washington and Aaron Henry, Negro chairman of the delegation.

Rauh led the delegation to a side door of Convention Hall about 1 p.m. He asked to be admitted to the hall to lead the group to the second floor where the Credentials Committee was to hear their reasons for being seated instead of the all-white regular Mississippi delegation.

However Rauh was in error as to the time and guards would not let the group enter immediately.

"Well, they told us to be here at 1 o'clock and here we are," Rauh said.

Rauh said the group marched only about two or three blocks.

Want Ad Started Nellie Bly Career

Star newspaper woman of the '90s, Nellie Bly who started at $5 a week and later made $25,000 annually, got started because of a Want Ad.

She had written an unsigned letter critical of an article in the Pittsburgh Dispatch. The paper printed her letter, then placed an ad to locate the unknown writer. She saw the ad, came in, and sold the editor on hiring her.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
How is this for an idea?

After discarding several old, battered TV snack tables (the inexpensive type with the removable tray), the folding-leg bases were still as good as new . . .

Last washday when I needed a laundry cart, I discovered something: All one has to do is to use any heavy cloth or lightweight canvas, make a bag, and sew or pin it with safety pins to the two top rims. Presto—a laundry cart!

The stands with wheels are especially handy, but the others are good, too.

Another thing I found out is that since these stands are lightweight you can use two or three at one time and thus divide your laundry as you work with it.

Evelyn Dawson

* * *

Now aren't you a dolly to tell us this? Try making your cover from an old bath towel. It's the perfect size.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
When knitting, I never can seem to find my measuring tape when I need it.

I took a ball-point pen and made marks at intervals of an inch on my knitting needles. Now I always have a "ruler" handy when I want to measure the length of my knitting.

Mrs. Thomas Price

DEAR HELOISE:
Would mothers like to make their own birthday candle holders for their children's birthday cakes? I make the kind which can also be eaten.

I dip maraschino cherries into heavy syrup and then into finely chopped nuts. The cherries also can be rolled in powdered sugar. These make perfect birthday candle holders.

Lay the cherry on top of the cake and stick the tiny candle in the hole of the cherry!

Laura Getschmann

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a hint for do-it-yourself painters:

Insert the roller paint tray into a plastic bag and tape the top of the bag to the bottom of the tray.

Then pour your paint on the plastic liner and proceed as usual. When finished, just slip the bag off, inside out, and throw it away. You will have no messy tray to clean.

Martha Stark

DEAR HELOISE:
My mother cuts off the top of one of my old stretch socks and makes a "sleeve" to cover our new baby's bottle.

The baby doesn't drop her bottle any more as the soft sock helps to keep it from slipping. It also helps to keep the milk warm.

I am 9 years old and my mother told me to write this to you.

Ray Thomas

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's another use for nylon net.

Take the sponge off your sponge mop, soak it in water (so that it is maximum size), wrap the sponge in the piece of nylon net, tuck it in at the corners neatly, and put it back on your mop!

Now you can really get those stubborn spots off your floors with no effort at all! Just watch those spills and marks disappear.

Elizabeth Olsen

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's a hint which has saved me many brain-wracking minutes.

Did you ever need a safety pin in a hurry and find none in sight?

Well, I just bought some small horseshoe magnets at the dime store and placed one in each bedroom. Now, I put all loose straight and safety pins on them! When in a hurry, they are a cinch to find.

Gueen Henley

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is the recipe for an easy chocolate-bottom pie.

After baking the shell (or you could use the crumbly-type shell), just take a broken-up chocolate bar or some chocolate chips and sprinkle them on the pie shell. Cover this with hot custard or vanilla pudding.

The hot pudding will melt the chocolate, thus making the chocolate bottom part of the pie.

I always shave some more of the candy bar on top of the meringue. This is very pretty when done with a vegetable peeler. It adds that extra something to the pie.

Reader

DEAR HELOISE:
I am a 12-year-old boy and I like your column.

Ever had trouble remembering your shopping list?

Well, get a note pad and some clip-type clothespins. Separate the note pad and clip a few sheets in each clothespin.

Have your husband drill a hole in the end of each clothespin, so you can nail one on the wall next to every closet in the house. Hang a pencil on a string from the nail.

Now, when you think of something for your shopping list or run out of something in the kitchen, just jot it down on the pad wherever you may be in the house.

At the end of the day, collect all the slips and just make a neater copy.

A boy who likes
"Hints from Heloise"

DEAR HELOISE:
After laundering cotton gloves, roll them in a bath towel to remove excess water, then hold them over the end of your hair drier until they are dry!

Hold the drier so the hot air will blow into the glove and flow into the fingertips. This is not only quick, but will keep the gloves soft and new-looking!

Mrs. Robert Johnston

* * *

You are clever! It even took the wrinkles out of my gloves. What ever made you think of it?

Little Orphan Annie
"BUT THE WAITING TIME, MY BROTHERS, IS THE HARDEST TIME OF ALL" -SARAH DOUDNEY. YEP! AS THE FIRST RULE OF ALL ARMIES HAS IT: "HURRY UP AND WAIT"!
SURE IS A LOT O' CITY, SEEIN' IT FROM WAY UP OVER FORTY STORIES, FROM THIS SWELL HOTEL SUITE!
MOSTLY, FOR ME, BIG TOWNS HAVE MEANT PUSHIN' CROWDS, HONKIN' TAXIS, SMELLS O' FISH AN' FRESH BREAD AN' GARBAGE AN' CABBAGE!
THIS IS NICE, BUT IT'S SORT O' LONELY: GUESS THAT'S 'CAUSE SANDY ISN'T WITH ME! HOPE HE'S MAKIN' OUT O.K.!
EVEN WITH NICE VETS, GETTIN' ALL THOSE SHOTS AN' STUFF, SO THEY'LL LET HIM LAND IN EUROPE, MUST SEEM AWFUL SILLY TO HIM!
IT'LL BE NICE WHEN WE FINALLY ALL GET ON TH' SHIP AND ON OUR WAY! WELL, WE'VE GOT A START ON OUR SHOPPIN'!
GEE! TRUNKS AN' BAGS AN' SUITCASES: 'MAGINE BUYIN' CLOTHES T'FILL ALL O' THOSE! BUT IT'LL BE FUN, O' COURSE!
MAYBE IT'LL TAKE MY MIND OFF O' LEAVIN' TH' FARM; GOOD OLD AL, AND JACK AN' JILL AND TH' KITTENS, AND NELLIE AND MYRTLE!
SURE MISS 'EM ALL! HM-M;--FOLKS'LL BE BACK ANY TIME NOW; THEN WE'LL GO TO A SWELL REST'RANT T'EAT! WONDER WHAT SANDY'S HAVIN' FOR DINNER?
I'D BETTER QUIT DAYDREAMIN' AN' GET AT LEARNIN' THIS BOOK BY HEART; HOW TO ORDER A MEAL IN FRENCH:--
HOW TO SAY, "HOW MUCH IS IT?" "CAN YOU DIRECT ME TO THE EIFFEL TOWER?" "WHICH WAY TO THE LADIES' ROOM?" HM-M-- USEFUL LITTLE BOOK, AT THAT!

WHILE THE WAITING SEEMS LONG TO SANDY, TOO, IT ISN'T DULL!
WELL, OLD BOY: TIME FOR ANOTHER SMALL SHOT! YOU'VE BEEN A FINE PATIENT! HM-M-- NOW, YOU MAY FEEL THIS, JUST A LITTLE!
